West Holds Line Against Inflation

LOFFMARK

Fair Area Sharing Pledged

An "equitable" cost-sharing formula for health services in the Greater Victoria Regional District was pledged today by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

But takeover of the Metropolitan Board of Health by a full-scale regional board will require some time, he said.

Negotiations for such a takeover have been underway for about three years.

Loffmark told the legislature that the unspecified financial formula will be closely watched by the government prior to announcing a province-wide formula for public health services.

In a letter sent today to Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Metro Health Board which would be absorbed by a regional board, Loffmark stressed that the proposals to be made soon would be an "interim measure so far as costs are concerned."

The rate would be "set at a level sufficient to maintain existing services," the letter said.

The City of Victoria had threatened to pull out of the Metro Board partly because of what Loffmark today acknowledged was an "anomalous" situation in which outlying areas paid much less per capita for public health services than the core area.

Abortion Authority Extended

The number of hospitals permitted to carry out therapeutic abortions will be "substantially" increased in B.C., Health Minister Ralph Loffmark told the legislature today.

Instructions are being sent to hospitals explaining how they should go about being designated by Loffmark to handle abortions under amendments to the Criminal Code last year.

Bank robberies sh'd be condemned. They're inflationary.

SHAKEN after a lone bandit took approximately $2,000 from her till is bank teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl. When Mrs. Wahl didn't react quickly enough to a note demanding the money, the robber ordered her to "hurry up." The note claimed there was a gun in a briefcase.

Intensive Investigation Into Bank Robbery Here

Police are continuing "an intensive investigation" into the holdup Wednesday afternoon in which a bandit escaped with about $2,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Fort and Cook.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 1:30 p.m. and handed teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl, 1607 Ross, a note which read:

"This is a holdup. Give me all in your drawer. I have a gun in my briefcase and I will use it. Don't push the burglar alarm until after I'm gone."

Mrs. Wahl did not react fast enough for the man who told her to "hurry up."

He put the money and the note into his briefcase, left the bank, ran across Cook and disappeared into the Cook Medical Building, 1175 Cook.

RED CAR

An older-model red car was seen quickly leaving the area of the medical building about the time the robber disappeared.

Bank manager Larry Haddon said there were six or seven employees on duty at the time of the holdup but none, other than Mrs. Wahl, got a good look at the man. There were no customers in the bank.

The holdup was the fourth bank robbery in the Victoria area in four years.

An armed bandit held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Seaview Plaza on Cordova Bay Road Nov. 30 1968, and fled with $6,900. He was later convicted.

Another man was convicted of taking $2,655 from the Bank of Montreal, Richmond and Fort, Oct. 13, 1967, and three men are serving sentences for robbing the same branch of $18,000 in February, 1966.

U.S. Note Protests Manila Firebombers

MANILA (Reuters) — The United States lodged a strong protest today with the Philippines over a firebomb attack Wednesday night by 1,000 demonstrators on the U.S. embassy here.

A note delivered to the foreign office said the embassy had been left unguarded despite official requests for protection.

The mob broke down the embassy's inner and outer iron gates, entered the building and smashed furniture and glass doors, as well as repeatedly trying to set the building afire.

In a note delivered to Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo, U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade said it was common knowledge that demonstrators holding a mass meeting elsewhere were planning to come to the embassy.

TEAR GAS

After they were repulsed from the embassy by police firing tear gas, hundreds of students roamed city streets until after midnight, burning cars and smashing windows at random.

Eastern Prices Higher

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Western Canada held its own against rising prices in January.

But most eastern centres registered general price increases, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

That was the national picture today as the DBS released its monthly consumer price index.

The price index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, registered a mixture of minor increases and decreases in the cost of food and other items across the nation, but the overall trend was upwards.

EXCEPTION

No figure was provided for Victoria.

Ottawa was an outstanding exception to the general trend in Eastern Canada. Its index in January fell by one-tenth of a point from its 125.8 level in December.

No other city registered a drop, but in western Canada the major cities held the line, unchanged from December.

Vancouver's index remained at 121.0, Edmonton and Calgary at 123.5 and Winnipeg at 126.2.

Saskatoon and Regina went from 121.6 to 121.7, primarily as a result of train fare increases.

FOOD PRICES UP

Halifax led the east in increases when transit fare hikes and increases in food prices boosted its overall index four-tenths of a point, from 123.1 to 123.5.

The index in other Maritime centres rose from 120.5 to 120.9 in St. John's, Nfld., and from 122.0 to 122.4 in St. John, N.B.

A one per cent increase in food prices was blamed for the rise in Montreal's index, from 123.0 to 123.5. The Toronto index rose from 126.6 to 126.8, also primarily as a result of food prices.

$30,000 DAMAGES SET IN SEATTLE RIOTING

SEATTLE (AP) — Initial damage estimates have been set at $30,000 from a violent two-hour demonstration here Tuesday that resulted in one of the highest arrest totals in recent Seattle civil disturbances.

About 1,000 demonstrators protested the Chicago conspiracy trial by kicking in doors on the federal courthouse, hurling bottles through windows and splattering red and black paint on inside and outer walls.

Various businesses near the courthouse also reported extensive window damage.

Police arrested 61 persons on charges of violating municipal laws and another 14 were charged with violation of federal laws.

Anti-Riot Law Upset Sought

CHICAGO (AP)—Defence lawyers today moved to contest the validity of the U.S. federal anti-riot law under which five persons have been convicted.

Defence lawyer William Kunstler said he will go to higher courts to upset the 1968 law which prohibits the crossing of state lines with the intent to incite rioting.

A U.S. district court jury convicted five men Wednesday of crossing state lines with the intent to incite rioting during the Democratic convention in August, 1968.

But the jury of 10 women and two men acquitted all seven defendants of conspiracy to promote the bloody confrontations between police and anti-war demonstrators.

Two defendants, Lee Weiner and John Froines, were cleared of conspiracy and of a charge of teaching the use of incendiary devices. Froines and Weiner both resided in Chicago during the summer of 1968 and were not charged in the indictment with crossing state lines to incite rioting.

Convicted were David Dellinger, 54; Jerry Rubin, 31; Thomas Hayden, 30; Abbie Hoffman, 31, and Rennard Davis, 29.

Each man could be sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and fined, $10,000.

NO DATE SET

Judge Julius J. Hoffman did not set a date for sentencing but sentences are expected to be pronounced Friday.

All seven defendants are being held on contempt sentences imposed last weekend.

OIL SPILL BILL COULD HIT $1M

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government could collect up to $1,100,000 from the owners of the wrecked Liberian tanker Arrow to pay for damage caused by bunker oil which leaked from the ship, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday.

Jamieson said in an interview Sunstone Marine Ltd. of Panama, which formally abandoned the vessel Wednesday, is under legal obligation to pay for the clean-up operation along Nova Scotia's east coast.

Cost-Hold Reaction Mixed

OTTAWA (CP) — An announcement Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau that the government will postpone a series of planned price increases was greeted as a mixed blessing by opposition parties.

Trudeau told the Commons the government will forego increases in postal rates, Air Canada and Canadian National Railways fares, prices for government publications and other services to combat inflation.

While opposition spokesmen welcomed the anti-inflation initiative, most said the restraints will lead to unemployment.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said the program will hurt those at the bottom of the economic ladder.

He said the announcement, made during Trudeau's report on this week's two-day federal-provincial conference, contained measures that would "obviously just add to our unemployment problem."

T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, said restraint is necessery but the government should not decrease expenditures where it will cause unemployment.

The government's restraint program was hitting all sectors of the economy instead of being applied selectively, he said.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said a federal provincial conference on monetary reform should be held to solve problems that will be compounded by this week's conference.

Guild Considering Own Vancouver Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild will not return to work at the Sun and the Province without a settlement, Guild executive-secretary Bill McLeman said Wednesday night.

"Settlement is within our grasp and has been for two months," McLeman said in an interview, adding that the guild is considering putting out a paper of its own if the closure of Pacific Press Ltd. continues.

However, he said such newspapers have rarely been successful and a careful study of the situation would be needed first.

McLeman said starting next week, guild members will receive a maximum of $65 a week in "lockout" pay. The B.C. Federation of Labor has asked provincial trade union members for a $2.50 monthly donation to thwart "an obvious attempt" by Pacific Press to smash newspaper unions.

Local radio and television stations have stepped up news coverage and out-of-town newspapers are snapped up as soon as they appear on newsstands here.

VICTORIA'S SEARCH FOR AN IDENTITY

Abandoned Yard: Tombstone of an Industrial Future

By JACK SCOTT

(Part 4)

It was six men of Indostan
To learning most inclined,
Who went to see the Elephant
(Though all of them were blind),
That each by observation
Might satisfy his mind.

SCOTT

Nothing looks quite as desolate as closed-down shipyards and the closed-down yards of the Victoria Machinery Depot are theatrically so. The winter grass bunches pale and yellow around the derelict, rusted machinery. A sign that nobody reads warns: "Patrolled by dogs."

Walking by there on Dallas Road one day last week Larry Ryan, secretary of the 13,000-member Victoria Labor Council, saw in that silent desolation the tombstone of an industrial future.

"We lost 150 jobs in there in 1967 when it went belly-up," he remarked acidly to his companion, "but, more important, it's the story in a glance of what is happening here.

"Little or nothing came in to replace them. There are skilled men who made ships in there who are janitors now. Some are running elevators. We lost the dynamism that any city, however pleasant it may be, must have to keep moving ahead."

Irish-born, 50 years of age, an asembly-line worker with General Motors in Oshawa before he saw the Pacific light, Ryan relates the bleak view on Dallas Road with labor's future in the capital.

"They're black days for the organizer in Victoria," he admits. "Labor councils reflect the growth of industrial activity. We see the continuing shift up Island, to Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River, all with their own councils now. That's the trend. There's a draining away of the primary and secondary industries from this little corner."

Ryan stands and stares glumly through the high wire fence at the idle yards. The brogue still lingers in his voice.

'. . . So Over-Protective and so Short-Sighted . . .'

"Victoria is so over-protective of its environment, so short-sighted in its needs, that there simply is no commitment to industrialization. Instead of saving these yards by keeping abreast of technological advances, as Sweden would or Japan would, they rationalized as they still do today, that we could get by through substitutes or specialization.

"We came out of the post-war years in Victoria with a false premise. We thought of expanding production, of industrial growth in which the only threat of unemployment would come from automation. Instead, the development such as it's been, came only in the service industries, in the civil service bureacracy, the university, the tourist business, all traditionally hard to penetrate for organized labor.

"Now we need to smarten up," he continues. "We need to organize the people who work at poverty-level wages in hotels and motels, the laundry workers, and taxi drivers, the store clerks, the people who are employed in the retirement industry, the whole range of service workers who have become the only significant labor force here.

"By that I mean we must organize the working poor. That's what the loss of industrialization has brought us to."

An hour later, no more than a couple of miles from the scars of the shipyard, Clare Copeland, president of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, sits in the busy, sound-cushioned studios of C-FAX. Does his sense of feel for the future of Victoria resemble Larry Ryan's?

No way.

"Its a selling job, a change of directions, that's the most important thing here," says Copeland, a high-octane seller who has increased business 10 times since he bought the station six years ago.

"Industry of the right kind can be brought here," he says, "for the same reason that people come here — the climate, the attractiveness of the place.

"First we have to get over the idea that this is a hokey little imitation English town. Why, even in Vancouver there are still people who think of us as a cemetery with lights. There are businessmen there who still don't know that we've a fine university producing young poeple who could fit into any specialized industry.

'Timing Is Just Right for Industrial Officer'

"The timing is just exactly right now for Victoria to appoint an industrial development commissioner, the kind of thing that's been done successfully in places like Dawson Creek, even Cranbrook, for God's sake, to bring in new blood. We need to switch images just as the chamber switched letterheads."

Copeland now produces the Chamber's before-and-after letter-head paper. The drawing of a large, hanging basket of flowers that decorated the original is gone. Now the message ignores the charming horticulture for a harder sell: "Canada's 14th Largest City — Almost 200,000 people."

Brian J. Small, the chamber's manager, fortifies his president's views with a drawerful of evidence.

He flips a file to show a number of enquiries, directed to the chamber, from across North America.

A motion picture company asking about possible outdoor locations. A Quebec boat manufacturer wanting to re-site his plant because of separatist activities. A California electronic research group wondering about establishing a 40-man plant to make a new kind of self-answering telephone. A major Chicago trucking firm owner who has sold out, might re establish with a Victoria base.

Enquiries, too, from certain scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration looking for opportunities in more varied fields.

"We're not equipped to deal with this sort of thing and its not our function," the chamber manager says. "City Hall should have a specific department to answer these questions and aggressively follow through. The fact that they haven't is just one more indication of the negative approach to business development."

The feel of the future registers in yet another way for Colin Crisp, one of the impressive team in City Hall's planning department.

Two Vote Verdict Due February 26

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A verdict will be handed down Feb. 26 in the trial of Edward George Anderson, charged with voting twice in the Dec. 6 municipal election here.

Crown and defence argument concluded Wednesday before Provincial Judge Stuart Van Male.

The case is believed to be the first of its kind in British Columbia.

In earlier testimony Anderson admitted accepting two sets of ballots but said a combination of medical drugs and a lack of sleep caused him to be "in a confused state of mind" on voting day.

Early Start Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority says a record light snowfall will make it possible to resume construction early this spring at the Mica Damsite north of Revelstoke.

More than 100 men have been hired to prepare equipment, plow snow from haul roads and open camp for the work force — which is expected to reach 1,600 men this summer.

At the end of the 1969 construction season the dam had been raised to more than 135 feet above the original Columbia riverbed and the target this year is to raise the dam by another 195 feet.

Walkout Continues

WILLIAMS LAKE (CP) — A wildcat walkout by 225 employees of the Merrill and Wagner Forest Industry plant here continued today despite a warning by union officials that the walkout is illegal.

Miners Accept

PEACHLAND (CP) — Employees at the Brenda Mines Ltd. Wednesday accepted a new contract by a vote of 63 per cent.

About 230 operating engineers and tunnel and rock workers return to the job today after approving an 80-cent hourly wage increase over two years.

In addition, the settlement includes a wage re-opener clause for the third year subject to arbitration, provision for free medical care and other benefits.

Merritt Man Dies

MERRIT (CP) — Osvaldo Dimarco, 44, of Merritt was killed Wednesday when crushed beneath a mine locomotive in the Craigmont Copper Mine near here.

Dimarco had been operating the locomotive which left its track.

RESIGNING as Primate of the Anglican Church of Canada is Most Rev. Howard H. Clark because physical demands of his office have become too great. Clark, 67, is stepping down three years before his retirement would become mandatory.

Wagner Quits 'For Time Being'

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Wagner, crime buster who rose to the rank of justice minister in the Quebec Liberal party but failed in a bid to become its leader, quit politics Wednesday "for the time being."

The self-styled people's champion who rode a tough 10-year road as a crusading Crown prosecutor, a tough-talking judge and a no-nonsense justice minister, left the party in characteristic style, scolding the Liberals for not electing him leader.

The 44-year-old lawyer read a statement to a news conference in French and English then refused to answer questions.

The withdrawal from politics came several weeks after his leadership loss to the party's new chief, Robert Bourassa.

Mr. Wagner said:

"My decision was based on realism, common sense and respect for my own conscience."

His announcement followed a meeting with Mr. Bourassa, who succeeded former premier Jean Lesage.

Mr. Wagner said he also intends to resign his legislature seat of Montreal Verdun.

Brown Again Scolds Jews

LONDON (Reuters) — George Brown, ebullient former foreign secretary, hit the headlines again today with accounts that he told a pro-Israeli meeting that "every Western Jew will fight to the last Israeli."

Brown attended a Friends of Israel meeting in a House of Commons committee room Wednesday night.

The Daily Express quoted him as saying:

"I might as well start off by saying how much I like President Nasser."

Uproar broke out when Brown said: "The farther you get away from the scene of the crime the easier it is to make bloodthirsty speeches."

"Every Englishman will fight to the last Frenchman, every Kuwaiti will fight to the last Egyptian and every Western Jew will fight to the last Israeli," he was quoted in press reports splashed on front pages.

CAUSES UPROAR

"That's an insult!" shouted members of Brown's audience.

"Shut up!" Brown retorted.

He also said he thought the Palestinian Liberation Movement was led by "relatively moderate people."

Brown told the Friends of Israel:

"If you want peace you have to like both of the peoples. The Jews are wrong to attack Nasser. I think he is an honest man.

"I think the Israelis know they need Nasser, and I think Nasser knows that he needs Hussein," referring to King Hussein of Jordan.

S. Korean Onslaught On Salmon Feared

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Keith Miller Wednesday called on President Nixon to "do everything in your power" to prevent South Korea from undertaking a major salmon fishing effort in the North Pacific this summer.

Earlier Wednesday, the Association of Pacific Fisheries reported it had been advised "on excellent authority that the Republic of Korea Fishing Co. plans to greatly increase salmon fishing in the North Pacific in 1970."

The message said the Koreans are planning to dispatch an 8,000-ton canning factory ship and a 1,000-ton freezer ship to take red salmon "mainly from the Bristol Bay run" off the Alaska coast.

A near-record run has been predicted for Bristol Bay in the coming season.

In a telegram to Nixon, Miller said:

"If South Korea enters this fishery, our treaties with Japan and Canada will be endangered."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Southeast gales and occasional rain were reported along the north coast this morning in advance of a slow moving Pacific disturbance. Skies were cloudy over the south coast but were clear in most inland areas.

A strong ridge of high pressure over southern and central B.C. will retard the eastward motion of the weather system affecting north coastal districts. However, occasional rain will accompany it across the southern mainland on Friday. Inland areas will have sunny intervals Friday but occasional rain will mark its passage across the cariboo Friday afternoon. Mild temperatures and above normal rainfall are indicated in the five day outlook.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The retired Wyoming cowboy has a special place outside his stables down the road where he has a deep chair that faces the mountains. He loves to sit there under the eaves and watch the changing scenes that come and go with the weather.

We had rain one afternoon when I had walked down the road to visit him. He sat in the big old chair and grinned. "It washed the air," he said. "The air is always cleaner after a good rain and it even smells cleaner."

The old cowboy said that once in Wyoming he had observed that great big drops of rain cleanse the air better than smaller drops. I found that pretty hard to believe, especially because he exaggerates once in a while. But the weather experts at the university here say it's true, smaller drops don't wash the air so clean.

. . . ABORTION

effect of his move will be to increase the opportunity for abortions in outlying areas of the province.

FEW QUALIFY

He said only a few of the more than 100 hospitals in B.C. are qualified to do abortion operations.

Included among the instructions sent out are the need for a hospital committee to review each application, the presence of qualified medical staff and the availability of proper equipment.

Loffmark pointed out that under current law hospital abortion committees are not allowed to consider the "financial or economic" circumstances of the woman in an abortion application.

"I might say that I think that if there is any proposal to change the law, it might be done with a high degree of consideration, compassion, sympathy and understanding for the difficulties sometimes facing a mother," Loffmark said.

Loffmark said his action will make it easier for women to get an abortion because "if facilities aren't available you frustrate the law" which was changed last year to include not only danger to life but to health of the mother as a basis for allowing an abortion.

SPOKE OUTSIDE

The minister said outside the house a motion on the legislative order paper prevented him from discussing the use of drugs during his speech in the budget debate.

A determined campaigner against the use of marijuana and stronger drugs, he said could have spoken for at least an hour if it weren't for a motion made earlier this session by Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy.

She wants the house to pass a resolution making clear its unanimous opposition to marijuana.

Loffmark told reporters that young people today face a clear choice on the question of marijuana.

"The choice they have is this — to take the high road to a mountain where there is health and a degree of happiness free from this curse or they can use it and go down, not into a valley, but into a pit, a slimy pit of ill health and unhappiness.

"That is the liberty they have. That is the choice they must make."

Loffmark was prevented from discussing the matter in the house under the rule of anticipation which says you can't discuss questions scheduled for debate under bill or motions already on the order paper.

'Won't Submit to Union Violence'

OTTAWA (CP) — With opposition demands for his resignation, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans told the Commons in a special debate Wednesday that neither the federal government nor the people of Montreal will submit to union violence in the city's postal slowdown.

In the past, Mr. Kierans said, the union of truck drivers who pick up and deliver bundles of mail have had Montreal postal service by the throat. "But this year, neither the government nor the people of Montreal are going to crack."

The minister accused a small gang within the union of using violence as a form of blackmail. He listed 568 of 1,800 Montreal mail boxes damaged or clogged with cement and glue, trucks blocked and deliveries to postal stations cut drastically.

The effect of union tactics in the last five years has been to drive up costs 70 per cent in Montreal compared with 33 per cent for similar services in Toronto, Mr. Kierans said.

It has also meant employment of more than 100 unnecessary drivers, he added, but now the union has driven the contractor out of the business and it can no longer find an employer.

Mr. Kierans's resignation was called for earlier in the evening by Georges Valade (PC—Montreal Ste. Marie) who claimed he had permitted a dispute with the Confederation of National Trade Unions to develop into a major crisis.

The dispute involves 455 employees of G. Lapalme Inc. whose contract with the post office expires Mar. 31. No renewal is sought.

The government now has signed five-year contracts with five companies to obtain the same service. Mr. Kierans told the House that Lapalme drivers will be able to get jobs with the new contractors but first they must register with the local Manpower office.

Meanwhile, he said, if violence and the slowdown continue, the government will have no choice but to revoke the present contract and hire 350 chauffers to deliver the mail—"and we'll give them the security the occasion will require," he warned.

The heads of these three households called their local B.C. Hydro office before deciding the best way to heat their homes. With no charge and under no obligation, they got an honest, accurate idea of what the cost would be and a recommendation of the type and size of electric heating they would need. Like 24,000 other B.C. homeowners, they decided on clean, quiet electric heat.

'People Industries' Dominant Economic Fact

"The closing down of the shipyards was traumatic, yes, but, if anything, it came too late," he argues. "It was a declining industry that couldn't compete with the cheap labor of Japan or the new production methods of Sweden. But specializing has more than filled that void and there's no reason why manufacturing of a selective kind can't continue to maintain a high growth rate.

"You just don't make a dynamic economy overnight and its not going to be made overnight in Victoria," says the professorial, 31-year-old planner. "But the direction in which we're moving is established and very promising.

"The shift is from producing goods to producing services. The future looks very much like education plants, hospitals and medical research, administrative expertise, cultural activity, oceanography, tourism, hotels and restaurants, house and apartment construction — in short, all of the services that go with increasing population density and that are uniquely possible in this very nice place."

Income Source

Crisp's projections begin with a relatively new economic fact of life in Greater Victoria.

Where once the major source of income originated with the armed forces and the provincial and federal civil service now community business and personal services ("our people industry," as Victoria architect Graham Argyle has aptly called it) have become the prime sources of earned dollars.

They're projections, however, providing small comfort to the average Victorian who may be painfully aware that his pay packet hasn't the heft of other Canadians'. At the moment he makes $6.37 a week less than the average Canadian, $13.19 a week less than the average Vancouverite, $16.28 a week less than the average British Columbian.

Without a base of skilled, unionized industrial employees the Victoria working man of the future seems likely to remain "the guy who takes $200 a month less for the privilege of watching the tulips grow."

The quote comes from Alex Brady, past president of the Victoria branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

"The situation of our people in the union illustrates one of the fundamental problems of Victoria," says the stocky, veteran trades unionist.

"The 4,000 provincial government employees represent a payroll of about $25 million. We give a stability to the community, certainly we contribute to the unique, solid character of the place.

"The government worker's dollar, of course, is pretty well taken for granted. It would only be by removing it that the city might realize just how important it is. In property taxes alone it means a contribution of a million dollars or more every year.

Falling Behind

"But here's the point," Brady went on, "It isn't what it ought to be. Our wage structure hasn't kept pace with similar jobs in commerce and industry. Because we're a large part of the community that means less money going into the local economy, less, that is, than should be going in. The majority of our members make less than the $6,000 median salary of all government employees. There are, in fact, a substantial number of our members so poorly paid that they'd be demonstrably better off on welfare.

Capital Image

"If we got a fair shake we'd contribute anywhere from 12 to 25 per cent more into the economy. Now you'd ask, why don't our people move to where they can get it? Because those damned tulips are here, that's why."

Whatever may happen to those salaries Victoria will retain its identity as a provincial capital. In a city where, it seems, almost everyone sees a different future, the one common ground for agreement is that the capital will remain right where it is.

A poll of members of the legislative assembly made it clear that there's not even the seeds of a movement to resite the capital and unlikely to be any in the foreseeable future.

Abandoned Shipyard Reflects New Trend in Victoria

Those who believe that it might have been better located somewhere else wouldn't advocate the cost or disruption now of a move. But most are convinced that it couldn't be better.

"Eminently suitable," says Nanaimo's Mayor Frank Ney, beginning his first term as a Social Credit member.

"Victoria is easily accessible by plane, bus and water transport. The legislative buildings are central. You don't have to drive 10 or 15 miles from your hotel. That wouldn't be the case if you moved to the mainland.

"The high cost of land would force the government to build buildings well away from the city centre. As it is, we do our thing in one of the cleanest, most beautiful cities of Canada."

At Variance

Evan Wolfe, Social Credit member for Vancouver Centre and Robert Williams, Vancouver East New Democrat, were among those who would have liked it elsewhere.

"It would have been better sited in the more populated area of the lower mainland," Wolfe contended. "It should provide more convenient access to officials and politicians by a larger segment of the public. But the reasons for moving aren't compelling enough."

Thinking Swayed

Williams agreed. "Victoria tends to cut off a large number of people," he felt. "Most of the time the sessions go unattended by the general public. I doubt if that would be the case if they were in the Vancouver area."

Williams was among those, too, who thought that the Victorian atmosphere of detachment affects the urgency and immediacy of debate.

"It seems clear," he said, "that Victoria has a damaging effect on the elected people who are in the capital the year 'round or for long periods of time, such as cabinet ministers.

"Why, even the pleasant climate conditions their thinking about problems elsewhere. A former minister of education, for example, suggested that capital funds for gym*nasiums weren't required,* that kids could simply go outdoors and play the year round.

"That might be possible in Victoria. It isn't possible anywhere else in the province."

There are mixed feelings on the possibility that a decentralizing of government offices would draw away some of the purchasing power of the civil service presently here.

Union leaders are unconcerned about this prospect, though Williams, among others interviewed felt that this was already a trend.

Power Shifting

"Whether Victoria people realize it or not, Premier Bennett has been shifting the power toward Vancouver," the Vancouver East member said.

"The major crown corporation in the province has head offices in Vancouver, the 21-storey B.C. Hydro building. The crown's own railway, the PGE, has head offices in Vancouver as well. They're probably the key growing development agencies in the province. Putting up a 55-storey government building in Vancouver for various parts of the bureaucracy is another indication of the direction the present government is taking.

Centralization

"My own feeling is that the bureaucracy should be decentralized even more," Williams went on. "The 55-storey building proposed for Vancouver might best be broken up into 10-storey buildings located in Nelson, Kamloops, Prince George, Prince Rupert and Fort St. John. The bureaucracy would then, I suspect, be more responsible to local needs and deal with regional problems."

Evan Wolfe felt, too, that a new B.C. Building in Vancouver would encourage the movement of more executive departments to the Lower Mainland area.

James G. Lorimer, the Burnaby-Willingdon MLA, was for more centralization in the capital rather than less.

"It seems to me that all government departments should be located adjacent to the legislative buildings and that all departmental facilities should be removed so that the buildings would be purely for the legislative functions," he said.

"The James Bay area should be planned for the construction of government offices so that the whole complex is grouped together. Provincial money should be supplied to the city for the beautification of this area. It looks like a slum at present."

Most members felt that Victoria was entirely satis*factory in providing* the amenities of life while they are here for the sessions.

"Other than the fact that I miss city sidewalks after nine o'clock, Victoria is a pleasant community to work in," said Bob Williams.

And New Boy Burt Campbell, editor of the Castlegar News, Social Credit member for Revelstoke-Slocan, summed it all up: "The mail service is good and the telephones work."

Pots and Kettles

PRESIDENT NIXON'S WARNING to Russia to refrain from efforts to win a dominant position in the Middle East through contributions of aid to the Arab nations does not carry quite the moral weight which so solemn a statement might be expected to have. It is not likely that the Russians, having burst into the Mediterranean after centuries of Czarist longings—and that without firing a shot—will be easily deterred from trying to expand their influence and power.

Certainly the fact that the United States now appears ready to embark on a policy of retrenchment in self-imposed global responsibilities—it will fulfil commitments but retire from the role of world policeman—is little reason for the Soviet Union to adopt the same procedure. In fact, quite the opposite may be in prospect.

That is not to say that Russian power development in the Middle East will not, as Mr. Nixon observes, "make great power rivalry more likely." And any such trend could only render mankind a little less secure in every part of the world. But the Russians can respond to Mr. Nixon's concern about their actions with a grin and a gesture toward Vietnam, and ask who is telling whom what to do.

Mr. Nixon's further complaint that the Russians have failed to exert a helpful influence on the Paris peace non-talks, that they have supplied arms to the North Vietnamese and have not coerced the Hanoi government into a peaceful course of conduct, can only produce further smiles in the Kremlin. Again the question—who is fighting on whose continent—puts Mr. Nixon's comments in an embarrassing perspective.

The fact is that no pot in the world is in a good position to start calling kettles black. The game of allocating blame and manoeuvring for advantageous position should not be allowed to interfere with the serious business of international politics today: finding a way whereby nuclear arms may be reduced and controlled and the world thus relieved of a knife-edge existence.

The balance of terror has worked for two decades, as any thin rope may serve a drowning man, but it cannot be considered a final answer to the problem of international peace. It is an emergency measure to try to deter irresponsible aggression while a durable arrangement is worked out. The balance of terror offers no future other than constantly escalating offensive and defensive armaments, with costs to match. And in any case, it is a device which has served while two major nuclear powers dominate the field. The rapid rise of China in this category will change all the rules.

Mr. Nixon rightly views possible Soviet growth in the Middle East with "grave concern," just as Moscow has used similar phraseology regarding United States actions. But it is no time for finger-pointing and wrist-slapping while daggers are still aimed at hearts. The key to world security lies deeper.

More Canadian Content on the Air

NEW PROPOSALS BY THE Canadian Radio-Television Commission require television broadcasters to fill at least 60 per cent of their daily schedules with Canadian programs and to ensure a 30 per cent Canadian performer content rule for music broadcasts by AM radio stations. The new rules for television stations would be enforced in prime time and only 30 per cent of programming would be allowed from any one country. Commonwealth and French programs, previously counted as Canadian content, would be classed as foreign.

In the past broadcasters circumvented the spirit if not the meaning of the Canadian content rule by protracted local newscasts, inane quiz shows and pundit talkathons during off-hours. Under the present 55 per cent Canadian content rule there has been no marked renaissance of Canadian television. Why? The broadcasters, with some validity, plead lack of money. More often than not the long-established American networks have a larger audience in one state than the CBC or CTV have in all of Canada. With that kind of audience a one-hour drama or variety special can afford to run into six figures.

But the potent economic factor should not deter Canadians. It can be argued that it would be cheaper if we depended on United States banks, publications and airlines, to name a few areas of crucial national interest. But most Canadians would rather pay more than settle for less in terms of nationhood. The same is true of Canadian television. Foreigners cannot provide us with Canadian insights. As Canadian poet Leonard Cohen says, "Let us compare mythologies," and ours, we are beginning to learn. is as valid as our neighbor's. Like any living thing, Canadian culture should be nurtured and allowed to develop, even if some arbitrary measures are initially necessary in order for it to survive.

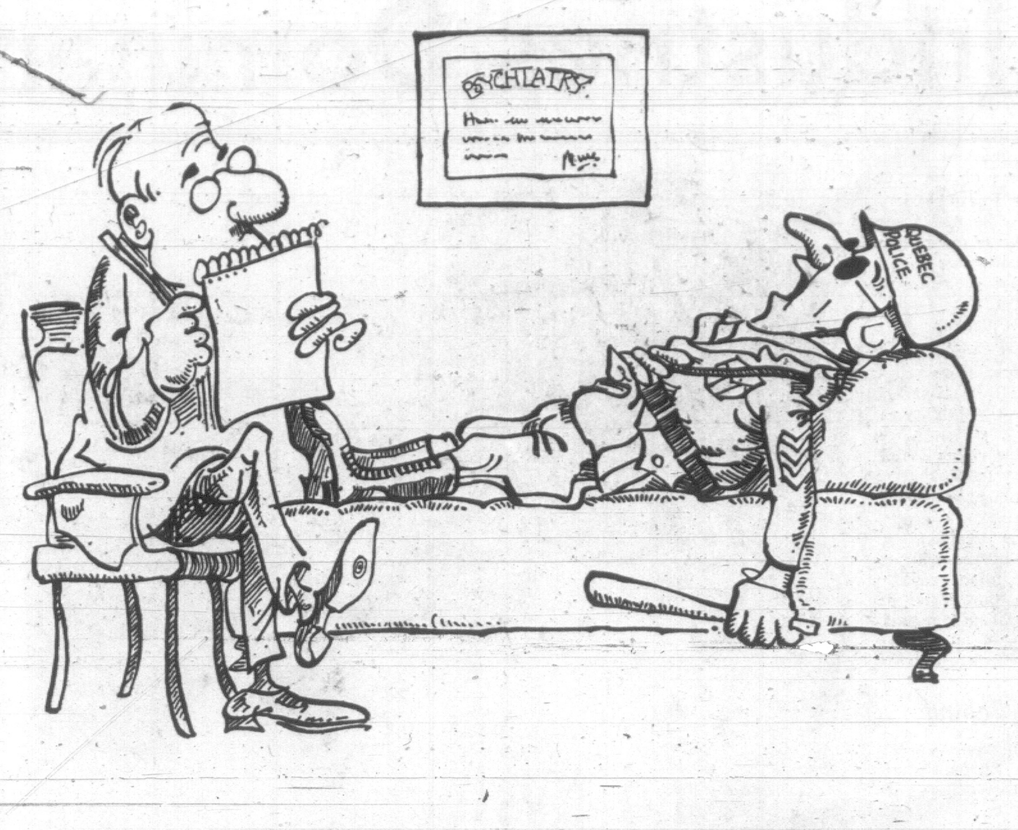
The proposal for 30 per cent Canadian performer content on AM radio stations is another bud on the same stalk. Unrelieved Southern twang informs Canadians about happenings on Talahassie bridges and what it is like in Folsom prison but their Canadian counterparts are rarely aired, and it is not because Canadians have not written and performed songs about similar things. For years Canada has had musicians of all stripes who are of world quality, and with the advent of top-notch recording facilities in Toronto there should be no reason for not hearing more of them. In the long run, however, no amount of force - feeding Canadian content to Canadians will strengthen national identity unless the content is good enough.

A Lesson for Canada

THE TRIAL OF THE CHICAGO Seven is a dubious landmark in the agony that the United States has been experiencing for more than a decade. Charged with conspiring to cross state lines with intent to cause a riot at the 1968 Democratic convention, the seven men who were tried represent the full spectrum of dissent in the United States. During the 20-week course of the trial one defendent had to be chained and gagged in the court. On other occasions obscenities were hurled at the presiding judge by defendents. There was almost continuous disruption of the proceedings.

Before the trial went to the jury, Judge Julius J. Hoffman sentenced all the defendants and some of the defence attorneys to jail terms for contempt of court. In the wake of the court's decision violent demonstrations have erupted in several United States cities.

It is too easy for Canadians to judge the action and reaction that the trial has engendered in American society. On this side of the 49th parallel we think we see all U.S. arguments through a dispassionate telescope. The outlines are in black and white but the details are grey at this distance. By endlessly debating the problems of the United States we tend to forget that Canada has potentially explosive problems too. Even a cursory glance at unrest in the United States should make us tackle our own problems with renewed vigor and human understanding.



"... Every time I crack a skull now I have this horrible feeling that it may turn out to be somebody important ..."

Who'll Manage Information for Canada?

CONSIDERING the magnitude of the issues involved, the government has moved with quite remarkable speed to set up the new body grandly designated Information Canada. One might suppose that ministers were dealing with a simple chore of housekeeping. In November, Parliament received the two volume report of a task force complete with a summary of 17 recommendations. It is only February but the prime minister has accepted 15 of them, side-tracked one and rejected one. In effect the government has given its approval to the project with only minor qualifications.

Western

But the housekeeping is a minor consideration. What is proposed is an agency reporting to a minister which will be, in effect, a substitute for a ministry of information. The government has plunked for this despite the fact that the members of the task force were themselves remarkably two-minded in their presentation. Their report is not lacking in most serious warnings although, sustained by faith and rhetoric, they do manage to ignore them in drawing their conclusions.

Thus they observe very properly that: "the distinction between partisan information and 'pure' official government information may be forever gray."

Partisan Interest

This, of course, is the central difficulty. Governments do have a partisan interest in information and they will have it whether or not the information officers are brought into ministerial deliberations. It is no answer to the problem to suggest that reports of Information Canada should be scrutinized by a parliamentary committee. For committees are normally months behind; public accounts was formerly several years behind — not through its own fault but through the fault of government.

The government is wide open to the reproach that it has made the wrong decision in the wrong way at the wrong time and is implementing it in the wrong manner.

According to the task force: "The government's obligation to release information might extend, in the first instance, to its deliberations over a new policy on information. There could hardly be a more inescapably logical place for an open attitude toward information."

In fact it has been as secretive as a clam since it received the report on information.

Everyone agrees that there is waste in government information services but this is a proposal for setting a new superstructure over the existing agencies. It is a plan for spending more and not less.

Cost Warning

As recently as Monday at the conference called by the Prices and Incomes Commission, business representatives urged the importance of economy and in particular urged caution on the government in launching new schemes which would ultimately involve great expense. After all, even the CBC—also in the information field—was once an infant, with a growth capacity utterly unsuspected by the government which gave it birth.

This consideration also has gone unheeded.

Why do we have the revelation at this time? Because the government does not propose to proceed by way of legislation or even by the method of committee inquiry leading to recommendations and, if necessary, order-in-council. Instead, like the plan for ETV, originally projected by Miss LaMarsh and then abandoned, it is to come to us by way of an item (of $1 million) in the estimates.

We are to get Information Canada first. Only later, according to the prime minister, will its objectives, policies and operations be reviewed by a parliamentary committee. This is certainly convenient for the government.

Such an agency could scarcely be launched in more unfavorable circumstances. It is not merely the official opposition that is critical; all the opposition parties view Information Canada with deepest distrust. Mr. Stanfield, in an effective speech, labelled it Manipulation Canada. Mr. Lewis charged that it was an agency for the control and management of news and that its purpose was to "befuddle, deceive and mislead."

The CBC has had some bad times but at least it had a better start than this.

One of the more remarkable features of the report is the impressive faith of its authors in opinion sampling. This evidently is to be a major means of involving us all in participatory democracy. But answers to questions, as Mr. Lewis pointed out, depend in great measure on how they are worded. The "pre-managed question" would be no welcome addition to managed news. Mr. Trudeau, quite often and sometimes properly, declines to answer such questions in the House of Commons.

Regional Reference

The side-tracked recommendation called for establishment of a Citizens' Advisory Bureau and neighborhood councils. To this the government is sympathetic although it feels that further study is required. But the task-men need not feel too depressed since another recommendation, now approved, will sanction extension of the Information Canada network to each of the main regions where offices will "strengthen, facilitate and co-ordinate the exchange of public information on federal programs."

It is interesting that the one recommendation which was rejected would have required Information Canada to perform the role of a public advocate in securing the greatest possible release of government information. According to Mr. Trudeau this role belongs more properly to Parliament. The techniques of denying information to Parliament have been thoroughly tried and tested as anyone may discover by perusihg answers to written questions or to motions for the production of papers in Hansard on Mondays and Wednesday.

Manipulation

The task force observed: "Since any strengthening of the government information apparatus involves the possibility of a government's manipulating public opinion, there must be a parallel strengthening of both Parliament and the public in the determination and review of government information policies."

It is obvious that Parliament was not consulted in the determination. How well it does on the review will depend on a future committee on which a government majority in the normal course, will be surveying the government's handiwork.

Even if all goes well enough to dispose of present opposition fears, the fact remains that an agency is being created which will be available to any future and unknown government.

There was much criticism of the proposal for Information Canada when the report of the task force was published; Enough, one would think, to induce the government to seek the views of a committee before committing itself to action. All this was disregarded. We live by participatory democracy whatever that may be. But policy comes first.

Letters to the Editor

Powerless?

As the old saw goes: just what kind of a railway are we running here in Canada?

Reference is made to a recent Ottawa-datelined story in which Resources Minister J. Greene reportedly said the federal government is "powerless" to enforce a ban or progressive reduction of phosphates in laundry detergents.

And yet the same federal government does have the power (and very quickly) to commit the entire nation to war ... complete with its death, destruction, almost overnight conversion of business and industry into a war machine ... and all at a cost measured in billions of dollars.

Powerless to ban phosphates? Phooey.

Maybe the "phight phosphates" campaign should be expanded to include battle with some "pheeble, inephective phederals".—Ray Wormald, 2522 Kilgary Pl.

Misrepresentation

Re the recent editorial in the Victoria Daily Times, quoting the cynical reply by Dennis McDermott, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers, to pleas for wage restraint— "if Canadian business-men want to hold prices for about ten years and let the rest of us catch up, that's fine."

Mr. McDermott is well aware that in the construction industry and in the auto industry labor now enjoys rates which are twice the cost of living rise in the last 20 years. It is bad leadership when labor leaders, to maintain their highly paid positions, are reduced to false statements.

The average worker is a decent, hard-working person, not given to falsehood. I pity their plight under such leadership. Economic disruption and unemployment must inevitably follow such irresponsible actions.—M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

Looking Back

From the Times of Feb. 19, 1910.

The presence of Oriental children in school with white lads and lassies was condemned by J. H. Porous Skies Over Egypt

By JAMES RESTON
From Cairo

PRESIDENT Gamel Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic is pressing the Soviet Union for MiG-23 fighter planes and technological aid to intercept the Israeli bombers that have been flying almost at will over this country, but he is hesitating about asking for Soviet pilots to join the Middle East war.

Reston

"This is a delicate question," he said in an interview at the presidential residence here last weekend.

"I have to think about that, but also I have to say something: If these air raids reach the industrial centres, this will not only be the industrial centres of Egypt; it will also be the industrial centres of Israel."

Nasser took an unyielding position against making any territorial concessions to Israel, and even dismissed a suggestion of limited cease-fires during Jewish and Moslem religious holidays.

When the recorded interview was over, he said that if Washington gave more Phantom planes to Israel — a question on which President Nixon has promised a decision by early March — the United States would lose its economic interests in the Arab world in less than two years.

Nasser also made the following points:

● He could not accept giving Israel one inch of Arab territory, he wanted peace but peace meant complete evacuation of the Israeli-occupied territories, including Jerusalem, a solution of the Palestinian refugee problem, and the creation of a non-fanatical multireligious Israeli state.

● After that, the recognition of Israel, the right of Israel to exist, the freedom of navigation in the Suez Canal, "then there will be peace." There will be no need of police forces, no need of demilitarized zones, because if "we solve the refugee problem, and Israel declares about the borders without expansion, there will be a solution."

● He is sure Israel wants more and more territory, not only everything she conquered in the 1967 war but more in the next generation.

● In June, 1967, he had no plan for attack on Israel. "We were not capable of attacking Israel at that time, because a big part of our army was in Yemen — about three divisions."

Tough but Quiet

Nasser seemed in good health, despite rumors that he is a diabetic who has shingles and circulatory disorders, his language was tough, but his manner quiet and even modest.

His major theme was that he had come to power to bring about the social reconstruction of his country, but that he had been diverted from this to the defence of Egypt through the aggressive ambitions of Israel, the faithlessness of the United States and Britain, and the determination of the Jews to poison the relations between Cairo and Washington.

Nasser was clearly fascinated by the military technology available to Israel through the United States, and quietly furious about the prospect of facing more new American Phantoms when, as he conceded, Israel already commanded the air over the Arab world.

"You know," he said, "when they attack us, for instance, they have electronic jamming against our radar. Then, before they attack, they have electronic reconnaissance. This gives pinpoint positions of the radar and the rockets and so forth.

"We called a Soviet group to study that and to tell about a solution and they told us about some solutions, but they didn't believe it at the beginning, the Soviets, when we told them that the Israelis had so and so."

Nasser added that he had not tried to get the newest Soviet fighter plane, the MiG-23, until two months ago, but he conceded that, even if Egypt did get these planes, they would not give him the striking power of the American Phantoms.

Phantom Effective

The Phantom airplane, he said, "can carry about seven tons of bombs and it is a long-range plane which can reach any part of our country and the MiG-23s are not like the Phantoms because the Phantom is a fighter-bomber and the MiG-23 is an interceptor, not a fighter-bomber.

As the interview went along it became paradoxical and even appeared contradictory. For on the one hand President Nasser was frank about Israel's superior military equipment technology, and support from the United States, and on the other hand he was openly defiant, not only of Israel but of the United States, and highly sensitive to any suggestion that his country might be backward and ineffective.

In giving his views on a settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute, the President said he thought the problem was simple.

"If everyone wants peace," he said, "we want peace. But what is peace to us? Peace means the complete evacuation of the occupied territory, including Jerusalem, and after that the recognition of Israel, the right of Israel to exist, the freedom of navigation in the Suez Canal. Then there will be peace."

Time and again, he referred to remarks by the Israeli Premier, Golda Meir, in a recent interview with this reporter.

It seemed to him to challenge the efficiency and dignity of his country. He challenged all her statements that the Arabs had attacked the Israelis in the past, and insisted that it was the other way around.

By STANLEY KARNOW

MANILA—The student ferment currently spreading here is probably the healthiest phenomenon to emerge in the Philippines since this sprawling archipelago gained its independence from the United States in 1946.

For in contrast to the demonstrations of recent years, which sought to whip up an ersatz nationalistic sentiment that had little real appeal, the present agitation is focused on authentic domestic issues.

In effect, the young Filipinos swirling through the streets of this tawdry city are challenging their country's currupt, inefficient and archaic social, economic and political institutions with the warning to reform while there is still time.

Implicit in their warning is the suggestion that the alternative to reform could be revolutionary violence of the kind that might bring on either a Communist or a rightwing bid for power, or perhaps a bloody struggle between those extremes.

A key question here at the moment, therefore, is whether the Philippine leaders have the flexibility to meet the rising demands for change—or whether they are too entrenched in their traditional ways to modernize.

This question is of particular relevance to the U.S., since an eventual breakdown of the Philippine version of democracy could conceivably tempt American involvement, maybe along the lines of the Johnson administration's intervention in the Dominican Republic.

Remote as that possibility now seems, establishment figures here nevertheless cling to the uncertain hope that Uncle Sam will bail them out if everything else fails.

The essential problem of the Philippines was summed up by Salvador de Madriaga, the Spanish philosopher, who observed during a visit here some years ago that a country can shake off foreign domination yet remain a colony of its own ruling elite.

This indigenous colonialism, then, is reflected in the fact that only 10 per cent of the Philippine population owns half the national resources. And the rich treat the poor as if they were a subjugated people.

A resident of a lavish Manila suburb like Forbes Park, for example, will spend more on an evening's entertainment than a farm family in central Luzon, where 70 per cent of the peasants are sharecroppers, can expect to earn in a lifetime.

Thus programs to distribute land or alleviate poverty are regularly proclaimed by presidents and passed into law by congress, and just as regularly relegated to oblivion under the pressure of groups seeking to perpetuate the status quo.

A form of internal colonialism also extends into politics as offfce-holders assume authority less to exercise public service than to reap private profits for themselves and their clans.

Hence the two Philippine political parties, the Nacionalistas and the Liberals, are actually factions of a single party dedicated to its own self-preservation. President Ferdinand Marcos, who formerly headed the Liberals, switched to the Nacionalistas in order to run for election in 1965.

This system of colonial privilege was condoned for years by the Philippine Catholic Church, which drew its inspiration from Spain and consequently regarded any attempts at liberalism as dangerously radical.

MARCOS

Over the past few years, however, a new awareness has developed largely among enlightened businessmen, educators and especially Jesuit priests, that a confined polarization of Philippine society would result in a cataclysm.

The efforts of these middle-class reformers were mainly limited to rhetoric until November, when Marcos was re-elected after a campaign whose dirtiness shocked even the most cynical observers of the dubious Philippine democratic process.

His electoral overkill, as it was dubbed, suddenly revealed all the graft and brutality of the system in grotesque relief. And the students, who had no vested interests to defend, became the expression of a revulsion that was widely felt.

Judging from his behavior since late last month, when a youth rally degenerated into the worst riot to occur here in 25 years, Marcos is clearly unable to comprehend the effervescence that has overtaken this city.

In conversations with visitors, he talks darkly of Communist subversion and assassination plots, as though the profound frustrations of Filipinos were somehow concoted by a handful of Maoist agents.

If Marcos cannot act rapidly, there are other Philippine leaders capable of seizing the chance to push through reforms. So, amid the threats of prolonged unrest are the opportunities for the changes this country so badly needs.

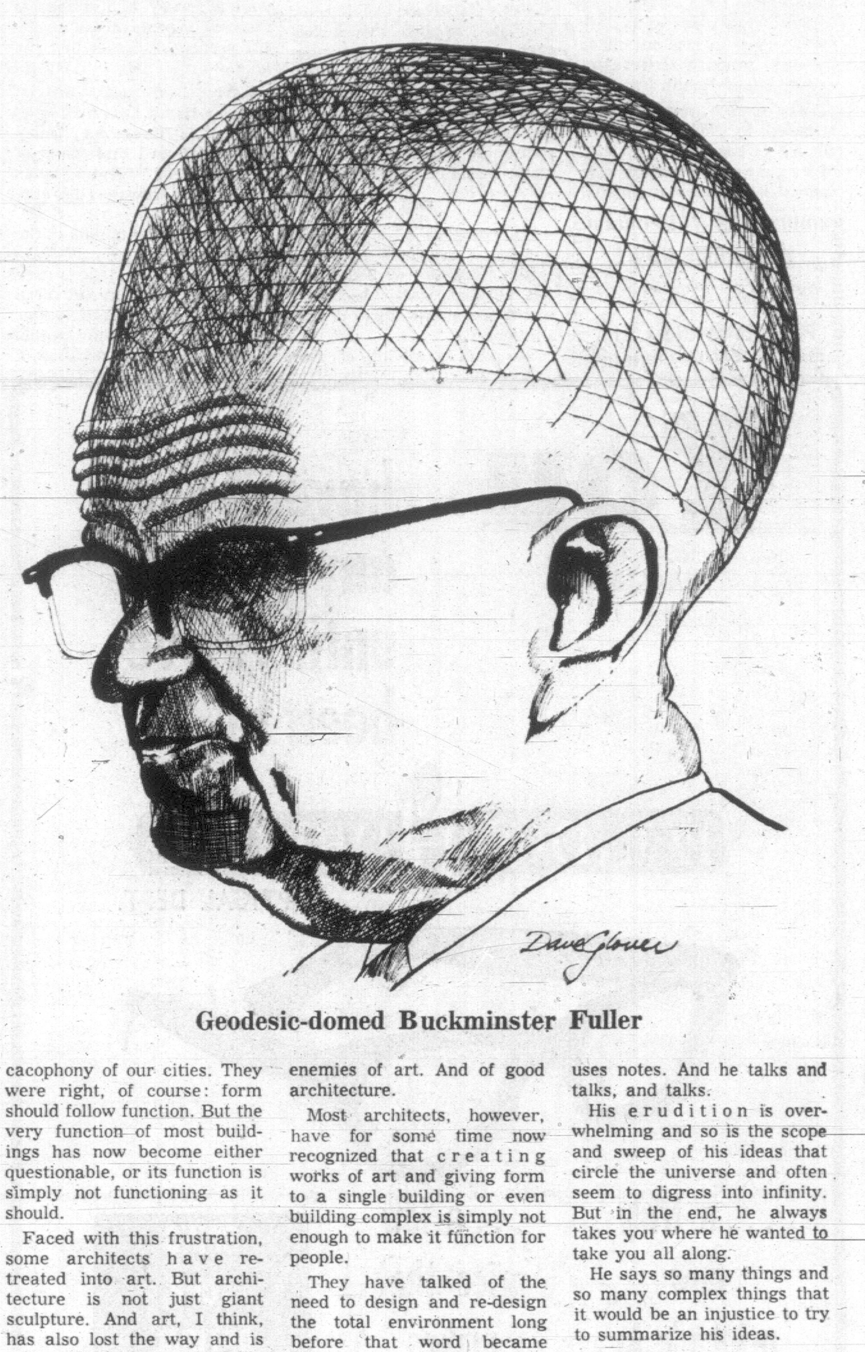
Traditional Architecture Becoming Irrelevant Now?

By WOLF VON ECKARDT



Dave Glover

Geodesic-domed Buckminster Fuller

It is an interesting comment on the current state of architecture that this year's gold medal of the American Institute of Architects will go to Buckminister Fuller.

"Bucky," as he is known in much of a world he has untiringly lectured for a decade or so, will get his medal at the AIA convention in Boston this June. What is surprising about the honor is that he is not an architect.

His famous domes, as well as his cymaxion houses, bathrooms, cars and other "livingry," as he puts it, are the product not of architectural design, but of scientific engineering. The designation "scientific engineer," however, fits Bucky no better than his crumpled suits.

Surely a man who keeps inventing new words—such as "geodesic," "dymaxion," or "synenergy"—to label his concepts deserves a new word to label the man.

I would call this synenergetic genius a "technosopher" because, in his unreadable books and fascinatingly lucid, four-hour lectures, he keeps developing a technological —yes, both technical and logical — philosophy that is spell-building, persuasive and optimistic.

Bucky's technosophy is also hardly architectural, at least in the accepted sense. In fact, like his geodesic dome, it is a form of anti-architecture.

And Bucky's implication that traditional architecture may be becoming irrelevant would seem to be confirmed by the fact that America's architects obviously could not find one of their own to give this year's gold medal to.

Dress Up Boxes

Have you seen any really good buildings lately?

I haven't. Not since Saarinen's Dulles Airport, Kallman - McKinnel Knowles' Boston City Hall, Safdie's Habitat '67 and Kevin Roche's Ford Foundation headquarters. And none of them, or any other building of our time, has remotely done for the urban scene what St. Paul's did for London.

The rest of our architecture of late has become mostly a matter of dressing up boxes designed for profit. And even public buildings that ought to delight us with the grandeur of our government or culture are only pulled out of political pork barrels.

To spread the gravy, the bureaucrats now pull out not one architect for each job, but a long list of names, such as you find in law firms and stockbroker offices.

The really great architects of our time have all received their gold medals by now. And even they, alas, have contributed only to the visual cacophony of our cities. They were right, of course: form should follow function. But the very function of most buildings has now become either questionable, or its function is simply not functioning as it should.

Faced with this frustration, some architects have retreated into art. But architecture is not just giant sculpture. And art, I think, has also lost the way and is more often than not deliberately and defiantly irrelevant to the needs of our spirit.

Perhaps, in the end, something will emerge from all the experimentation, permanent avantgardism and contrived accidents and happenings.

Reaffirm Humanity

But nothing much has emerged yet to reaffirm our humanity. Some artists are showing us different ways of perceiving things, but that can be done in high school physics.

We need art to perceive ourselves. Nor will laser beams or soup cans help. And art that is merely mesmerized by technology or revels in the vulgarity of our time only helps the technocrats and vulgarians. They are the enemies of art. And of good architecture.

Most architects, however, have for some time now recognized that creating works of art and giving form to a single building or even building complex is simply not enough to make it function for people.

They have talked of the need to design and re-design the total environment long before that word became popular.

But how? Where do you start?

Architecture students have become quite impatient about drawing shades and shadows and detailing facades. They are leading their campuses in the new concern for environmental sanity and they work in the ghettos to learn about and advocate a new, comprehensive community architecture, a better total environment.

And they listen to Buckminister Fuller.

Bucky is based at the Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, but he is constantly up in the air, logging about 250,000 miles a year to lecture at some 200 universities around the world.

There he stands, unpretentious and simple. He shuns lecterns if he can. He never uses notes. And he talks and talks, and talks.

His erudition is overwhelming and so is the scope and sweep of his ideas that circle the universe and often seem to digress into infinity. But in the end, he always takes you where he wanted to take you all along.

He says so many things and so many complex things that it would be an injustice to try to summarize his ideas.

Make World Work

What he is telling architects these days is that their specialization is leading them astray because "specialization precludes comprehensive thinking."

But with comprehensive thinking, he says "we have discovered a way to make the total world work." In the end, Bucky believes, the politicians will yield enthusiastically to reason and rational design, reinforced by computer data.

That still doesn't tell architects how and where to begin the design of the total environment. But Bucky's technosophoptimism may help take their minds off budgets and building codes and to get all of us over the worst of the doldrums.

Shrimps Stay-at-Homes

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL

Shrimps, lobsters and crayfish are among the better known decapods probably because most of them are edible and are fished commercially. As a group they are worldwide in distribution but each species tends to remain within its own geographic area for which it is adapted.

On our coast we have a number of representatives but only a few of them are utilized as food. At least five species of shrimp are regularly taken by commercial fishermen by means of trawl and trap and usually in protected waters. The various kinds have received descriptive names as follows:

Pink Shrimp—The most common species forming the basis for the industry. It is about four inches in length, generally pink in color and without stripes. It lives on muddy bottoms at depths ranging from 10 to 60 fathoms.

* * *

Humpback Shrimp — Possibly second in abundance, this shrimp is so named because the dorsal surface of the carapace is arch-shaped. In color the body is mottled with reddish-brown particularly on the abdomen. It may reach a length of six inches and is found in moderately deep water north to the Bering Sea.

Prawn or Spot Shrimp — The largest of the commercial shrimps sometimes attaining more than eight inches in length. A white spot on either side of the first and fifth segment of the abdomen distinguishes this shrimp from all others. Since prawns are usually found on rocky bottoms where trawls can not be used, traps are commonly employed for catching this species.

* * *

Side-stripe or Giant-red Shrimp — Second only to the prawn in size it may exceed seven inches in length. Red and white striping on the sides of the abdomen make it easy to recognize this crustacean. Since it prefers muddy bottom it can be captured by trawls in about 50 fathoms of water.

Coon-stripe Shrimp — The body is varying shades of brown and red with irregular striping on the abdomen. This shrimp likes sandy bottom where there is a good flow of current, consequently it is the one which is most abundant around southern Vancouver Island. Most of the year it remains in moderately deep water but in late summer there is a general movement of adults into shallow areas at which time large numbers take up residence under floats and around wharves where they become fair game for small boys with nets or a quick hand.

* * *

Of no commercial value but of passing interest are two other shrimp-like creatures that are often turned up by clam-diggers. The more common is the mud shrimp which looks like a miniature replica of a lobster and is sometimes mistaken for this crustacean.

It lives in a burrow excavated in muddy sand and feeds on organic matter filtered from the water which is circulated through the burrow. A two-inch fish called a goby, and a small pea-crab sometimes share the quarters with the rightful owner.

* * *

The second and often larger creature occasionally found in the same habitat is the ghost shrimp so named because of its pale, almost translucent appearance. It has a more elongated body than does its cousin the mud shrimp and one claw is enormously developed especially in the male so that it practically fills the entrance to the burrow like a plug.

On the Atlantic coast both mud shrimps and ghost shrimps are used extensively by sport fishermen as bait but on this coast these creatures are not so utilized.

Treat Shawnigan Lake Water Recommends Health Report

NORTH COWICHAN — All drinking water taken from Shawnigan Lake should be treated, says a water quality study report carried out under backing from Central Vancouver Island Health Unit.

The survey results were released to North Cowichan council Wednesday by Ald. Margaret Robertson, the council's representative and former chairman of the health unit.

Mrs. Robertson said conclusions support the belief that application of sewage disposal regulations that were imposed have succeeded in preventing contamination of the lake to a point where swimming or drinking of the water would be dangerous.

●

"However, a significant number of residents get their water elsewhere or boil it as the surface water becomes warm and grows algae in the summer."

She said sampling of the water in the two-square-mile lake was carried out together with a survey of the sewage disposal arrangements of the 425 premises surrounding the lake.

Early last year, district director David Laverock complained to Cowichan Valley Regional Board that many of the homes' septic tanks leaked raw sewage into the lake.

Situated in the middle of the southern quarter of Vancouver Island, the lake is used essentially as a resort area but is also the domestic water supply for most of the people living around it. In addition, a creek leading from the lake supplies water to residents of Mill Bay.

Mrs. Robertson said 10 sampling stations took three samples each at the surface, at a depth of six feet and at 25 feet. A total of 268 water samples were taken and nine samples from each beach.

●

Samples also were taken for the presence of detergents on three separate occasions, but tests were negative in all instances, she said.

"The picture is good at present but could change with increasing habitation around the lake. Vigilance in applying the regulations on sewage disposal should not be relaxed."

●

In addition to the health unit staff, additional manpower was provided by the health branch. C. R. Stonehouse of Victoria, who conducted the survey, was assisted by two trainee health inspectors, N. D. Clarkson and H. W. Pratt.

Douglas Roe, public health inspector at Duncan, gave background information.

'Sell Voters' Maple Bay Firemen Told

NORTH COWICHAN — Ald. Tom Burge said Wednesday all obstacles "except for the vote" had been cleared and a $30,000 bylaw for a new firehall for Maple Bay Fire District could be prepared for April.

Burge said architects who earlier prepared sketch plans for $60,000 building which had been turned down because it was too expensive, now agreed that a building with a less-completed interior could be erected for about $50,000.

Recreational facilities upstairs could be left for volunteers to complete and the full price would include architects fees and other costs.

Clerk A. Vandecasteyen said the $20,000 contribution from the municipality could be raised through local improvement at 7½ per cent.

Burge advocated that the firemen "get out and sell" now that all the obstacles except the vote were out of the way.

NORTH COWICHAN WARNED

'Don't Be Land Deal Pawn'

NORTH COWICHAN — Ald. Dennis Hogan said Wednesday North Cowichan council should avoid becoming "pawns in a speculative land deal" before granting contingent approval to a zoning change in Crofton area.

L. T. Campbell, owner of a motel, appeared before council to request that the owner of an adjacent lot near Chaplin St. and Crofton Rd. be required to post a performance bond before zoning was changed from rural to commercial.

Council did not go along with the demand for a bond but agreed that the owner stick to his stated purpose of erecting a 60 by 100 foot building to house a combination grocery and cafe.

Campbell, who once owned the lot, said that building of a noisy or noxious enterprise would disturb tenants and ruin his business. A cafe-grocery would be an asset, however.

Mayor Gerry Smith said the danger was that without a specific ruling on what was built and without "spot zoning" the owner could change his mind once the lot was zoned commercially.

"We were caught like that once before."

Campbell was suspicious of the motives of the lot owner who had posted for sale signs on the property since the application for a zoning change.

A. Vandecasteyen confirmed that a photographer had taken pictures of the signs for the municipality.

Ald. Don Morton said Crofton could use the extra business but it would bear watching.

PARTY LABELS ON BALLOTS CONSIDERED

OTTAWA (CP) — A proposal to include party affiliation on federal election ballots has been approved by the Commons privileges and elections committee.

The committee also decided Tuesday night to eliminate mention of occupation and addresses of candidates on the ballot.

The recommendations will go to the Commons in a report suggesting changes to the Canada Elections Act.

The 11 members at the meeting voted unanimously for the proposal on party affiliation made by Les Benjamin (NDP—Regina-Lake Centre).

Crime Prevention Beats Jail—Ney

The British Columbia government was urged Wednesday to put more emphasis on prevention of crimes by young people through the establishment of a social development planning commission.

The move, suggested by Frank Ney (SC—Nanaimo) would see a new deal for young first-time offenders who now are sent to correctional institutions.

Ney said the governments of New York and Alberta have established divisions of youth, which he described as preventive programs for first-time offenders which have had "extraordinary results.

★ ★ ★

Under the plans, mainly concerned with offenders aged 15 to 17, youth centres are established in order to prevent delinquency.

Juveniles in trouble with the law spend a short time in supervised residences and receive intensive counselling on a group basis.

In some cases the youth may live at home and undertake a study program.

The young people are also put to work on projects such as reforestation.

Mr. Ney said that under the schemes, nine out of 10 youths never return to the courts. A similar plan in B.C. would be cheaper in the long run than present incarceration methods, he said.

ASKS INDEPENDENT TRIBUNAL

Check Rates Again—UBCM

The Union of B.C. Municipalities has formally asked Premier Bennett to submit proposed electricity rate increases to an independent tribunal.

In a letter to the premier, UBCM president Hugh Curtis, the mayor of Saanich, said this would be of benefit to government, B.C. Hydro and the people.

Curtis said if the necessity for increased rates was clearly proved to be inevitable, then consideration by an independent tribunal "would make such a step much more readily acceptable by the public."

He referred to a meeting last January between a small delegation from the UBCM and B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Gordon Shrum.

"Dr. Shrum discussed openly and frankly with us, and at some length, his concern over the decreasing profit figure of the authority and his reasons for recommending that an increase in power rates should no longer be delayed," he said.

"He showed us certain tables and projected calculations, couched in very general terms, to support his statements.

"We told Dr. Shrum that we were of course in no position to debate his figures or conclusions but we urged him to recommend to the provincial government that, before any decision is made unilaterally on rates, the authority should present its case in public before an independent tribunal so that the residents of British Columbia may clearly understand the accomplishments of the authority in recent years, its responsibilities in the immediate future and what must be done to assure its financial stability."

March 3 Target Date For Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Wednesday he hopes to bring down the federal budget Tuesday, March 3.

Replying to questions by Marcel Lambert (PC-Edmonton West), Mr. Benson said he expects to table the budget papers and other documents some time next week.

March 3 is a target date, Mr. Benson said, and he did not want to commit himself too firmly at this time.

The government announced earlier it plans a budget early in March.

Classes Halted

EDMONTON (CP) — Classroom operations have been suspended at the Janvier Newstart mobile centre because of the resignation of four teachers. Jack Shields, executive director of Alberta Newstart Inc., said Wednesday the teachers complained about the hostile atmosphere in the town, 250 miles northeast of Edmonton.

CALLS FOR TOUGH PROVINCIAL LAWS

Hit Oil Spillers, Guilty or Not, Urges Ney

Tough legislation making oil companies responsible for spillage at sea, regardless of cause, was urged in the legislature Wednesday.

Frank Ney (SC—Nanaimo) made the plea after pointing out that the state of California had passed such a law in the wake of the Santa Barbara oil disaster "making the oil company responsible whether or not they are at fault or whether it is an act of God, and this applies to both tankers and to drilling."

He said a tanker that sank last week off the east coast of Canada was only 11,000 tons.

"A new 300,000-ton tanker, if shipwrecked on the west coast or in the Gulf of Georgia, would create a disaster in this area 30 times larger, and I remind you there have been two large ships break up on the west coast in the last two years."

He said provincial legislation is required because even if offshore waters are federal territory, "when the oil hits the land it is provincial territory.

"I submit the identical legislation should be brought in to give this province the same protection that the Americans have felt necessary in their own country this past year," Ney said.

Asked by a New Democrat for his stand on oil-drilling in the Gulf of Georgia, Ney said: "No drilling."

He also urged that installation of holding tanks on B.C. Ferries vessels operating out of Nanaimo be considered; if economically feasible, to prevent sewage dumping in Nanaimo harbor.

He called for a provincial fisheries department, urged tough legislation to discourage dumping of automobile wrecks on public lands, suggested once-a-week televising of legislative debates and defended the forest industry in B.C. as the highest taxed of its kind in North America.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Higher Prices Continue

Wednesday's rally continued into today as gains were marked up on both the Toronto and New York markets.

The Toronto market opened fractionally lower but turned around in the first hour of trading.

The New York market posted a sharp gain in early trading but cut its advance in later dealings.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Dome Pete was up 2¼ to 85, Kenting 1½ to 15¼, Falconbridge 1¼ to 173¼ and Shaw Pipe 1 to 14.

TransCanada Pipe Lines was down 1⅜ to 25½, Electrohome 1⅛ to 32½, Imperial Oil ¼ to 20¾ and Atlantic Sugar ¼ to 8¼.

Conwest was up 1 to 14 and Dynasty ½ to 13. Mattagami slipped ½ to 29⅜.

Great Plains was up 1¼ to 29¼, Scurry Rainbow 1¼ to 26¾ and Asamera ⅝ to 17⅝.

AT NEW YORK, brokers said investors apparently were responding to statements which they interpreted as indicating a forthcoming relaxation of monetary controls.

Oils, which advanced on Wednesday after having been depressed for some time, maintained a portion of their early gains. Advances near the close included Jersey Standard ⅞ to 53¾, Phillips Petroleum 1⅜ to 21⅞, Texaco ¾ to 26⅛, and Gulf ½ to 25¼.

AT MONTREAL trading was moderately active today as the stock market moved higher in all sectors.

Falconbridge was up 2 to 174, Inco ⅞ to 46½, Placer Development 1 to 45 on an 800-share trade, and Pacific Petroleum ⅜ to 30½.

Velcro Industries slipped 1 to 32.

Among Canadian Stock Exchange industrials, Superpack was down ¾ to 19¼ while Sogena gained ¼ to 14.

AT LONDON prices generally advanced in early trading today following Wednesday's climb on Wall Street but many of the gains were lost in late dealings on the stock exchange.

British funds were marked down following initial firmness. Buyers came in at the lower levels, however, and most issues regained their losses.

Dollar stocks were firm, reflecting the Wall Street rise.

Dome, 7 points up, led Canadians higher. Others to firm included Pacific Pete, Imperial Oil, Hiram Walker, Noranda, Massey-Ferguson and Consolidated Bathurst. Banks were also firm.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was light and prices were mixed as the stock exchange reported a volume of 1,045,017 shares to 11 a.m.

In the industrials, Captain International was unchanged at $3.35 after trading 3,000 shares. Driver Development was up .03 to .90, and Wardair was down .25 to $1.45.

In the oils, Ponderay was unchanged at $1.50 after trading 5,000 shares and Share was up .04 to .27. United Bata Resources was unchanged at $3.30.

In the mines, Kopan Development was up .03 at .27 after trading 171,500 shares. New Territorial was unchanged at .20 and Norcan was down .02 to .43.

BUSINESS and FINANCE

Editor: G. S. Kent

Alcan

Aluminum Co. of Canada Ltd. has filed a registration statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission covering an issue of $100 million (U.S.) sinking fund debentures due in 1995.

Underwriters are headed by First Boston Corp. and Morgan Stanley and Co. for Canadian and U.S. distribution.

The issue may not be redeemed for refunding prior to March 1, 1980. A sinking fund will be opened in 1981 calculated to retire 91 per cent of the issue before maturity.

Burrard

Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. is exercising its option to convert the balance of outstanding convertible preferred shares to common shares effective March 16, on the basis of one-for-one.

By letters patent last year the company decided to eliminate preferred shares of the company and invited shareholders to submit their holdings for conversion to common shares.

Of 250,000 originally issued and outstanding, more than 90 per cent of the preferred shares were converted by their holders.

Silknit

A drop of 68 cents per common share on the estimated net earnings of Silknit Ltd. last year is attributed to lower levels of activity in some products and sharply rising costs.

The company reports sales of $11.7 million against $10.9 million and earnings per share of $1.95 and $2.63, respectively.

Scurry-Rainbow

Scurry-Rainbow Oil Ltd. earned $253,000 during the three months ended Dec. 31, a decrease from $351,000 during the period a year earlier.

Operating revenue increased three per cent to $1.8 million, but depletion, depreciation and other charges increased by 25 per cent to $866,000.

Crude il production increased, while sales of natural gas dropped slightly.

Columbia

Preparation work for the production of concentrates at its silver-lead-zinc property at Ferguson in the Lardeau district is being pressed by Columbia Metals Corp. Ltd.

The Toronto-based company looks for mill start-up in April after three years of development work on 44 claims. Prior to that 8,386 feet of underground development was carried out with a view to extracting high-grade ore.

Mill construction was due to start this month, using ore from open pit and underground operations.

IBM Canada

IMB Canada Ltd. announces gross revenue for the 12 months ending Dec. 31, 1969 was $348.9 million compared to $273 million. For the year ended Dec. 31, 1968, up 28 per cent.

Included in gross revenue for 1969 were exports of $56.8 million compared with exports in 1968 of $41 million, an increase of 39 per cent.

TEMPORARILY high and dry, workmen install rubber dock fenders on 40-foot dolphin in Lake Erie. On completion of a job a protective cofferdam will be removed and site flooded. Used for mooring ships dolphin is one of several at Ontario Hydro's thermal generating site at Nanticoke, Ont. Dock fenders are 24 feet long and weigh a ton each.

Power Corp. Acquires Control of Investors

MONTREAL (CP) — Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. has acquired the controlling interest in the Investors Group of Winnipeg, it was announced Wednesday night.

The Investors Group holds the controlling interest in the Great-West Life Assurance Co. of Winnipeg.

The announcement said that, through a 1,028,400-share transaction with Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd., Power Corporation's holdings of Investors common shares were increased to 3,272,080 or 50.3 per cent of the outstanding shares.

Canadian Pacific Investments received common shares of Northern and Central Gas Corp. Ltd., preferred shares of Consolidated-Bathurst Ltd. and an amount of cash.

Investors now is going through a reorganization which will make Investors Syndicate Ltd., its wholly-owned subsidiary, a self-contained company to sell investors mutual funds, investment certificates, pension plans and policies of Great-West Life Assurance Co.

A new company, Investors Securities Management Co., is being formed to handle the investing function while the parent firm will act as a holding company.

The Investors group acquired controlling interest of Great-West Life last year. Collectively the firms have about $3 billion of assets under management.

$110 Million Tag On 2 Pipelines

OTTAWA (CP) — A spokesman for Consolidated Pipelines Ltd. of Calgary said Wednesday contracts totalling $110,000,000 have been signed with Canadian companies for construction of two proposed natural gas pipelines.

Rocco LoChiano, vice-president of corporate engineering and research for Northern Natural Gas Ltd. of Omaha, Neb., Consolidated's parent company, told a National Energy Board gas export hearing that contracts have been signed with companies in four provinces for construction of an 875-mile, 36-inch pipeline from Empress, Alta., to North Branch, Minn., and a 144-mile, 16-inch line from south of Swift Current, Sask,, to Havre, Mont.

"So far our company has let contracts for pipe and other transmission facilities amounting to $55,000,000 in Ontario, $28,000,000 in Saskatchewan, $13,000,000 in Alberta, $10,000,000 in Quebec and $4,000,000 not classified by province."

CONDITIONAL

Under questioning by George Finlayson, counsel for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. of Toronto, LoChiano said all contracts are conditional upon approval of Consolidated's current application for a pipeline construction certificate.

He noted that all engineering work on both pipelines has been completed and said construction work could begin immediately.

"If we are able to start construction by July, we are confident that the new system can be put in service before the end of this year."

LoChiano estimated a one-year delay in construction would result in additional costs of about $8,000,000, but said this could be covered by the company's $11,000,000 contingency fund.

"While we hope to be able to avoid the extra costs involved in winter construction, a delay would not provide an insuperable obstacle to our project."

REED GROUP SWEETENS OFFER TO IPC

LONDON (Reuters) — The Reed paper group announced Wednesday it is adding %7,000,000 (about $18,200,000) to its offer for the giant International Publishing Corp., Britain's biggest press empire.

The revised offermakes the takeover bid worth %127,000,000 (about $330,220,000), one of the largest in British business history.

Hugh Cudlipp, chairman of IPC, said his directors now are unanimous in their approval of the new terms, which will be put t shareholders.

Scotia Bank Has New President

TORONTO (CP) — A. H. Crockett, 53, has been appointed president of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Crockett succeeds F. William Nicks, 63, who remains as the bank's chairman and chief executive officer. Mr. Crockett, a native of Westville, N.S., was formerly chief general manager of the bank and is president of the Canadian Bankers Association.

The appointment was made at a meeting of the board of directors Tuesday. At the same time it was announced T. A. Boyles, 64, had been appointed to the newly-created post of chairman of the executive committee. He is deputy chairman of the board and executive vice-president.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Loss of Records Costly

(This is a service of the Times and of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia).

By EDGAR DOWNEY, C.A.

Loss of records by fire almost alwyas causes problems which are just as severe as the loss of the plant and equipment in the same fire.

Furthermore, the actual financial loss which ensues from the destruction of records is frequently under-insured. The standard "books of account" fire insurance provides coverage for the actual materials of papers, cards, ect. and for the cost of transcribing. the recorded information. It does not cover the loss arising from the lack of the information which has been burned up in a fire.

For example, if the records of amounts owning to the business from customers is lost it may never be possible to find out who owed how much. Most customers would no doubt cooperate and pay the correct amount according to the customers' own records, but some would "forget" and that forgotten amount would be an uninsured loss.

On the other hand, the record of amounts owning by the business to suppliers will not be lost in a fire because the supplier will undoubtedly send another statement of the account if it is not paid.

COST HIGH

The cost of carrying full coverage for the whole risk of losses arising from destroyed records may be relatively high compared with the cost of a fireproof filing cabinet which might really prevent any such loss from occurring.

However, it is one thing to have a fireproof cabinet but it is useless unless it is in fact, used to store valuable records. So often fireproof files are filled with old records which should be transferred to some low-cost storage space while, at the same time, current accounts are kept in wood cupboards because the safe space is filled, or they are left out on top of desks because it is too much trouble to put them away.

There are further benefits of having fireproof filing cabinets and ensuring that they are, in fact, used. The weekly or daily search for those mislaid papers would be substantially reduced if all important papers are always filed daily in their proper place.

So, it may not be practical to insist that all filing must be done before the filing clerk leaves for the day; but it is practical to provide a special fireproof space for the unfiled papers to be placed temporarily until thery can be properly filed the next day.

Insurance is still a very necessary protection against loss but, just like medicine, prevention is so much better than a cure, and usually more economical too.

COMMONS TAKING ACTION

Rebirth of Controversial CYC Nears

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Rebirth of the Company of Young Canadians came closer, or loomed, as critics might say, Wednesday as the Commons passed a bill that all but destroys the 1966 creation.

Rene Matte (Creditiste — Champlain) predicted that CYC 1970 will be no better than its controversial predecessor. Mr. Matte said it will continue to tread on provincial and municipal toes and argued for destruction of the federal agency altogether.

The old company has been in the hands of comptroller Max Mendelsohn since December, after a Commons inquiry found the free-wheeling CYC to be chaotic financially, mixed up administratively, and bordering on subversion in some of its aggressive projects.

The CYC council, composed of 10 members elected by volunteers and five appointed by government, has all but broken up since the Mendelsohn trusteeship and introduction of the bill to reorganize the company.

The bill provides for a council of seven to nine members, all appointed by cabinet.

VOLUNTEERS NIXED

State Secretary Gerard Pelletier told MPs he doesn't intend to appoint any field volunteers to the new council to avoid the conflicts of interest alleged in the old one.

Robert McCleave (PC—Halifax-East Hants) and Mark Rose (NDP—Fraser Valley West) moved amendments to give volunteers a minority position on the council.

Mr. McCleave said he feels the CYC should be disbanded and a new start made. However, if the government intended to continue the experiment, field volunteers should have a voice in its direction.

"Volunteers are the guts of the CYC," Mr. McCleave said, adding that if he could lop 25 or 30 years off his age, he would become one.

His amendment was defeated 98 to 72, as was a similar one by Mr. Rose. His amendment to allow CYC volunteers to work overseas was defeated 141 to 17.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 153, PC 72, NDP 22, Creditiste 14, Independent 2, vacant 1.

REINS TIGHTEN

The bill, which now must pass the Senate, will turn the company into a Crown corporation, more accountable for its $1,900,000 budget and tighter administratively.

The Commons today will debate a Creditiste motion, probably on dairy policy. Adrien Lambert (Creditiste—Bellechasse) Wednesday tabled a petition by 25,000 farmers, (his count) asking for a debate on the subject.

The CYC debate pointed up ambivalent federal feelings about the agency. Members tended to want to kill it and defend it too.

David Orlikow (NDP—Winnipeg North), a harsh critic of the CYC before, criticized Mr. Pelletier for not allowing a minority of volunteers on the council.

J. Patrick Nowlan (PC—Annapolis Valley) said the CYC certainly won't be the creature former prime minister Lester Pearson created in 1966.

Grace MacInnis (NDP—Vancouver-Kingsway) said volunteers will be "tame cats, not tom cats" from now on.

But Mr. Pelletier said the CYC is getting more applications than ever, from persons with more education and experience.

In the Senate Wednesday, Senator Chesley Carter (L—Newfoundland) said the federal government will have to become more directly involved in education, primarily a provincial responsibility under the British North America Act.

He said the present system of having different curricula, grade systems, teacher training and teacher certification in each province could only be wasteful and inefficient.

Speaking in debate on a proposed amendment to the Student Loans Act, Senator Carter, Senator Paul Yuzyk (PC—Manitoba) and Senator Muriel Fergusson (L—New Brunswick) said they support the bill, which later received second reading and was sent to committee. It already has been passed by the Commons.

The amendment sets a basic loan provision for 1970-71 of $115,000,000, a 15-per-cent increase over the current year. It extends to trust, loan and insurance companies the right to grant loans now only made by banks.

Sinatra Charges Dismissed

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Contempt charges filed against Frank Sinatra were dismissed Wednesday following the singer's appearance Tuesday night before a state crime commission investigating underworld activities in New Jersey.

Acting at the request of Sinatra's lawyer, Edward Feinberg, and with the concurrence of the state investigation commission, Superior Court Judge Frank Kingfield dismissed the contempt citations brought by the commission and a warrant that had been issued for Sinatra's arrest.

Feinberg said Sinatra had "fully and completely answered all questions put by the commission."

Austerity Hits National Parks

By STUART LAKE

OTTAWA (CP) — Campers who can't wait to pitch their tents in their favorite national park may have to wait a little longer than usual for them to open this summer.

Austerity has hit the budget for the parks and a shorter season could be the answer to save shrinking funds, said parks branch director J. I. Nicol in an interview Wednesday.

"Instead of opening some parks say June 1, we may have to wait until June 15," he said.

He said the branch has discarded the idea of closing the parks two days a week in light of a poor experience of this in the United States.

LIST CUTS

The budget for the operations and maintenance of existing parks is down by $545,000 this year from last.

The department says the reduction will have the following effects:

—Reduced hours of operation and shorter operating seasons may have to be considered for many national park facilities.

—Snow plowing and dust control on park roads may have to be curtailed.

—Major fish stocking programs, planned for the Atlantic parks, will be postponed indefinitely.

—Maintenance of buildings and facilities will be kept at a minimum. In some cases, because of age or rundown condition, facilities may have to be closed.

BUSINESS BOOMS

The reductions come at a time when visitors to the parks are increasing at the rate of 10 per cent a year. There more than 12,000,000 visitors to the parks in 1969.

"As this trend is expected to continue, greater demands will be put on roads, campgrounds and other park facilities," the branch says.

But the increased costs of maintenance and operations will have to come from a reduced budget.

In the historic parks, in addition to reduced hours, the branch says it will have to consider hiring only half of the 107 guides it had on staff in 1969.

"Austerity will cause a postponement of development of 16 major national historic sites; reduce work-in progress on 25 national historic sites; and in some cases, prolong projects beyond the original five-year program schedule," says the branch.

They've Done It Themselves . . . Carved Home, Future in Valley

By JOHN MIKA
Times Staff

FORT ST. JOHN — Drive north from here on the Alaska Highway, which splits the cold plateau into frost-coated forests stretching on either hand to the crystallized horizon, until you pass Mile 94.

Then turn off and descend the westward-winding coulee sideroad for another 28 snowy miles until you come to the Halfway River Reserve.

You have arrived in a new New World.

It is being created by 18 families of the Hudson Hope Indian band who have two things going for them — their own resourcefulness and an development of human resources.

"Just eight years ago they came out of the bush as trappers who couldn't read or write, understood little English and nothing about mechanics and only had contact with whites when trading furs," said Don Sheppard, superintendent of the far-flung northern B.C. Indian Affairs agency.

"Today they own and operate the most sophisticated machinery, have done well in wheat growing but are now building up a prize herd — worth $60,000 already — because they figure there's more return from grain when it's converted into high-priced beef.

"They have an operating income with a little help from oil leases, although there's no wells on their reservation — of about $45,000 a year.

"But the new farm is the coming thing. This year it brought in $25,000 in new money and in a couple of years, when they can really start cashing in on the feed lot operation they're developing, it should bring in ten time that much — $250,000.

"And only eight years ago they came in out of the bush.

"But they've done it all themselves."

Sheppard says it was slow starting and although he doesn't put it into words specifically, his story implies that the Indians' main problem was the Indian Affairs branch.

"I used to spend hours at a time out here discussing things with them and telling them what I thought they should do and they'd agree. Next time the same thing came up, they'd say no.

"You'd never know what they wanted, or so it seemed.

"I used to keep one of my men here full-time until a couple of years ago and we just made slow progress. He wound up doing all the work for them.

"Instead of them learning how to do welding to repair machines, he would do it because he was there, knew how and naturally they just waited for him to fix things.

"Then I pulled him out. I told him to show them how to do things and only visit once or twice a week. Let them tackle things and learn by their own mistakes.

"Well they've been doing fine ever since.

"If all reserves in B.C. had progressed as fast as these people have, we'd be closing down Indian Affairs agencies by now."

Sheppard will be transferred to the Cowichan Agency at Duncan in April where he will undertake the department's new role of chief development officer, doing the work full time that he was only able to do sporadically here as a desk-bound administrator.

White Brother To Tribe

Indian agency superintendent who has worked hard at transforming himself from "Great White Father" to just plain white brother.

The reservation's 10,000-acre bottom land is surrounded by old-fashioned frontier development:

Trucks rumble along the highway to the east, the massive monument of the W. A. C. Bennett dam rises only 50 miles to the southwest, bush planes buzz low overhead, jet trails streak the stratosphere, and up on the plateau flare pits hiss and glare in obscenely destructive dances wasting the byproducts from the efficient grid of oil wells sucking the land dry.

Down here in the valley there's a low-keyed bustle of sound and movement which masks the new frontier with familiarity:

A chain saw sputters in the frigid air, tractors chug over the white fields from a large new barn to lowing cattle in a feed lot, a hammer clinks in a machine shop, a campfire snaps and crackles beside a moosehide - draped tanning tepee.

But these people, 96 children and adults, are pushing beyond the cliches of pioneering into a new frontier —

8 Years Ago They Couldn't Even Write

They Learn Through Their Mistakes

The reserve still is primitive in many ways. Although several tractors, mobile farm implements and trucks are owned by the band, none have cars.

There is no electricity for all the millions of kilowatts being generated a few miles away for the distant Vancouver market but the teacher's home and small schoolhouse has a diesel generator so the 27 children have good lighting and even television.

Television is an exceptionally useful tool in teaching the youngsters what the white world is like without the corrosion of discrimination, and the school's set gives entertainment to the whole community in the evenings.

But Sheppard feels the Indian children, whom he expects to do even better than their parents in making their own world within the white environment, would be better served by integrating their school.

A dozen white children of pioneering families further up the valley now are bussed into Fort St. John's schools but Sheppard thinks everyone would benefit if the Halfway River Reserve school were made public so that the larger Indian and white enrolment would bring improved facilities and more teachers. So far, the whites haven't agreed.

The band was visited by Health and Welfare Minister John Munro — accompanied by officials and reporters over the weekend.

Munro dropped in unexpectedly — even Sheppard had only a couple of hours warning in Fort St. John before driving the party to the remote valley.

Munro visited the drug dispensary in the teacherage, asked the two band councillors if they had any complaints or problems in getting medical treatment.

In response to requests, he decided to look into the possibility of supplying a radio-telephone and increasing the monthly visits by a government nurse.

The councillors showed him their plainly-furnished, clean homes but for the first time in his northern tour he encountered an independence, however shy, which reminded him that he was only a guest despite his prominence.

"I don't think so because we have the family getting ready for supper," a tall Indian replied with dignity when asked if the crowd of visitors could look inside his house.

Minister Encounters Independence

Finally, Alice Meteach, a middle-aged woman who had missed a departmental course for training community health workers this year, had a ready reply when the health minister of Canada and his assistants drove over to her home to urge her to show up for next three-month course near Vancouver.

"Okay, but are you guys going to pay my board?"

Rules Changed

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government Wednesday introduced legislation to allow municipalities to sell property for low-income housing projects at less than the actual market value.

Under present legislation municipalities must adhere to current market prices in selling land to protect private enterprise.

Municipal affairs minister Fred Colborne, outside the legislature, said the amendment to the municipal government act is designed to deal with the present situation of inflated land values.

Rapeseed Problem

WINNIPEG (CP) — Farmers and the trade should get geared this year to moving Western Canada's largest-ever rapeseed crop and at "relatively low prices," A. M. Runciman, president of United Grain Growers, said today.

Runciman said in an address to the annual meeting of the Rapeseed Association of Canada that expanding world production means prices will drop from 1969 levels even if Canadian farmers grow less than last year's 37,000,000 bushels.

Dairies to Lose

CALGARY (CP) — A Public Utilities Board hearing into an application for higher wholesale milk prices was told Wednesday provincial dairies would incur losses during the year if an increase was not granted.

Thatcher Hints at Election

REGINA (CP) — Premier Thatcher Wednesday alluded to the possibility of a general provincial election in Saskatchewan but declined to indicate just when the election likely would be called.

Reporting to the legislature on the federal-provincial conference that wound up Tuesday in Ottawa, the premier said federal officials had raised hopes of bigger foreign wheat sales that would give Saskatchewan a boost.

He added:

"If that's so, maybe we can have that election after all."

The New Democratic Party opposition, with 25 seats in the 59-seat legislature, greeted the hint with vigorous table-thumping. The Liberals, in office since 1964, hold 34.

Thatcher did not elaborate in the legislature and, when questioned outside the assembly by reporters, said only that NDP members had referred earlier in the session to election possibilities.

The last general provincial election in Saskatchewan was in 1967 and in theory the next one could be as late as 1972. Last June, the NDP gained a seat from the Liberals with a byelection win in Kelvington.

Thatcher said the provincial delegation had outlined an 11-point program on agriculture at the two-day federal-provincial conference, and he was optimistic that at least part of the program would be adopted by the federal government "before seeding time."

Alberta Hits 40 Below

Temperatures in northeastern Alberta plunged to near 40 below this morning as the last of the current series of Arctic high pressure areas crossed the province.

By Friday a major breakthrough of mild Pacific air is expected to bring moderation to all regions and light snow across the far north.

Manitobans enjoyed mostly sunny weather today although there was considerable drifting snow. More cloud is expected to move in tonight, with snowflurries early Friday morning forecast. High today and low tonight in Winnipeg is 5 below and 15 below.

SWIFT CURRENT WOMAN 103

SWIFT CURRENT, Sask. (CP) — Esther Bateman, one of Saskatchewan's oldest residents, celebrated her 103rd birthday Wednesday.

Mrs. Bateman was born in Charlottetown Feb. 18, 1867 and moved to Hannah, N.D., and then to Saskatchewan in 1917.

She has three sons and five daughters still living, along with 57 grandchildren, 130 great-grandchildren and 38 great-great-grandchildren.

E & N Improvement Urged by Mayors

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Promotion and expansion of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo passenger train service as a Vancouver Island centennial project was jointly proposed Wednesday by Mayor Courtney Haddock and Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney.

The E & N, owned by Canadian Pacific, operates the Dayliner — the only possenger rail service on the Island.

The company has an application before the federal transport commission requesting permission to discontinue the service, but the move is strongly opposed by Island municipalities.

STUDY SOUGHT

The mayors said if the passenger service was upgraded it would become a major tourist attraction and an efficient mode of transportation for Island residents.

They made the proposal at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau in Nanaimo.

Mayor Haddock, who traveled to Nanaimo aboard the dayliner with Victoria members of the VIP Bureau, was so impressed with the scenic trip he suggested a feasibility study into improving the service.

Pending completion of a study, he said, Island municipalities during centennial year should undertake to promote the dayliner and seek improvements to the service.

The mayor said the service could be made to pay if there were more frequent runs, lower fares and more comfortable accommodation.

The dayliner makes a round trip once a day between Victoria and Courtenay — a distance of 280 miles.

Mayor Ney said there should be a northbound and southbound passenger train running daily.

"There should be no talk of discontinuing this service," he said. "It should be extended to the north of the Island. It would become one of the big attractions of Vancouver Island."

SPLENDID VIEW

Interest mounted when the dayliner started to climb the Malahat, affording the group a splendid view of Saanich Inlet and Mount Finlayson.

Passengers held their breath when it crawled slowly over the trestles at Niagara and Arbutus Canyons. Below, ran fast flowing creeks, cascading over rocks.

The drop from Niagara trestle to hte creek below is 285 feet and from Arbutus 248.

Later the train passed through the railway's only tunnel.

At Cliffside Station, Shawnigan Lake, it stopped at a simple, white stone cairn, where Sir John A. Macdonald drove the spike that marked the completion of the first 69 miles of the E & N Railway, Aug. 18, 1886.

When the Diesel car stopped at Duncan to collect passengers, the Cowichan school band and Mayor Jim Quaife greeted the party.

Ald. Martin Lukaitis of Duncan felt the CPR had an obligation to keep the service in operation.

He pointed out the company obtained 4,700,000 acres of land for building the railway.

"The value of this land is going up every year," he said. "It surely should never be permitted to discontinue the service."

"BATHTUB CAPITAL" straw hats were presented to Mayor Courtney Haddock of Victoria and Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay by originator of famous race, Mayor Frank Ney, on their arrival in Nanaimo Wednesday.

AT CENTENNIAL POOL

Swim Duel Predicted

Individual swimmers and competitors from two clubs are set clash Saturday in the Victoria and District swimming championships at Colwood's Centennial Pool.

Awards will go to the top team as well as the winners in various events.

Victoria Olympians, who have held the team title for several years, can expect a neck and neck race with the host club, Juan de Fuca Cohoes, for the City of Victoria trophy.

Cohoes edged Olympians by one point for sixth place in the recent B.C. championships in Victoria.

Another strongly contested award will go to the winners of the open-class 200-metre individual medley races.

Dianne Smedley of Cohoes is defending girls' champion while Olympians' Jim Gollmer holds the boys' trophy.

Heats are set to start at 8 a.m. with finals scheduled to begin at 4 p.m.

Bid by Schumacher

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — The Canadian Curling Association will be asked next week in Winnipeg to ratify Schumacher, Ont., as the site of the 1972 Canadian schoolboy curling championship. Kamloops will host the 1971 bonspiel.

BIG DIVIDENDS FROM FIGURE SKATING LESSONS

WHY CAN'T THE COACH BE A WOMAN?

There's Hockey Power in That 'Sissy' Skating Stuff

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Until recently, most young hockey players regarded figure skating as "sissy stuff."

Happily, times change. As a result, you can look for history's greatest influx of "sissies" into the National Hockey League within the next decade, and thereafter.

Canadian hockey, at long last, is getting smart. Thanks to a reassessment of value, there is a new emphasis being applied to the art of skating. Figure skating lessons, in the eyes of the hockey player, are fast becoming the "in thing."

That is part of the message Craig Redmond will put across when the Victoria Cougars introduce the four-year-old at tonight's B.C. Junior Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. (Kamloops Rockets on the "other side," starting at 8:30.)

Cougar manager Bob Reid was "strongly opposed" to exploiting Redmond as a "gimmick" to entice fans into the rink. Reid reconsidered only after being assured by Craig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Redmond of Kamloops, that exploitation is not involved.

At four, Craig displays enough talent to compete with hockey-playing tads of seven and eight years.

Becuse of his tender years, it seems ridiculous to place Craig Redmond in the same boat as Mike Laughton or Mike Walton. Yet, that is how it has to be.

Craig was meant to be a figure skater. So were Laughton and Walton. Laughton, now performing with Oakland Seals, won numerous figure skating honors in the B.C. Interior before breaking into pro hockey with the defunct Victoria Maple Leafs.

Walton, the peppery Toronto Maple Leaf forward, ended his serious figure skating career only one test short of a gold medal. That gold medal, in case you haven't heard, means you're supposed to be just about as good as they come.

The minor hockey organizations will scream to high heaven, but the truth of the matter is that their coaches, generally speaking, aren't qualified or are unable to teach some of the finer points of skating.

"Power skating" is something Sandra Couch understands.

Sandra is the teaching professional (of figure skating) at the Racquet Club of Victoria. Some of her best pupils—Phil Blake, Rick and Thane Pipes, to name a few—are standouts in mirror hockey circles.

Sandra has a great edge over most skating teachers because she knows and understands hockey.

Blake is an outstanding example of how figure skating can help in hockey.

Cougar coach Doug Anderson rates Blake as one of the top professional prospects in the district, apart from his own juniors. Last fall, before he turned 16, Blake turned down an offer to play for Max Bentley's Ponoka Stampeders—the runaway leaders of the Alberta Junior Hockey League.

"Power skating," says Sandra, "could improve a person's skating as much as 40 per cent. It's an advanced technique so, of course, it is best to start young and learn the straight basics."

Most juveniles, many juniors and some professionals are not beyond help in improving their skating.

Most hockey players, she says, are unaware that there are several ways to stop . . . or know the proper way to push off on a blade. She is especially appalled at most hockey players' inability to skate backwards "properly."

The point to be demonstrated tonight by young Mr. Redmond, and proven by Laughton and Walton, is that skating—and its improvement—can be taught.

Coaches like Mrs. Couch are readily available.

Hockey, I'm happy to say, is becoming aware.

Bill WALKER

Hockey anyone? And the persistent thought that Montreal Canadiens may be in danger of not making the NHL playoffs keeps rearing its ugly and statistical head. And after predicting that they would win it all, too!

Easy there, Montreal fans. Because there is due cause for concern, that could just as easily turn into dismay.

The Canadiens lost a vital pair of games on the weekend, a sound thumping by Detroit, and a shutout at the hands of the New York Rangers on Sunday. The Habs did not look that good in losing.

The double defeat took them out of the league championship race for the time being, because the Rangers have an edge of two games in hand, and five big points. The Bruins, who are second, have a four-point bulge. Not an insurmountable margin, but an unlikely happening unless there is a sudden improvement. (This was before Wednesday's games.)

There are deep roots to the Montreal problem, some of which are not visible on the ice surface.

The Habs were hard hit by injuries early this season and stumbled because of it, almost losing their cool. But they recovered from those initial setbacks and with such key players as Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard back in action, and apparently fit, the class was expected to show, and show up well.

But the loss of John Ferguson, for the second time and perhaps the balance of the season, has been more of a disaster than at first realized. The team does not look quite the same without the big bear on patrol. It is not the effort that is lacking. Rather, it appears there has been a slackening in the commodity known as total desire, which Ferguson had, and imbued in the club.

●

On Sunday, for example, the Rangers were outskating the Canadiens, and outhustling them, which usually isn't done.

In addition, the goalkeeping is suspect, or coach Claude Ruel is convinced it is. Take your choice.

Certainly, Rogatien Vachon has not been razor sharp lately, and with Gump Worsley on the retirement program, rookie Phil Myre is being touted as the last line of hope.

Vachon may have reason to fear the worst, but it may not rest on his performance alone. For Ruel's disenchantment with him is evident. He has declared the job open. That is clear. Now it is up to Vachon to prove himself all over again, as he did a few years ago, or for Myre, who has lost only once in eight games, to take the job away from him.

Having the coach's confidence would appear to be the key. But with Ruel already fingering the panic button, this may be difficult. But it is understandable.

After all, he is only a sophomore in the NHL coaching ranks, and may still have to learn how to lose. It is not easy.

Meanwhile, the people's choice, the New York Rangers, appear the solid bet to keep on winning often enough to take it all. They are shattering all sorts of club records, haven't been shut out in 118 games, which is a record, breaking their own, and have the best goaltending average in the league.

Yes, Eddie Giacomin (and Terry Sawchuk) have taken over from Tony Esposito, et al, of Chicago. Giacomin is the workhorse of the pair, and all NHL goalies. Sawchuk has appeared in only six games, Giacomin the remainder.

●

It is symbolic, perhaps, but it was in the 1941-42 season that New York set the original record of 117 games without being shut out. The Rangers finished first that season. They have not finished first since.

Boston? Inconsistent is still the word, with most of the scoring points coming from Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito. The Bruins' defence is not at all solid, and shows no signs of getting better fast. And until it does, their hopes are on the wane.

And now for the footsteps the Canadiens keep hearing behind them, and getting louder. They are for real and of dual concern.

Detroit trails by only five points and has two games in hand. Chicago is giving Detroit no breathing room at all. The Hawks have two games more to play than the Habs, are only six points away, and one behind Detroit.

Detroit, to this observer, has been the big surprise.

The Wings don't have the firepower of the other Eastern division leaders, and yet they are only a breath away from third place. Just when it appears they must falter, they come on again. And with a veteran club, if they can hold out until playoff time, they could be rough. Because they have been forced to play almost playoff-type hockey all year. Their talent, or lack of it, demands it.

Meanwhile the Chicago Hawks, have relented a little from their tight defensive style, and for better or worse have slipped back into their hell-for-leather scoring outbursts.

Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull, as usual, are the guns which are loaded. And don't wager that Hull doesn't end up as the league goal champ. If he can catch Mikita. Remember he missed 14 games at the start of the season. But check those summaries, he's coming on strong.

Well, anyway, it's just a thought, that bit about Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions and all, missing the playoffs.

But keep it in mind, especially you Maple Leaf fans.

It may be consolation in your miseries.

Weekend Ski Report

Skiers on Vancouver Island can look forward to good times following the report today of fresh snow on both areas.

Green Mountain reports 14 inches of new snow, bringing the base up to 62 inches. Heavy overcast this morning and a temperature of 32 degrees makes the fall of more snow by the weekend a strong possibility.

Forbidden Plateau reports 4 inches of new snow and an average base of 40 inches.

Chains are required for both locations.

Other Pacific Northwest reports:

WHISTLER MOUNTAIN — Overcast, average of 27 degrees, 108-inch total, 1 inch of new snow.

GROUSE MOUNTAIN—Clear, 32 degrees, 51-inch total, no new snow.

MT. SEYMOUR—Overcast, 34 degrees, trace of new snow.

HEMLOCK VALLEY—High overcast, 32 degrees, 93-inch total, 1 inch new snow.

MT. BAKER—Clear, 24 degrees, 150-inch total, 30 inches new snow in past week.

SNOQUALMIE PASS — Clear, 25 degrees, 100-inch total, no new snow.

ISLAND SPOT AT STAKE IN JUVENILE TOURNEY

All eight squads in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Hockey League will be in action at the Racquet Club of Victoria this weekend in a tournament that will decide which team will represent the Island in provincial playoffs.

Composed of 17 and 18-year-old players, the teams will play eight games on Friday, starting at 7:30 a.m., four on Saturday, starting at 8 a.m., and two games Sunday, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

In first-round clashes Friday, Fuller's Lake will tangle with Saanich at 7:30 a.m., Nanaimo will battle Victoria at 9:30, Racquet Club will face Comox and 11:30 and Powell River will meet Esquimalt at 1 p.m.

B.C. Schoolboy Rink Stays in Contention

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Manitoba, New Brunswick and Quebec were tied for first place today as play resumed in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship after Wednesday's results threw the title race wide open.

Each rink had a 5-1, won-lost record after winning two games Wednesday, but British Columbia at 4-2 and Alberta and Northern Ontario at 3-2 remained in contention.

No team east of Ontario has taken the championship since it began in 1950 but the dark-horse rinks of Quebec's Myron Nussey and New Brunswick's Ron Ferguson have surprised their favored western opponents since the tournament began Monday.

In sixth-round games Wednesday, Manitoba's Brian Penston edged Don Carmichael of Prince Edward Island 9-8, Quebec counted a final-end four to dump Dave Folk of Saskatchewan 9-5, Bob Thompson of British Columbia thumped Doug Hagerman of Northern Ontario 12-5, New Brunswick swamped Newfoundland's Ken Baggs 17-5 and Ontario's Red Osburn whipped Eric Tweedie of Nova Scotia 14-7.

Fifth round results:

New Brunswick 8, Northern Ontario 6; Quebec 14, Nova Scotia 10; Manitoba 10, Ontario 6; Saskatchewan 8, B.C. 5; Alberta 15, P.E.I. 6.

McLain Talks To Probe Jury

DETROIT (AP)—Denny McLain, the 25-year-old Detroit Tiger pitching ace, voluntarily met behind closed doors Wednesday with a federal grand jury that is probing inter-state gambling.

McLain emerged from seclusion for the first time since Friday when baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said in New York that unspecified "off-the-field" activities by McLain in 1967 were being studied.

Federal attorneys declined to discuss what McLain said during his 45-minute appearance before the grand jury.

United States Attorney James Brickley said that McLain was "very co-operative in furnishing information" to the grand jury and to James Ritchie, who heads a U.S. justice department task force investigating organized crime.

Brickley said that McLain had not been subpoenaed for the appearance, his first before the grand jury. Brickley said the investigation was an independent one that Ritchie "has been pursuing for some time."

EVERYBODY HELPS

Ritchie said federal attorneys are also "cooperating fully with the baseball commissioner, and I consult with his office on a daily basis to discuss matters of mutual interest."

McLain again disappeared, but he may be en route to Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers open spring training Friday. His wife, Sharyn, told reporters earlier Wednesday that her husband "has done nothing to hurt baseball."

Mrs. McLain, daughter of former Cleveland Indian shortstop Lou Boudreau, added: "We are behind Denny 100 per cent."

She was interviewed as she boarded an airplane by herself in Detroit Wednesday afternoon for a flight to Tampa, Fla., en route to Lakeland.

Also Wednesday, an eviction suit against McLain in a Southfield, Mich., district court was postponed until Friday.

McLain's landlord alleged the ballplayer is $2,450 behind in rent for the suburban Detroit home. Orland Ellis, an attorney representing McLain, asked for the postponement, saying an out-of-court settlement was being attempted.

Unhappy Ruel Disillusioned By Habs' Play

Times News Services

A delighted George Armstrong is happy he decided to come out of retirement. A disillusioned Claude Ruel talked of retirement after Toronto Maple Leafs scored four times in the third period to pull out a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over Montreal Canadiens.

"I'm pretty ashamed," Ruel, coach of the 1969 Stanley Cup champions said. "Pretty ashamed. The team has been going like this for three weeks — always they have one bad period. The game goes 60 minutes, eh? I sure don't want to get sick for guys like this, guys who don't want to work for me.

"You yell and yell, and they do nothing for you. The only idea is to put somebody else behind the bench, somebody they'll play for."

"Claude, remember last year," a Montreal reporter said. "They won for you then."

"That's okay," Ruel replied, "but they aren't playing for me now."

The defeat was the third in succession for Montreal. Since Ruel took over the coaching duties from the retired Hector (Toe) Blake last season, the Canadiens have never lost more than twice in a row.

For a man who just four months ago had lost his enthusiasm for hockey, the veteran Armstrong still manages to display a timely knack for taking the starch out of an opponent.

Armstrong retired from Toronto Maple Leafs for the third time in as many years but came back in November and sparked his mates to their victory over Montreal.

The 39-year-old veteran's 10th season goal and third game-winner for the Leafs came when he stick-handled his way through the Montreal defence for a clear shot at goalie Phil Myre.

Black Hawks Clipped by St. Louis

In other games, St. Louis Blues downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-2, Detroit Red Wings tied 1-1 with Minnesota North Stars, New York Rangers held Philadelphia Flyers to a 3-3 score and a record-breaking goal by Bobby Orr helped Boston Bruins to a 5-5 saw-off with Los Angeles Kings.

Armstrong's goal at 10:09 of the third period took the steam out of the Canadiens and Dave Keon picked up his second goal of the night in the last minute of play to make the score 5-3.

Henri Richard's 300th career goal plus one by Yvan Cournoyer put the Canadiens ahead 2-1 at the end of the second period before a Toronto crowd of 16,485.

Bob Pulford of the Leafs and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens exchanged early third-period goals before Ron Ellis again tied it for Toronto, setting the stage for Armstrong's winner.

Armstrong's play to get past Terry Harper brought praise from Leaf coach Johnny McLellan, who said the Montreal defenceman was aghast, "as with custard on his face."

"That was the old pro at work," McLellan said of his veteran right winger.

The former Leafs captain was also outstanding on the penalty-killing squad when centre Jim Harrison sat out a fighting major late in the first period after tangling with Harper, who got a two-minute holding minor. The Canadiens took three other minors and during one of them Keon scored his first goal of the night.

Orr's 22nd Goal a Record-Breaker

The Bruins, meanwhile stayed one point behind the leading Rangers while moving five in front of the slumping Canadiens.

Orr scored his 22nd goal at Los Angeles to break his own record for most goals by a defenceman in one season set last season.

Eddie Joyal's second goal of the night early in the third period tied it for the Kings who snapped an eight-game losing streak.

Detroit moved to within four points of the third-place Canadiens in the East with captain Alex Delvecchio's tying goal in the third period before a Minneapolis crowd of 14,137.

Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago preserved the tie despite facing 46 shots while the North Stars tested Roger Crozier only 26 times.

The North Stars got a first-period goal from Claude Larose and a potential game-winner by Bill Goldsworthy, two minutes after Delvecchio's score, was disallowed by referee John Ashley.

The game marked the return of former Minnesota team captain Elmer (Moose) Vasko from the minor leagues, replacing defenceman John Miszuk who was sent down.

The Rangers and Flyers each scored three goals in the first period at New York and goalies Bernie Parent for Philadelphia and Terry Sawchuk kept their nets clean through the last 40 minutes.

Keith McCreary and the Plager brothers ganged up on the visiting Black Hawks at St. Louis, spoiling their bid to overtake Detroit in the battle for fourth place.

McCreary scored twice for the Blues. Bill Plager got a goal and an assist while brothers Barclay and Bob helped set up goals.

Stan Mikita set up Hawks goals by Dennis Hull and Lou Angotti.

NHL LENDS SUPPORT . . . . . . FOR OPEN TOURNEY

International Play Pursued

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League appears willing to turn loose some of its best players to join a Canadian national team in world tournament play and Canada hopes to have such a squad on the ice by 1975.

Hockey Canada, the organization of representatives from business, government and hockey, will send a delegation to Stockholm next month seeking International Ice Hockey Federation approval of a Canadian pro team.

At the IIHF Congress meeting in Crans, Switzerland last July, Canada won approval to use nine professionals in the 1970 world tournament, which was to have been held in Montreal and Winnipeg.

But early last month in Geneva, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and East Germany, who were to meet the Canadians in the tournament A pool, declined to take part for fear that the International Olympic Committee would revoke their amateur standing for playing against professionals.

Canada tried to steer clear of the IOC regulations regarding amateurism with a compromise proposal, but the five other countries rejected it and the Canadians withdrew.

The world tournament was awarded to Stockholm.

Canada's bid for re-entry into world tournament play will include the country's original proposal at Cras for open tournament play with unlimited use of professionals by 1975.

The Canadian delegation will propose that nine professionals be allowed in 1971, increasing to 12, then 15 and finally 18 within four years.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the major league was "fully aligned" with the Hockey Canada stand.

He said the NHL's rules could be modified to exempt players wishing to go into international competition.

"I can't say the league is prepared to do this, but there is a strong feeling in favor."

Both Charles Hay, Hockey Canada's president, and Campbell said they think the concept of keeping a full-time national team together is wasteful.

Pilous Leaves Coaching Post

Rudy Pilous has been moved upstairs, and Bill Dineen is the new coach of the Denver Spurs of the Western Hockey League.

Veteran of 17 professional seasons, Dineen Wednesday night had a successful debut as the Spurs tied Phoenix Roadrunners, 2-2.

Pilous, former coach of Victoria Maple Leafs in the WHL who has been coach and general manager at Denver, will devote his full time to management affairs, announced Bennett King, president of Sports Holdings, Inc., which owns the Spurs.

"We have proven this year by the continuous growth of attendance at the Spurs games, that 'big-time' hockey has definitely arrived in Denver. And we want Pilous to devote 100 per cent of his effort to this building job," said Bennett.

CANUCKS ARE IN

In other games, Vancouver Canucks defeated Seattle Totems, 5-4, to clinch a playoff berth, and Portland Buckaroos whipped San Diego Gulls, 9-2.

Germain Gagnon, Ted McCaskill, Pat Hannigan, Doug Dunville and Gerry Goyer scored for the Canucks. Bob Courcy, John Hanna, Art Stratton, and Ron Ingram replied for the Totems.

Art Jones and Bill Saunders, each with two goals, paced Portland.

EAGLES GET GOALIE

In other off-ice action Wednesday, goalkeeper Jim Armstrong, sidelined for nearly a year with a back injury, was sold by the Totems to the Salt Lake Golden Eagles "for cash and other considerations."

Armstrong, 26, was paralyzed from the neck down for two days after he was slammed into the goal posts during a game last March. Gradually he began to improve and in recent weeks has been practising and working out with the Totems.

Birds Ousted By Columbus In Cup Clash

Vancouver Firefighters will be at Royal Athletic Park Saturday as second-round play starts in the Inter-League Cup competition, which has become strictly a struggle between Pacific Coast Soccer League sides.

Columbus Carlings completed the six-team slate for the second round when they blanked UBC Thunderbirds 2-0 in Vancouver Wednesday to take the two-game series by an 8-3 margin.

Firefighters and Victoria O'Keefes launch second-round action Saturday at 2 p.m. Carlings meet Eintracht on March 4 and Croatia faces New Westminster on March 11.

Fleet School Wins Playoff

Fleet School won the Armed Forces Hockey League Playoff championship 13-6, in a two-game, total-goal series after defeating Queen's Own Rifles Junior Ranks 4-3 in the final game Wednesday at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

Bennie Weber, George Fisher, Bill MacFarlane and George Vacheresse scored for Fleet School while Jerry Pettett, Ernie Roberts and Len Olchove counted for Junior Ranks.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Moving back into Times' Bowler-of-the-Week winners' circle for second year is Vera Lysne, who topped women's fivepin division in 17th week of seventh annual competition. Vera bracketed blazing middle game of 386 with efforts of 244 and 274 for winning 904 series in Sons of Norway League at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Area Firemen Win Openers

TRAIL — Three Victoria-area rinks were undefeated after the first day of play Wednesday in the B.C. Firefighters' curling championship.

Out of the 10 entries from Greater Victoria, Ron Pearce of Saanich, Dick Austin of Victoria and Dave Thera of Oak Bay won their first two games to remain in the "A" event of the bonspiel.

Winner of the provincial title advances to the Canadian final in Shawinigan Falls, Que., beginning March 31.

Grouse Mountain Meet Set Ahead

VANCOUVER (CP) — The World Cup ski meet at Grouse Mountain will begin Feb. 26, one day earlier than originally planned, tournament officials announced Wednesday.

The extra day was added because of relatively light snow conditions on the mountain on Vancouver's North Shore, to improve conditions for skiers. About 150 of the world's top skiers from 13 countries are entered.

Titans, Bays Await Decision

Claremont, which applied the finishing touches to a perfect Inter-High School Rugby League season by trouncing Mount View Hornets 32-0 Wednesday, expected to have a rival in the Howard Russell Cup final decided in a meeting today.

Victoria Titans appear to hold the inside edge after a 9-6 win over the Bays at Oak Bay Wednesday but both squads have lodged protests over refereeing decisions which led to penalty goals.

League chairman Austin Cullin said a decision was to be rendered at a 4 p.m. meeting today at Victoria High School.

"Either the game will stand as it is, or we will have to have a replay," explained Cullin. "We will attempt to make certain there is fair play for the boys involved."

TIED IN STANDING

Both Bays and Titans completed the season with eight points but if the game stands, Victoria will take the berth against Claremont on the basis of a better points record.

Victoria took the lead early in the first half on a penalty goal by Ken Hickman and Doug Plesch's try before Bays came on the scoreboard with a penalty goal by Frank Carson.

Hickman booted another penalty goal to give Titans a six-point edge and Oak Bay closed scoring four minutes from time on a penalty goal by Carson.

Claremont, which led 11-0 at the half in Beaver Lake Park, collected two trys each from Reg Underwood, Mike Kirby and Chuck Shergold. Dave Kyle added a try and a convert while single trys were scored by Jim Kirby, Don McLaren and Rod MacDonald.

NOW IT'S SKELTON WHO'S OUT OF TV

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television next season may be minus the Red Skelton show.

Contract negotiations between Skelton and CBS "have terminated," Charles Pomerantz, press agent for the show, said Wednesday.

"I would say it looks at the moment as if the show won't be on."

Skelton, 66, was unavailable for comment.

The show has been aired weekly for 19 years.

CBS said it had no announcement on the subject.

Tropic of Cancer's X Rating May Prompt Director Challenge

By KARL E. MEYER

NEW YORK (WP) — The world premiere tonight of Tropic of Cancer, a film based on one of the most banned of modern books, appears likely to lead to the first anti-trust challenge of the system that has put an "X" rating on the picture.

Joseph Strick, producer and director of the film which Paramount Pictures is releasing, says he is considering anti-trust action against the Motion Picture Association of America on the grounds that its recently-adopted rating system is in restraint of trade.

Strick, whose last picture was James Joyce's Ulysses, says he has no objection to anybody's rating films "G" or "X" for parental guidance but is opposed to the MPA's "abrogating parental authority by collusive and coercive action in preventing persons under 17 from seeing an X-rated film."

Asked to comment, a spokesman for the Washington based MPA rejoined that the rating system is an "entirely voluntary" program which film-makers and exhibitors were free not to use if they wished.

Strick countered, "If you don't submit your film to the MPA raters, you effectively deprive yourself of a public since 99 per cent of all exhibitors are sponsors of the system."

This and other complaints made by the 46-year-old producer will open a wide-ranging debate on the merits of a rating system introduced in 1968 and warmly defended by MPA president Jack Valenti as a sensible way of protecting the industry from repressive local censorship.

NOVEL BANNED

That the debate should arise over a film version of Tropic of Cancer has a certain aptness since the original 1934 novel by Henry Miller has been at the centre of countless disputes over literary censorship. The novel has been freely available in the U.S. only since the early 1960s.

The rating system involves classifying films into four categories. A "G" film can be shown to an unrestricted audience. "GP" means that all ages will be admitted but that parental guidance is suggested.

An "R" film obliges any patron under 17 to be accompanied by an adult. "X" movies can be shown to no one under 17.

From last Nov. 1 to Feb. 15, a total of 515 films were submitted to the MPA for rating. Of them, 170 or 30.4 per cent were given a "G" graade, 218 or 39 per cent were listed as "GP", 139 or 25 per cent were rated at "R", and only 31 or 5.6 per cent were put in the "X" category.

Firm Approves Warning in Ad

NEW YORK (AP) — An aide to Arthur Godfrey says the television performer has been given permission by Colgate-Palmolive Co. to say in commercials that its product Axion — as well as similar products — are water pollutants.

The aide said Wednesday night that Godfrey already had been making the new commercials. In them he urges consumers to stick with the product and says the company is working to reduce polluting effects.

Godfrey, a conservationist, had threatened to stop making Axion commercials unless the company allowed him to say that the product polluted water.

CBC Wins

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC has won six United States awards, including two for programs made in Manitoba.

The awards, presented by the Institute for Education by Radio-Television under the auspices of the Telecommunicacations Centre of the Ohio State University, will be received today in Columbus, Ohio, by A. H. Patridge, the CBC's divisional head for foreign relations and export sales.

The awards include:

Nashan-Esen Legend of the Rockies, the radio story of Johnny Simpson, a 93-year-old Rocky Mountain guide; Their Tongue Is a Deadly Arrow, a Manitoba school radio broadcast with the intent of making the audience aware of the attitude they hold towards minority groups; and a Manitoba schools television program on the reactions and habits of pre-teenage children.

Comedy Next?

LONDON (CP) — Canadian actress Genevieve Bujold said Wednesday she wants to try "something different" after her success in the movie Anne of the Thousand Days.

That film was chosen for the royal performance in London Feb. 24 and also won Miss Bujold, of Montreal, a nomination for the Oscar award as 1969's best movie actress.

In it, she played Anne Boleyn, one of the wives of King Henry VIII who lost their heads to the royal executioner in 16th-century Britain.

"I would like to do a comedy or a musical or a stage play next, something different," she said in a published interview.

"But it could be three years before the film starts."

Distribution Of Social Aid Rises $1,000

DUNCAN — A total of 195 persons received $13,386 in social assistance disbursed through the city office during January, clerk Gordon Berry said Wednesday.

The amount was up nearly $1,000 over the average of former Januarys.

A total of 52 families with 128 dependents received $9,021. Twenty-five single men were paid $1,811 and a similar number of single women received the higher amount of $1,958.

Fifteen transients were allowed $45 and two boarding home cases got a total of $170.

Speaker to Discuss Provincial Problems

Henri W. Laurier, QC, great-grandson of former prime minister Sir Wilfred Laurier, will be speaker at a banquet next week sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

The banquet will be held at Holyrood House Feb. 27. Anyone interested in attending should contact Mrs. A. Watson at 385-5756 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

John Smithson, the council's executive director, said Laurier will speak on related problems in B.C. and Quebec.

Gains Tax To Hit Farmer Hard

Don Marshall (SC—South Peace River) told the legislature Wednesday the proposed federal capital gains tax on farms "removes what little chance farmers could have for existence."

The MLA said farmland can no longer be considered a measure of wealth or a reflection of ability to pay.

"If farmers were enjoying a better than subsistence level of earning power, then there would be very little talk of western separation from Canada and land taxes would not be such a drain on livelihood," Marshall added.

He agreed that a farmer's house and the land on which it is situated should be taxable for education purposes, but said the rest of farmland should be exempt.

Conference Rapped

REGINA (CP) — Woodrow Lloyd, leader of the New Democratic Party opposition in Saskatchewan, said Wednesday delegates to the two-day federal-provincial conference in Ottawa merely indulged in a form of pillow-fighting instead of proposing possible cures for inflation.

Spending Restraints Close Two Mills

Restraints on capital spending in Canada have caused enough decline in the plywood market to shut down one Victoria mill and one in the lower mainland area.

A 15-man maintenance crew remains on duty at Victoria Plywood Ltd., but the remaining 175-man production crew was laid off at the end of last week and will remain off at least a week.

Evans Products plywood mill in Vancouver has started its second week of shutdown.

Newton Cameron, president of Victoria Plywood, said he could not say when his mill would resume production, but hoped it would not be longer than two weeks away. Output was halted because markets are off and storage space exhausted.

Improvement in the housing construction industry and increased industrial sales generally are needed to restore demand for plywood.

A spokesman for B.C. Plywood Manufacturers' Association said the two mills had filled their inventories to capacity, and even using outside storage with polyethelene tarpaulins, could not increase the amount of plywood on hand.

He said between 75 and 80 per cent of B.C. plywood production is sold in the domestic market, with the rest going largely to U.K. and European markets. The offshore market had held up fairly well, but the recent strike of longshoremen added to the problem of shipping inventories and clogging storate sheds.

Added to that was the fact that some U.S.-made plywood was being imported to eastern Canada — largely Ontario — at very competitive prices because of distress in the American construction industry. This reduced orders of B.C. plywood.

The association spokesman noted that Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. had increased funds available for low-income housing development, which improve demand for plywood, but not immediately.

With longshoremen working again, some storage space at dockside would be freed, he noted.

"But I don't want to appear too optimistic. We've got to look at the situation with a fair amount of caution."

Oil Drill Permits Not Issued

Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Frank Richter said Wednesday a report that oil-drilling permits have been granted for the Gulf of Georgia area is incorrect.

Richter said no drilling permits have been applied for although exploration permits have been given out in the past. These do not give permission to drill.

The minister said the provincial government has not issued drilling permits and as far as he knew the federal government has not done so.

Foreman Fined

SURREY (CP) — Clifford Butson, former municipal works foreman, Tuesday was fined $1,000 and jailed for one day when he pleaded guilty to stealing copper wire valued at about $3,300. Court was told the thefts took place over a period of 23 months.

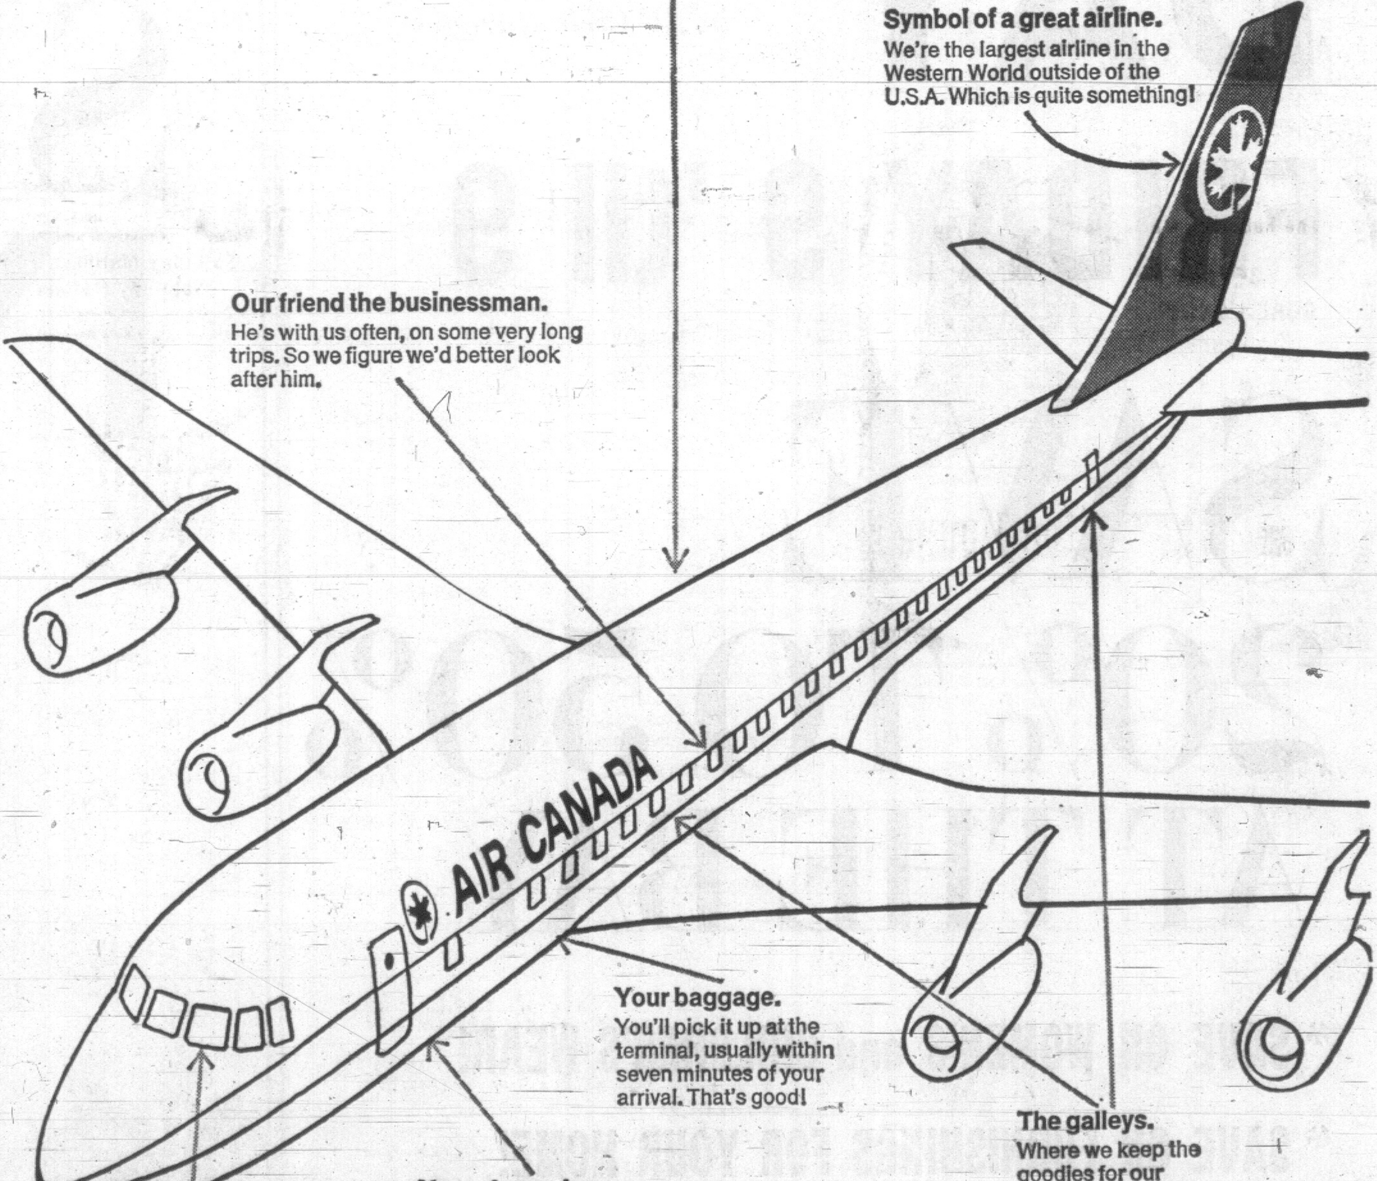
This is an Air Canada DC-8 jet.
A great way to cross Canada.



Symbol of a great airline. We're the largest airline in the Western World outside of the U.S.A. Which is quite something!

Our friend the businessman. He's with us often, on some very long trips. So we figure we'd better look after him.

Your baggage. You'll pick it up at the terminal, usually within seven minutes of your arrival. That's good!

The galleys. Where we keep the goodies for our Connoisseur Service . . . a very special standard of food on all our North American DC-8 and DC-9 flights of over 2 hours. Very big with businessmen!

Your stewardess. She works very hard to make businessmen feel relaxed and comfortable. Great smile.

Your Captain. He flies the big jets for the big airline. Our DC-8's and DC-9's go more often, to more places in Canada than any other airline. Very convenient — particularly for businessmen. Your Travel Agent has all the details.

We try to make business trips a pleasure!

400 Hear Business Slam Benson Tax Paper

By AB KENT

Authors of the controversial white paper proposals to restructure the Canadian income tax system are out of touch with reality, a leading tax accountant said Wednesday.

Peter Walton, chartered accountant and vice-chairman of Vancouver Board of Trade finance committee, told a group of nearly 400 business and professional men and women at Newcombe Auditorium:

"The backroom boys are very, very intelligent, capable people." In some areas, he added, "they are brilliant."

•

But the white paper proposals they have made through Finance Minister Edgar Benson, and which have been mostly unacceptable to the business and financial community can be "blamed largely on their monastic existence; the nature of their work tends to take them away from realities."

Walton suggested the best thing to do now is to get the planners together with businessmen and tax consultants to go over the white paper step by step. The businessmen would point out what is not feasible, what needs correction and what is not acceptable.

Derek Parkinson, chairman of the board of trade finance committee and also an accountant in Vancouver, said the white paper was drawn up by "sincere, dedicated men."

But he had concluded that the "tremendous basic motivation of revenue production (through tax reform) probably was thrust upon them rather than arising out of their own ideas." It is based, he said, on fear that the bond market is dying and not on achieving tax equity.

The men were guest panelists at a public meeting organized by Victoria Chamber of Commerce to discuss How to Live With the White Paper.

Both men have been to Ottawa, as recently as a few days ago, and have spoken to Benson and others in the finance department.

Parkinson, Chamber president Clare Copeland and meeting chairman George Jones all urged individuals to make their feelings on the paper known to Benson and members of parliament.

Copeland said more than 700 individual responses had been received by the chamber as a result of publishing its own brief, to be delivered to Benson shortly.

Parkinson said the government's March 1 deadline on submission of briefs and opinions is unreasonable for "such a tremendously important subject."

Walton said Canada would be the first country in the world to tax capital gains as ordinary income if the white paper is adopted as proposed. It would also have the highest rate of tax compared with both the U.S. and U.K.

In another area of capital gains, it is proposed that valuation of widely-held shares of a Canadian corporation be set every five years and that tax be levied on half of the theoretical gain. Walton said it is "abhorrent, fundamentally wrong, to tax unrealized gain."

•

Treating the gain on sale of a home as taxable also would be a new area, which Walton suggested had the "underlying objective to ensure taxation of small homes with large acreage, and if this is so, they are using an elephant to stand on a flea."

He said the result would be to "lock many home owners into their homes. All walks of life are affected, not just the wealthy, but the young married. All home owners should protest this vigorously."

Parkinson saw the proposals as a means of increasing revenue in the face of a faltering bond market.

Some provisions provide for an immediate increase in revenue, others for later increases. Parkinson said senators could get no assurance in questions last week that the top rate of tax would remain at 51.2 per cent for B.C. They were told, in fact, that the higher rates of tax in the middle income group ($10,000 - $40,000) were necessary in view of the higher exemptions granted in that group.

With the wider tax base proposed, as well as higher rates of taxation for the $12,000 and up group, tax increases could be "pretty horrifying," Parkinson said.

Sections dealing with a common tax haven, the rental property, have not been thoroughly analyzed, he said.

Real estate and construction people have said they will reduce the number of housing starts and raise rents. "I frankly don't know. I haven't seen any emprical studies on this. I would suggest there may be some moves in this direction, but it may be there will be some difficulty in persuading the government there would be any dramatic increase in rents."

He urged those connected with family-held corporations, accountants and lawyers in the tax field to become thoroughly familiar with the concepts involving closely-held and widely-held corporations because so much understanding of the white paper depends on it.

•

Parkinson noted the strong opposition from small business against proposed abolition of the 21 per cent tax on a corporation's first $35,000 of profits.

In view of the unpopularity of the proposal, which was introduced to halt abuse of the measure, Benson may be willing to offer alternative relief for small businesses, the accountant said.

Walton said in discussing the paper with one of the "backroom boys" at Ottawa, Walton had suggested "you aren't going to make it by Jan. 1, 1971," and he replied, "do you want to bet?"

"Being businessmen, you may not want to bet, but you may want to hedge your bets, so think about it," Walton advised.

SISTER-CITY PLAN SLAPPED

'Tired of Pap-Feeding' Tourist Industry—Mayor

By JIM HUME

Mayor Courtney Haddock this morning said he was tired of the taxpayer being asked to "pap-feed" the local tourist industry.

He made the statement following presentations by the Victoria Visitors' Bureau to back a bid for a $60,000 grant for the 1970 operation.

Haddock went along with the grant but not until after blasting the industry for using antiquated methods to sell Victoria to potential tourists.

'STRIKE COMMITTEE'

He insisted that a special mayor's committee be struck to investigate all aspects of out-of-town tourist promotion.

"I'm convinced that they are using the methods of the '40s to try and sell the people of the 70s," Haddock said after listening to a bureau presentation.

"We have the government promoting tourism, the CPR, Air Canada, the Automobile Club and visitors bureau. It seems to me that we are duplicating our efforts somewhere along the line."

Haddock also took a swing at the home of the bureau on the Government Street Causeway and at the tourist promotion satellite at Douglas and Burnside.

"It looks like a farmhouse, not a tourist bureau," Haddock said although not making it clear whether he was sniping at the head office or the branch.

PROGRAM SLAPPED

The mayor slapped Victoria's sister-city program with Palm Springs, California. The sister-city program was a pet project of former mayor Hugh Stephen.

"I'm being critical to get a few of these things off my chest," Haddock said. "But this Palm Springs thing really annoys me. It's like getting a horse for a rabbit. What's their population, 25,000? We have 125,000. What kind of deal is that?

"If we want a sister-city lets get San Francisco then we'd be talking."

Under the sister-city program Victoria agrees to encourage trips to Palm Springs during the winter while the California city is supposed to encourage trips to Victoria in the summer.

NOT PERTURBED

Haddock said he wasn't particularly perturbed if tourist promoters got mad at him.

"I'd like to make the doggone tourist trade mad at something, me if you like," he said. "We've been wasting millions of dollars on promotion just because we haven't kept up with the times."

The mayor added that while he would go along with the grant this year he wasn't too sure that public funds for tourist promotion were justified at all.

HADDOCK
. . . "millions wasted"

"I think it's time the tourist people started to close ranks, come up with a unified effort and did a little for themselves," he said.

"They keep telling us how valuable the industry is, well if it is so good why can't it support itself? Why does it need taxpayers money?

STREAMLINING

"Do retail businessmen in the city get grants? Does the automobile industry?"

Ald. Clyde Savage said he agreed with the establishment of a special committee to study the tourist promotion organizations with a view to dove-tailing and streamlining operations.

"But I don't agree with your philosophy," he said. "I think taxpayers should support the tourist promotion industry."

Ald. Hugh Ramsay agreed.

"When you look at what they do I think we get a good deal for $60,000," he said. "I'm all in favor of a committee to study all aspects of the business. But let's make sure it's a good committee with the right people on it, people who can bring in some meaningful ideas not just another ponderous report."

MATCHES GRANT

The provincial government matches the municipal grant on 60 per cent provincial 40 per cent municipal formula.

Dick Colby, provincial government representative at this morning's meeting, said the publicity program was essential if Victoria was to stay in competition for the tourist dollar.

Haddock stressed that he was not opposing the grant "for this year."

"But I want a good close look at the whole structure," he said. "And I want to tell the tourist industry to close ranks and start acting like an industry. A short time ago I was down to try and talk about a hotel room tax. Before I could even state a word on what we were trying to do I was told all the reasons why it couldn't be done."

FOOD STALL DONATIONS REACH $500

Greater Victorians have shown their support of the Free Food Stall by giving donations amounting to $500, Mrs. Joan Price, 3965 Quadra, the stall's operator, said today.

Another Free Food Stall will be held Saturday in the annex of the Elks Hall, Cormorant Street, beginning at 9 a.m.

A volunteer pick-up crew will begin collecting donations of bread and vegetables from local merchants at 8 a.m.

Mrs. Price can be contacted at 479-4870.

Three Esquimalt Ships To Show Flag at Osaka

Three Esquimalt-based naval vessels will be "showing the flag" in late May while Canada Week takes place at Expo 70 in Osaka.

Leaving Esquimalt early in May and returning from the Far East in early July will be the destroyer-escorts HMCS Mackenzie and HMCS Yukon of the Second Canadian Escort Squadron and the west coast's latest addition, the 24,000-ton operational support ship HMCS Provider.

Squadron commander Capt. Robert Peers, still tanned from his visit down under with HMCS Qu'Appelle, HMCS St. Croix and HMCS Saskatchewan, said organization of the visit to Japan is still in a "fluid stage".

"We will be visiting other ports in Japan but clearance of the program has yet to be completed."

He assumes officers and men of the three ships will be asked to take part in ceremonies, especially when Prime Minister Trudeau arrives at the Expo site.

★ ★ ★

Because they'll have their own "supermarket" along, the destroyer-escorts will be able to make the 5,000-mile trip each way without putting into port for refuelling.

HMCS Provider will carry sufficient fuel, spare parts, ammunition and supplies for the round trip.

"All she'll have to do is top up with some fresh vegetables while we're in Japan."

Saturday morning the trio leave on what will be HMCS Provider's first operation since her transfer here from the east coast.

Working out of San Diego, Provider and the two destroyer-escorts will carry out combined exercises with ships of the American navy.

Returning to Esquimalt March 20, the ship's companies will have carried out a month-long 'rehearsal' for the Japanese visit, including refuelling at sea while steaming at 18 knots.

Ask The Times

Q. Where in Victoria might I find either an instructor or a club concerned with fencing? E.F.

A. Local sports sources indicate that the only accredited instructor in Victoria is Brian Padden, 903 Admirals. Padden is also coach of the Victoria City Fencing Club which meets in the Work Point Barracks gymnasium every Wednesday at 8 p.m. Further information is available by telephoning Padden at 382-2943 or club president Derek Tumber at 477-3007.

Q. Will you please tell me who played the piano in the movie Casablanca? D.M.

A. Dooley Wilson.

CENTRAL LAND NEEDED FOR SENIOR CITIZENS

Wanted — a piece of land.

Not too far from a bus route and fairly close to a shopping centre.

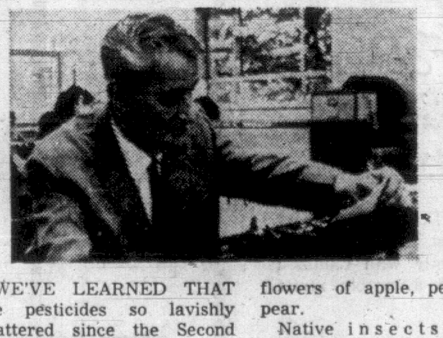
It is wanted by Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society for the building of a third low-rental apartment block in addition to Townley Lodge and Banfield Lodge, now housing 52.

"We still face a glaring need for low rental homes for our senior citizens," said Mrs. May Campbell, outgoing president, in her report to the annual meeting of Victoria Senior Citizens' Housing Society Wednesday night.

Mrs. Campbell said the society is looking for a plot of land, not less than one acre and preferably 1½ acres.

Mrs. Campbell said the Victoria Real Estate Board is helping to raise 10 per cent of the cost of construction. To that end the board is now selling tickets on a car which is to be raffled at the end of this month.

Mrs. Campbell stood down as president after six years in office and was succeeded by Victoria lawyer Foster Isherwood, a Saanich alderman.



Arthur Mayse . . .

WE'VE LEARNED THAT the pesticides so lavishly scattered since the Second World War have a double edge that can turn against the user. Perhaps with that knowledge to hand, the reckless misuse of these insect-killers will be less often repeated in future years.

But the harm already done won't be easy to mend, as Okanagan fruit-growers will be reminded when their orchard blossoms are about ready to open.

That's when the honey-bees are trucked in.

★

It's an odd little side-light on an industry important to British Columbia's economy. You may find it ironic, and perhaps even a trifle sad.

The hives, each populated by 80,000 honey-makers or thereabouts, are transported to the orchards from as far away as the mainland coast. But the growers don't hire the bees to make honey. That's incidental to their main purpose, which is to pollinate the flowers of apple, peach and pear.

Native insects used to attend to this rite of spring: but pesticide overkill has so reduced their numbers that outside aid became necessary.

Hence the bees, rented at a going rate of around $11 a hive from their keepers.

Timing must be keyed to the first unfolding of the buds. If released too early or too late, the bees will seek other sources of nectar.

And without their busy presence crop decline in some orchards would run to an estimated 40 per cent.

All of which suggests that the warning given by Rachel Carson in her 'Silent Spring' was no mere exercise in words.

★

WE'VE BEEN HEARING A good deal about the year-round school since the idea was tossed down from the ramparts of theoretical education. It's been received with enthusiasm by those who insist that expensive school buildings shouldn't stand empty through the summer months, but most of the parents I've heard from on the subject regard any such change with a signal lack of enthusiasm.

So does a school janitor who sounded off to me about it no long time past.

As far as the custodians are concerned, he declared, those months when the children are on long vacation offer the only chance for a necessary clean-up in depth.

"Look at it like this," he said. "Through most of the year, our schools are the busiest buildings we've got. We take care of them as best we can from day to day, but there's still a piling up of jobs that must wait."

He gazed gloomily along a fresh-mopped corridor, then said, "For instance, there are the blinds. Have you ever cleaned a blind?"

I hadn't, but I've watched my wife give a venetian the slat-by-slat works.

"Takes time, doesn't it?" the janitor said. "Well, we have a schoolful of blinds to clean. Then there are the windows, and every one of them has to be washed each summer. Try doing that while the kids are in the classrooms!"

He swabbed another reach of hallway while I considered the blinds and windows.

"So what it amounts to," he said, "is that a year-round school is going to be a dirty school. Of course, the school boards might get around that by spending a heck of a lot more on maintenance." Here he slapped his mop briskly into the bucket, "And how do you think the taxpayers would take to that?"

On this whole matter of year-round school, I think the taxpayers, and those who represent them, would do well to proceed cautiously, with many a look before they leap.

FOR THE COUPLE WHO has thought of adopting but wishes to sift all angles, here are a couple of useful numbers to call.

One is 478-5073. It belongs to Nick Klinick, president of the Adoption Information Service which has been formed with the blessing of the Family and Children's Service.

At the other number, which is 388-5345, you'll find association member Ken Williamson. As adoptive fathers themselves, they will gladly answer questions on the subject.

★

The association's members range in experience from those who took the step only recently to couples whose adopted children are now grown and out on their own.

If interested you might also note that the association, which now numbers about 25 couples, invites you to its next meeting at 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 4, in Family and Children's Service headquarters, 1627 Fort Street.

That's it, and home now to tie some trout flies . . . with a dream built into each!

Hanson Joins Consumer Panel

Michael Hanson, B.C.'s first consumer affairs officer, will be a member of a panel on consumers, Wednesday, March 4 at 8 p.m. in the Ewing Building, Lansdowne Road.

Mr. Hanson, in office for more than two months, will join five other people in the public forum sponsored by the local branch of the Consumers' Association of Canada.

Panel members will be Deputy Attorney-General Mel Smith speaking on consumer protection legislation; Norma Morris, former nutritionist with the B.C. agriculture department; William Tindall, Better Business Bureau chairman; Kay Dixon, housewife, and Barbara Rolls, CAC provincial president.

Moderator will be A. L. Cartier, co-ordinator of adult education, department of education.

Panel members will discuss their fields of interest and then the audience will participate in small "buzz sessions," said Mrs. George Forrest, local CAC president.

Mrs. Forrest was re-elected president of the Victoria branch at the annual meeting held recently.

Other officers for the 1970 term are Mrs. J. A. Clay, recording secretary; Mrs. K. F. Bradley, corresponding secretary; Mrs. T. Fairhurst, treasurer, and Mrs. F. Russell, membership secretary.

Mrs. Elizabeth Mills is handling consumer complaints. She may be reached at 385-5106.

"Whenever the suburban pace gets too hectic, it's good to come to the city where everything moves so slow."

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

Dear Eunice Farmer:

With spring just around the corner and suit time again, I have been looking at the ready-mades and have been shocked to see some very expensive suits with no facings on the collar or suit fronts. The particular suit I am referring to was well over $100. Can you tell me what the purpose is and is this a feature that the home-sewer would be well to copy?

I know that tailoring techniques change with the fashion line. Could you please elaborate more on this sewing feature for those of us who like to keep up with the latest and hopefully the best?—Mrs. M.S.

Dear Mrs. M.S.:

This type of construction has been very successful for the manufacturer who started it. The suit becomes more like a two-piece dress because of its softness that shapes to the figure. This is not a new technique and is only used by two manufacturers that I know of.

Yes, you may copy this technique if you would care to. The first important step is to choose a wool or wool tweed that is firm and wiry, not too soft. It must be carefully stay-stitched at the outer edges to prevent stretching out of shape during construction.

As to the finish of the outer edges, turn your seam in a single fold on the five-eighths inch seamline and press the fold. Next, you must accurately stitch three rows of stitching at the edge, these are usually about ⅜" apart. Cut away the remaining ¼" after the third row has been stitched.

If your garment has a notched collar, you must clip at the point where the roll line begins for your lapel and stitch from the opposite side of the fabric.

When you make bound buttonholes, you must begin by leaving one side of the welt extension much wider because when your buttonhole has been turned to the wrong side, you will have this extension to carefully whip down to the single layer of your front.

It's always fun to try something new. This could be the time to do it; however, carefully think out each detail before you begin.

Mrs. Farmer's instructions for making bound buttonholes are given in a free leaflet. If you would like to have a copy of "Bound Buttonholes," mail your request with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper.

MAJOR JEAN ADAMS

Nursing Sister Posted to Germany

By PAT DUFOUR

The matron is a major.

And, like most members of Canada's armed forces, Maj. Jean Adams is almost nonchalant about every new posting.

Almost, but not quite.

Matron of the Canadian armed forces hospital at CFB, Esquimalt, and in charge of all service nursing facilities in the province, Maj. Adams heard Monday that she heads for Germany and a new posting June 1.

There she'll be regional matron for Europe and also head the nursing staff of the 100-bed hospital at Lahr.

With 18 years' service behind her, Maj. Adams took the news almost as calmly as if she was moving across the street.

"I'm used to travelling, that's why I joined the air force in 1952."

Since that time she's learned to travel light—and often.

This won't be her first posting to Europe. She spent three years as matron of a service hospital in a French village east of Paris.

She's also done stints in many Canadian hospitals, including ones at Cold Lake, Goose Bay, Portage la Prairie; teaching sessions at Camp Borden, and three tours of duty in Ottawa.

Although many isolated service units have been closed under the armed forces' base consolidation program, Maj. Adams reports there are still 420 service nurses on the rolls.

She warns that nurses thinking of joining should not have the misconception that some of their training will be a write-off.

"We still need pediatrics, obstetrics and public health nursing. Apart from the servicemen, there are their dependants to be considered. Baby clinics, post and prenatal clinics are all part of a service nurse's work."

At 41, Maj. Adams can look forward to retirement at either 55 or when she has completed 28 years of service. She intends to settle for the latter.

"That will give me four more years to travel, but on my own time."

Exiled Dancer Accused of Plotting With Former Kashmir Prime Minister

By ROBERT GATTY

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — A petite blonde artist and dancer from England has a tale to tell of a royal life in Kashmir—a life that ended at the point of a gun.

Mrs. Edna Bailey, known then as Miss Edna Bellefontaine, has lived for the past four years in Trenton, performing native dances from India for the wealthy and women's groups.

They are dances she once performed before maharajahs for which she was given jewels and for which she won notoriety.

Mrs. Bailey, still a wisp of a woman, lives in an exotic, richly-decorated apartment just a block from the state house in New Jersey's capital city. She is the wife of a public relations man.

Surrounded by Indian carpets, ornaments, weapons, bells, long-necked musical instruments and ornate lampshades, and with the air heavy with sandalwood and incense, she dances to Eastern music floating from a record player.

But before she was exiled from Kashmir, the beautiful and troubled province which set India and Pakistan at each other's throats four years ago, she lived on a houseboat, hiked through the Himalayas, spent a night in the deeps of a sacred cave and painted all she saw.

She was with Pakistani President Mohammed Ayub Khan and President Iskander Mirza in the garden of the presidential palace in Karachi four hours before Mirza was banished to England.

Mrs. Bailey spent most of her life on the Indian subcontinent. She was born in England, the daughter of a Belgian civil engineer and an English woman.

She went to India at the age of 10 when her father was working for the Maharajah of Mysore and it was there that she became interested in Indian art, particularly dancing.

Before she was banished from Kashmir in 1953, she was known as the Mata Hari of Kashmir because of her dancing. Then she donned, as she still does, a black wig and Indian native costumes to perform the exotic dances.

On August 7, 1953, Indian police arrived at her houseboat and at gunpoint, ordered her out of Kashmir within 24 hours. She was accused of plotting with Sheik Abdullah, then prime minister, to secure the province's independence.

Abdullah was arrested and jailed.

With her six trunks and two dogs, the Mata Hari was flown to New Delhi. She tried for years, both in Pakistan and India, for permission to return to Kashmir. But it was denied.

And her sick mother, to whom she wanted to return, died there alone.

After her exile, Mrs. Bailey wrote an autobiography, Externed from Paradise, telling of her experience.

She says she was the first white woman to enter the Himalayan Kingdom of Nepal, escorted over Himalayan foothills to Katmandu by a body guard of the Indian government.

She danced for royalty and she says Indian princes sponsored her paintings and dances.

Mrs. Bailey, who says she's in her 40s, now wants to teach Indian dancing in a college or university.

Dancing, she looks a bit like the tiny silver figure of Lakshmi, goddess of good luck which she has owned since student days in Bangalore.

Her 25 costumes include rich saris, tight judphurs worn under a pleated skirt with a gold-embroidered waistcoat, heavy and ornamental jewelry.

"The dances themselves call for absolute harmony of the hands, feet and head," she said.

"The eyes tell a good bit of the story, too. The dances express love, religion, heartache, longing joy.

"The dances are physically exhilarating, but the legends and myths of India inspire such peace of mind. And these days, we can use all that."

'Hot Deals' Lure Customers

NEW YORK (UPI) — A man was walking down Fifth Avenue in New York City one day not long ago when someone whispered to him from a doorway.

"Hey, mister," the fellow lurking in the doorway said, "you want to buy some good carpet real cheap?"

Now the man accosted happened to be an off-duty detective who figured he was about to capture a thief or fence in the act of selling stolen goods.

The detective followed the secretive man to a dingy store where the carpet in question was produced. The detective flashed his badge. The carpet salesman insisted he was a legitimate businessman and explained:

"I'm overstocked on this carpeting and I haven't been able to sell it, even though I was offering it at a good price. So I've been stopping people and whispering to them. They think they are buying 'hot' goods at a real steal, and I've never had such a good turnover of merchandise."

Cohoes Train at Centennial Pool

By MAUREEN DUFFUS

The big event for swimmers this week is the Victoria and District Swimming Championships, scheduled for Saturday morning and evening at the Centennial Pool, Colwood.

More than 100 youngsters, from 6 to 18, will be taking part.

The home team, the Juan de Fuca Cohoes, will be competing against teams from the Y and the Victoria Olympians.

The mother of a young Coho, waiting in the gallery during one of the strenuous hour-long training sessions, admitted she had doubts about competitive swimming at first.

"They take it so seriously and work so hard, I didn't think it was worth it, especially since Linda gets so nervous she makes herself sick. But on the whole she's having so much fun she won't give it up.

"So here I am every day, when I should be home cooking supper, getting more and more involved in swimming. We're the family with the highest consumption of slow-cooking casseroles in town — but the more I get involved the more enthusiastic I become."

The pool was divided into three lanes: The first for recent graduates of pre-competitive swimming classes, the next for intermediates and the third for seniors.

A total of 70 youngsters from 27 schools have qualified for the team — but there are only two coaches, pool manager Al Aylward and Dr. Jim Portelance, who volunteer their time. They work the swimmers hard, but the children are willing.

Al: "A bit of challenge is good for the kids. They wouldn't be here if they didn't like it. Sure they have to work hard, but they must like it or they wouldn't work hard enough to make the team."

Al also coached Gwen John, who came back from the Paraplegic Olympics last fall with six medals for swimming.

Gwen, at the end of a training session last fall, was heard muttering: "Being an athlete may be all right, but being a middle-aged athlete is awful."

Al: "Sure it is. But Gwen won over kids half her age because she trained properly. If she could jump off a starting box I'd have her competing in standard meets."

Another swimmer: "She won because she had proper coaching. She could beat her own record if she wanted to."

The young Cohoes are out to beat records, too.

Some of them may not qualify at time trials Saturday morning.

"But then neither would the great record-holders of the thirties," Al added. "Some of these kids swimming now could beat the 'stars' of 20 or 30 years ago.

"The great thing is there are more youngsters swimming well now, and some of the better ones could beat former Olympic records."

Al regrets that so many of the better Canadian swimmers must go to the States to continue their training. Only one Canadian University, Simon Fraser, grants athletic scholarships.

Meantime, the youngsters get all the practice they can attending swimming meets here and out of town.

"It's an expensive business," a swimmer's mother laments "and time consuming. But we feel it's worth it, when our children enjoy it so much."

Grandparents and Toddlers Swim at Popular Pool

While organized municipalities are still planning proposed community swimming pools, residents of that "unplanned mess" known as the Colwood-Langford-Metchosin area are thoroughly enjoying their two-year-old pool.

Generously, they are letting the underprivileged from other municipalities use it too.

The pool is in use from six in the morning, when senior Cohoes practise, until 10 at night, but not all the swimmers are working as hard at it as the Cohoes.

At the other end of the scale is a group of "regulars" unofficially known as the Noon Hour Social and Swim Club. Members include mothers escaping for relaxation, older people swimming their half mile a day just for fun, toddlers and occasionally, infants.

Mornings at the pool are devoted to instruction for mothers and tots, and two days a week there are special classes for retarded children from the Dogwood School.

Three days a week afternoons start with instruction for women, many of whom admit they have always been scared of the water, but what with their children swimming like fish they have "sort of been shamed into learning."

Coach Al Aylward and his assistant Ron Aubrey spend a lot of time, the first few lessons, assuring the beginners they won't really sink.

One mother says that she and two others in her class were slow learners. The day they all finally learned to float they went home and had a party to celebrate.

On alternate days there are lessons for pre-schoolers with Al teaching them first to put their head under water and blow bubbles. Tots, on the whole, aren't nearly as frightened as their mothers.

From 2 to 3:30 p.m. the pool is open to all, unless rented by schools or by special groups.

One of these activities is the grade five school board-sponsored program which tries to make sure that every child in Victoria and district schools learns to swim.

These sessions, with up to 100 children under the care of several qualified instructors, are a noisy contrast to the noon hour social and swim club.

From then until 10 p.m. the pool is crowded, starting with more instruction, team coaching, synchronized swimming, recreational swimming and finally, adults only.

It's a well-used recreational facility, and recent figures show attendance is over 232,800 in the short time the pool has been in operation.

Hardly a day goes by without someone remarking "I thought I was too busy to drag myself out, but now I feel so refreshed I might even manage to finish the ironing or do a bit of gardening."

Conclusion: A community pool is a worthwhile investment.

But it would be nice if someone could find a way of curing, preferably avoiding, the bleary-eyed, bloodshot look of the constant swimmer, which makes even the fresh-faced youngsters look suspiciously hung-over.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Misplaced Concern

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to the woman who said that the mother whose son way lying dead in Viet Nam was better off than she, whose 19-year-old son was sick, dirty, living hand to mouth and using drugs.

I run a drug treatment program called RAP (Recognize All Potential) which deals primarily with adolescent and college-age drug users. Many of them are sick and dirty, living hand to mouth.

When I read them the mother's letter above, some of them said, "I'll bet my mother wrote that. She really wishes I were dead."

Abby, please tell that mother to examine her own feelings towards her son. Why has she given up hope for him?

Perhaps if some of these parents would worry less about what to tell their friends and more about what to tell their children, I could work less than 20 hours a day attempting to help kids whose parents wish they were dead. — Patricia Packard.

DEAR PATRICIA: It's a great job you and your colleagues are doing. Drug addiction among the young is, in my opinion, one of our nation's most serious problems. If only we had an educational program effective enough to keep our kids away from the stuff, we wouldn't have to work so hard to get them off the stuff.

DEAR ABBY: I guess my problem is a very common one as my husband says all men do the same thing.

Let me explain. A few months ago my husband and I were getting ready for bed, and he reached over to lay his wallet on the dresser and he missed. His wallet fell on the floor and everything in it spilled out. Plain as could be were some pictures of naked men and women together. (I do mean together.)

I was shocked and sick, but pretended I didn't see them. I tried to put it out of my mind. Now this morning when I went into his pants pocket to get a dollar for my daughter to take to school, I found more pictures just like the first. I wasn't spying or prying. I have always gone into my husband's pants pockets with his knowledge and permission.

This time I mentioned it to my husband, and he said all men carry pictures like that around. Do they? What does this mean? Could a man love and respect his wife and carry stuff like that? He never used to act this way. Please answer soon. — Wants to Know.

DEAR WANTS: Only the emotionally immature would look twice at such pictures. If your husband "never used to act this way," perhaps he is undergoing some personality change due to a physical illness. Ask your doctor. It's normal for curious little boys, but not for grown men.

DEAR ABBY: I think the other peoples of the world can take a lesson from the Chinese. It is their custom to settle up all their debts before New Year's Day. What do you say?—All American

DEAR ALL: It's easy for the Chinese. They don't have Christmas the week before.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S. A.: A closed mouth gathers no feet.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

First Lady of France Likes Fast Cars and Privacy

PARIS (AP) — Claude Pompidou likes fast cars, abstract paintings, good horses, show business people, pace-setting fashions and privacy.

The wife of the French president finds life "confining" in the presidential palace although the private apartments have been redecorated and are bright and livable.

The "official art" of old France, which apparently pleased her predecessor, Yvonne de Gaulle, has given way to striking paintings by Giacometti, Poliakoff, De Stael and Max Ernest.

Despite this transformation, she is said to prefer their old apartment on the Ile St. Louis, or the two houses they have in the country, and perhaps the old, easier style of life.

MME. CLAUDE POMPIDOU

"I'm neither happy nor unhappy" as First Lady, she told an interviewer.

"I just try to do what's expected of me."

Daughter of a provincial doctor, Claude Cahour was given a "stern but sane" upbringing by her father. Her mother died when she was nine.

MET IN LAW SCHOOL

Dr. Cahour sent Claude to law school in Paris, where she met Georges Pompidou, a future professor then taking a doctorate in French literature.

The father was said to be initially against Claude's marriage because he was uncertain whether Pompidou would amount to anything.

The couple moved to Marseille, where Georges had a teaching job. The war years were passed in Paris, where Pompidou taught in a high school.

As her husband began to move up and became associated with the men who control power and treasure in France, Claude earned a reputation as something of a swinger.

She moved in a fast set in St. Tropez, becoming friends with writer Francoise Sagan, painter Bernard Buffet and his wife, singers Guy Beart, Marie Laforet and Juliette Greco.

Tall, blonde and athletic, with striking angular looks, she was a familiar sight in the places frequented by "tout Paris," French cafe society.

LIKES INDEPENDENCE

Mme. Pompidou now complains of the lack of spontaneity imposed by official life. She misses "a certain form of independence" and notes she cannot even go to the movies when she wants.

The best times, she says, are the Sundays at their country home in Orvilliers, an hour from the capital or vacations at Cajarc, not far from Pompidou's birthplace in central France.

There she can do what she likes: wear miniskirts, pants suits, Bermudas, ride horseback, receive friends, listen to Mozart or Guy Beart, or take her Porsche for a fast run over the twisting country roads.

Her trip to the United States, when Pompidou goes next week on his first official visit outside France, terrifies her.

"America is so huge," she says.

She was there nine years ago, when Pompidou was a director for the Rothschild banks.

Women Saints May Become Doctors of the Church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — For the first time in Roman Catholic history, two women saints may be made doctors of the church, reports circulating in the Vatican said.

The reports said Pope Paul already has signed decrees to proclaim St. Teresa of Avila, Spain, and St. Catherine of Siena, Italy, as doctors sometime this year.

Only 30 saints have received the title of doctor of the Roman Catholic Church. The title is given because of learning, sanctity and writings for the benefit of Roman Catholicism.

The reports said Pope Paul has decided to proclaim two women saints as doctors after long consultations with top theologians and experts, some of whom had objected.

Among the most prominent doctors of the church are St. Thomas Aquinas, Ambrose, Augustine and Jerome.

The last saints to be given the title were Anthony of Padua, proclaimed by Pope Pius XII in 1946, and the Capuchin Lawrence of Brindisi, Italy, named by Pope John XXIII in 1959.

St. Catherine, like St. Francis of Assisi, patron saint of Italy, lived in the 14th century.

Ranked among the most prominent Roman Catholic mystics and spiritual writers, she had great influence in the church's policy of her time. Born about 1347, she died in Rome in 1380. She was elevated to sainthood by Pope Pius II in 1461.

St. Teresa, born at Avila in 1515, gained fame as the reformer of the Carmelite Order and founder of new monasteries in her country.

A mystic writer like Catherine, Teresa's writings rank among the best of their kind in Spanish religious literature. Her greatest books were The Way of Perfection, an autobiography, and The Interior Castle.

Pope Gregory XV made Teresa a saint in 1622 along with her countryman, St. Ignatius of Loyola, the founder of the Jesuit Society. She died at Alba de Tormes, Spain, in 1582.

Will Paint Replace Clothes?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bodies beautiful will wear paint instead of clothes in the seventies, an Irish designer forewarns the timid.

Never mind that the ancient Romans accidentally killed some babies by painting them gold and closing all the pores.

Clodagh O'Kennedy, the prognosticator from Dublin, said contemporary body paints are safer. Her prediction came at a designers speak-in in conjunction with the New York Couture business council's semi-annual happening for the nation's fashion reporters.

Miss O'Kennedy said some paint will have insulating components mixed in. No need to worry about catching a cold when wearing such body paint only on a chill day.

During questioning, Miss O'Kennedy stuck by her paints, saying that even in chaste Ireland people are getting tied up in nudity and the body beautiful cult.

"If we're all making our bodies beautiful, surely we're not going to cover them with clothes all the time," she said.

Phone Guarantee Urged

A provincial law is needed to guarantee telephone access for persons arrested by police, Gordon Dowding (MDP—Burnaby-Edmonds) said Wednesday.

He cited cases of a Vancouver mother and a young visitor from Seattle who were held overnight in jail without access to a telephone to arrange bail or obtain counsel.

The American visitor was subsequently acquitted of charges of theft without even having to take the witness stand and went home with bitter memories of Canada, Dowding said.

People arrested in the U.S. have the right to use the telephone, he said.

"If it means this house has to pass a law punitive on police officers or jailers (to guarantee the right) then pass it," Dowding, a lawyer, told the legislature.

He also called on Premier Bennett to postpone plans for a $50 million B.C. government skyscraper in Vancouver in the interests of controlling inflation.

He said Bennett's budget with its authorization of extra borrowing power for B.C. Hydro could hardly be called anti-inflationary.

Bennett had gone to Ottawa tion conference talking about tion conferencetalking about a recession in a large part of Canada but there was no mention of it in the budget speech delivered two weeks ago by the premier, he said.

"You would never know from the budget it was the same man talking," Dowding said.

OTTAWA HALTS POLICY TO HIKE JOBLESS: WAC

Premier Bennett said Wednesday the federal government has stopped pursuing anti-inflationary policies which would increase unemployment in B.C.

"They got off that kick," he told reporters on his return to the legislative buildings Wednesday after attending the federal-provincial conference on inflation in Ottawa Monday and Tuesday.

Earlier he had described such a policy as "straight stupid."

Bennett was asked if all premiers at the conference had gone home agreed on the question of limiting government expenditures in the anti-inflation fight.

He avoided the question.

Shoplifter Case Said 'Pathetic'

A 33-year-old women was sentenced in court Wednesday to two months in jail for shoplifting.

Marie I. Young, 4 Kingham Place, was found guilty Feb. 13 of taking some cartons of cigarettes from the Shop-Easy store, 1913 Sooke Road, last December without paying for them.

The crown said this was the accused's fifth conviction for similar offences since 1966.

Judge William Ostler called the case "a thoroughly pathetic and unhappy" one and added he had "wrestled" a considerable time over the sentence he imposed.

He said he hoped that with the intervention of professional help the accused could be assisted.

★ ★ ★

William W. Andrews, 36, of 754 Kings, and Henry A. Erdman, 46, address unknown, were each fined $35 for obtaining food by fraud.

The two went to the Golden Kitchen restaurant, 546 Fisgard, Feb. 17, and ordered a meal which they could not pay for.

★ ★ ★

Jerry J. Baker, 27, of Alert Bay, was sentenced to 14 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

He was stopped Feb. 18 for driving a car that was weaving from side to side on Douglas.

He had a previous drinking-driving conviction.

★ ★ ★

Maria Perri, 43, of 524 Ellice, was fined $200 for shoplifting.

She pleaded guilty Feb. 10 to taking $4.75 worth of merchandise from the Canada Safeway store, 2635 Quadra, and leaving the store.

★ ★ ★

Daniel Gibson, 20, of no fixed address, was fined $250 for driving a car with no insurance coverage.

He was stopped Jan. 12.

★ ★ ★

Eric John Asikainen, of HMCS St. Croix, and Ronald Coultish, 2823 Knotty Pine Road, were each fined $300 for driving a car with a blood-alcohol content over .08 per cent.

It was recommended that Coultish's licence by suspended for four months while Asikainen was prohibited from driving for four months.

Asikainen was the driver of a car that went in a ditch at Belmont Park Feb. 4. His breathalyzer reading was .15 per cent.

Coultish was involved in an accident at Rockey Point Road and Happy Valley Road Feb. 4 and his reading was .12 per cent.

Interference 'Impossible' Trudeau Says

OTTAWA (CP) + Prime Minister Trudeau said in the Commons Wednesday it would be impossible for the federal government to interfere with provinces which refuse to follow guides for fighing inflation.

Replying to questions by Gilbert Rondeau (Creditiste-Shefford), Mr. Trudeau said this kind of interference is not being considered.

Flying Phil Retains Lead in Air Race

Phil Gaglardi is still literally flying in the face of criticism.

He led all other cabinet ministers last year in use of government aircraft, piling up about 50 per cent more trips than in 1968 when he was strongly criticized by opposition MLAs on the issue.

Gaglardi used government planes on 158 separate flights in 1969, some involving several stops but most carrying him between Victoria and Vancouver and frequently to Kamloops, his home constituency.

The figures are compiled from a report on aircraft passengers filed Wednesday by Highways Minister Wesley Black.

Gaglardi was credited with 73 trips in 1968 in the March-to-December period, largely following his resignation as highways minister in the midst of controversy over use of government aircraft by his family and land deals by his sons.

Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy retained her hold on second place last year with 71 trips, compared with 72 in 1968.

Minister Without Portfolio Pat Jordan increased her use of the planes from 32 flights in 1968 to 39 in 1969 but preliminary study indicates she lost her claim to third place as a result of general increase in use of the planes by cabinet ministers.

The aircraft log is expected to get careful study from opposition MLAs in the public accounts committee.

It showed three aircraft in use in 1968 and five last year.

Gaglardi's love of flying as highways minister was legendary but there was a storm of criticism last year when it was revealed he had led the cabinet in flying time after losing his portfolio in 1968.

Last year Gaglardi was a minister without portfolio until October when he took over the social welfare portfolio. He was in charge of the Provincial Alliance of Businessmen, a job-finding agency, from mid-summer on.

MONTREAL, February 19th — Too many times we neglect a sore throat — because it just isn't convenient to gargle. But there is a simple solution... ASPERGUM*! Aspergum sends relief right to where the problem is — in your throat. This orange or cherry flavoured chewing gum is pleasant to take — and yet effective for minor aches and pains or irritated throats. No problem, either, to get children to take their medicine when it's in chewing gum form. I carry Aspergum wherever I go and whenever a simple medication is needed — or I have a sore throat — I chew Aspergum. It helps.

HAVE YOU EVER REALIZED HOW VERSATILE pork chops can be? Recently I tried a new recipe that transformed plain pork chops into delicious party fare. And it's an easy recipe with real "family" appeal! First put one envelope each of LIPTON CREAM OF MUSHROOM and LIPTON ONION SOUP into a paper bag. Now shake the number of pork chops you'll need in the soup mixture. Brown coated chops in skillet, using any leftover soup mixture to make a sauce. Cover, simmer till tender. Lipton does make everything you cook taste better — easier!

THERE'S NOTHING LIKE A BACK-ACHE to take the joy out of life. But why suffer? Join the many, many people who count on DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS to bring them relief. Ottawa Has Power to Halt Skagit Valley Flooding

The federal government has the power to stop the proposed flooding of the Skagit River valley but the provincial government is busy preparing to cut 16 million cubic feet of timber so the project can proceed.

These claims were heard Wednesday as the battle to save the B.C. valley, 40 miles southeast of Hope at the U.S. border, continued in the legislature.

Gordon Dowding (NDP—Edmonds-Burnaby) read from a letter written by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp indicating that the city of Seattle would need federal government approval to flood the valley by raising the level of Ross Lake south of the border to meet electric power needs.

'STUMP RANCH'

Dave Brousson (L—North Vancouver-Capilano) said the B.C. Gazette of Feb. 5 shows the provincial government plans an April 6 sale of timber cutting rights on the land scheduled to be flooded.

This would turn it into "a stump ranch" long before there was any certainty the land would be flooded, he said.

REFUSE PERMIT

Dowding called on the provincial Liberal Party to use its influence on Ottawa to prevent the flooding, agreed to by the provincial government in 1967.

The provincial government should also reverse its earlier policy and ask Ottawa to refuse the permit, he said.

. . . but Province Selling Valley Cutting Rights

The flooding of 6,000 acres in the B.C. valley would provide peak power needs for Seattle. It has been harshly criticized by conservationists.

Brousson told the House flooding of the valley would not take place before eight years even if the city of Seattle is given full permission to proceed with the project by American authorities.

Yet the B.C. government is going ahead with an auction of a timber licence on April 6 that will authorize the harvesting of nearly 16 million cubic feet of timber on the ground to be flooded, Brousson said.

The Liberal MLA explained the city of Seattle will be hearing objections of American conservationists to the project in March. If the council will continue with the project, they must apply to the Federal Power Commission at Washington, D.C.

Hearings there will take 12 months, and even if approval is granted recourse can be had to the courts "which is a privilege we don't have in B.C.," Brousson said.

The whole procedure, Brousson added, would take about four years, and there would be another four years before construction would be completed. Yet the timber would be cut within three years and the valley ruined, he pointed out.

"What a tragedy, if we were to deflower the Skagit Valley, leave it naked and ravished, and then discover that the Americans had changed their minds. Another Cypress Bowl, this time in the Skagit Valley."

Brousson said he bitterly resented an implication by Resources Minister Ray Williston that Americans were behind attempts to prevent flooding in the valley, and demanded a retraction and an apology.

Conservationists Seen . . . as Obstructionists

In Williston's eyes, the MLA said, conservationists are apparently seen as nuisances and obstructionists.

"This demonstrates the fundamental reason why we need a single minister responsible for environmental management," he added.

How can the same minister responsible for the development of the forest and mining industries also be the government's chief spokesman in matters of pollution, conservation and the environment?, he asked.

"I would suggest that many of us in B.C. believe that the problem is not the conservationists, but feel rather that the major problem is the minister himself."

Brousson also said he hoped the Squamish Indian band would think about the establishment of an Indian cultural exhibit and that the government would support such a project.

The Liberal MLA gave notice he would do all he could to bring about amalgamation of North Vancouver District and North Vancouver City.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

MOVIE TO WATCH tonight is Hud, on Channel 7 at 9:00. It's a must for movie drama fans. A superb cast headed by Paul Newman, Patricia Neal and Melvyn Douglas makes this story about a ruthless young man who tarnishes everything and everyone he touches, ring true from start to finish. Newman is the perfect embodiment of an alienated youth, out for kicks with no regard for the consequences. The drama is deepened by the bitter conflict between the callous Hud and his stern and highly principled father (Douglas). Patricia Neal makes all her scenes count in her Oscar-winning portrayal as their world-weary housekeeper. (Black and white.)

* * *

THIS IS TOM JONES, 7:30, Channel 8; 9:00, Channel 4. Leslie Uggams is Tom Jones' special guest tonight, singing "we Can Work It Out"; "Didn't We," and "Everybody Goes to the Moon" on her own, and joining her host for a duet to "Somewhere." Jones' segment of tunes includes "The River of No Return" and "Who Can I Turn To?"; comedian Guy Marks handles the humor of the hour, and rock songs are represented by Joe Cocker and The Grease Band.

* * *

DEAN MARTIN, 8:30, Channel 8; 10:00, Channel 5. Lee J. Cobb reads a bit from "King Lear," and then mugs with Dean in a sketch on method acting. Buddy Ebsen hoofs to "Shine On Your Shoes" and teaches the cast a few dance tricks. The Clinger Sisters cosy up to Dean in "Getting to Know You," and Debby Clinger has Martin to herself for a couple of songs.

* * *

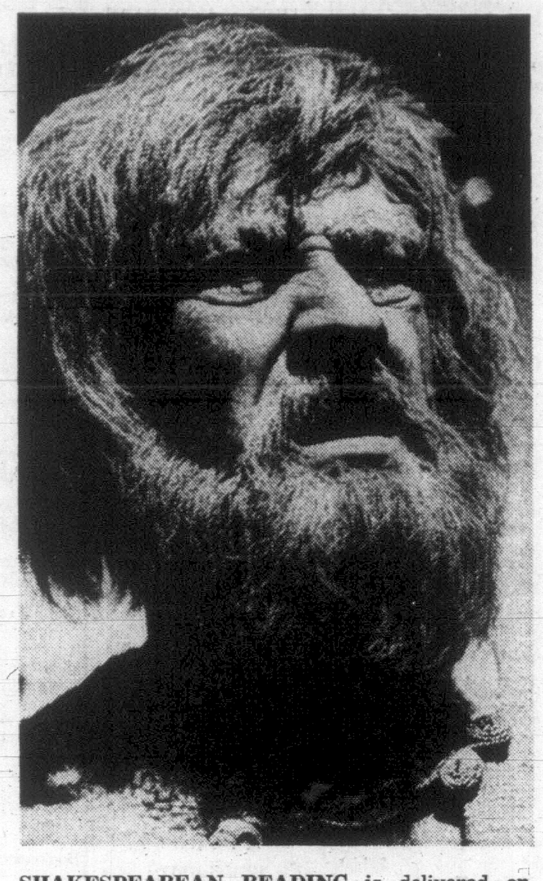
FAMILY AFFAIR, 7:00, Channel 8; 7:30, Channel 7. Here's one that's right down parents' alley. House rules are suspended for Buffy and Jody as an experiment, and the kids do exactly as they please. The moral of this permissiveness story is that total freedom has its drawbacks. Whether kids will accept this party-line is something else again, but gorwnups will be satisfied with the outcome.

* * *

JIM NABORS, 8:00, Channel 7. It's Sigmund Romberg operetta time. Jim and opera star Marilyn Horne trot out a big medley of Romberg favorites, and give their hearts to Viennese waltzes in the grand finale. For her solo, Miss Horne sings "La Chanson Boheme" while Nabors does "You Must Have Faith" and "Straight Life." On the comedy roster, talkative Totie Fields and Ronnie Schell kid TV exercise shows, and play a married couple seeking advice from counsellor Frank Sutton. In "Brothers-In-Law," Frank slips into a neck brace to con an insurance adjustor, hoping truthful Jim Nabors won't spoil his act.

* * *

THAT GIRL, 8:00, Channel 4. "The Night They Raided Daddy's." Funny outing lampoons the current vogue among entertainers to perform in the all-together. Ann's father is very blue because his restaurant isn't doing well and after some investigating, Ann comes up with a solution—hire a rock group to lure the customers. It works well until the group strips for the big finish. An amusing poke at the nudity trend in show business today.



SHAKESPEAREAN READING is delivered on tonight's Dean Martin Show (8:30, Channel 8; 10, Channel 5) by Lee J. Cobb, who dons full makeup for King Lear excerpt.

IRONSIDE, 8:30, Channel 5. "Ransom." This series does very well with kidnapping plots, and one can only hope there aren't as many crimes of this nature in the San Francisco area as manage to cross the Chief's desk. The trick is to involve a staff member in the caper directly, and it's Eve's turn to be a co-hostage with the victim tonight. A good cast headed by John Saxon and Fritz Weaver manages to sustain interest in the tale, which even comes up with a cleverly contrived gimmick for the final scene.

70s AT '69 PRICES!

Here are a couple of GMC Handi-Vans that must go. Both are long wheelbase models, with heavy-duty axles, springs and brakes. One is a 250 six, the other a 307 eight. The six has windows all around, the eight has them in rear and side doors, and both have three-speed automatics and six-ply truck tires.

We are prepared to make an attractive deal on these; why not come in and talk about it?

Empress Signs Pact With Union

Empress Hotel employees have agreed on a three-year contract with management that will raise their pay by 42 cents an hour during that time.

There will be 14-cent-an-hour raises in each of the three years.

The contract, signed last week, covers some 220 permanent employees, but at least 400 will be involved when extra staff is hired during the summer months.

The employees also gained one more statutory holiday, bringing the total to nine; improved annual vacations providing three weeks after 12 years' service and four weeks after 18 years; bereavement leave and rest periods.

In the past there was no provision for four-week vacations. Three-week vacations became effective after 15 years.

"The new contract was negotiated in a peaceful atmosphere," Clem Michaels, president of Local 276, Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers Union, said.

"It was an atmosphere free of strike threats, and that is something these days."

In previous years bargaining session between the union and the Empress management have provoked bitter disputes.

HOME GARDEN

Fruit Tree Pruning Demonstration

By JACK BEASTALL

The home gardener with one or two fruit trees and no knowledge of pruning can, with a little guidance, keep his trees in good condition with a reasonable balance between new growth and fruit production. His big problem is where to obtain that little bit of help and instruction so desperately needed.

Jack

Two sources are books from the public libarary and the bulletins published by the various departments of agriculture. The more books and bulletins one can devour the greater should be one's knowledge of the subject.

But this does not always hold true. Quite often, in all forms of agriculture and horticulture, the more we read on a subject the more confusing it becomes.

The reason is not difficult to pinpoint. Horticulture is carried out all over the world in different climates and soils, and with many species and hybrids of the same plants. Each writer gives his experiences with certain species under conditions prevailing where his garden is located.

Only experience can provide the ideal cultural practices for a given location, but experience takes time to acquire.

Realizing this difficulty, the Victoria Horticultural Society has for years sponsored fruit tree pruning demonstrations in Victoria and surrounding areas.

At these demonstrations the art of pruning fruit trees is explained, the work is done on actual trees not hypothetical drawings, and the gardener can ask questions and find answers.

On Saturday, February 21, a demonstration will be given at 1250 Hastings Street (Wilkinson-Interurban junction) and on Saturday, Feb. 28, at 3265 Linwood Ave. (Quadra-Tolmie). Both start at 2 sharp with Al Smith demonstrating.

If you find fruit tree pruning to be a nightmare, here is your opportunity to turn it into a pleasant reality.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Pair of Miracles Mark Our History

By BOB BOWMAN

Many historians agree that there are two miracles in Canadian history. The first is the survival of French Canada and the second is the survival of Canada. Since 1783 both French Canada, and all of Canada, have been in danger of being swallowed by the U.S. Until recently French-speaking leaders knew that their only hope of survival was to be sheltered as part of British Canada, and Sir Etienne-Paschal Tache, who presided at the Quebec conference leading to Confederation, said "If this country should cease one day to be British, the last gun fired in defence of British sovereignty in America will be that of a French Canadian."

There have been many occasions when the U.S. nearly obtained part or all of present-day Canada. The first was during the negotiations that ended the American Revolutionary War. Benjamin Franklin told the British delegates that it was a shame to risk another war by having a British colony forming the northern border of the U.S. and it would be better if Canada were surrendered. He nearly got away with it because there were a number of British statesmen who agreed with that point of view then, and even 100 years later. Sir John A. Macdonald was always fearful that Prime Minister Gladstone of Britain would allow the U.S. to take over Canada.

This was also one of the reasons why Canada decided to take over the vast territory owned by the Hudson's Bay Company, including the present-day Prairie provinces. On February 19, 1869, the U.S. Senate received a report on the North Pacific Railway which said "The opening by us first of a North Pacific railway seals the destiny of British possessions west of the 91st meridian. Annexation will be but a question of time."

In 1911 Sir Wilfrid Laurier nearly completed a reciprocal trade deal with the U.S. but it was opposed by many leading Canadians, including members of his own party, because Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, said "I am for the Reciprocity Agreement because I hope to see the day when the American flag will float over every square foot of the British North American possessions clear to the North Pole." Of course there were also other objections to the treaty.

Other events on Feb. 19:

1631 — First Lutheran baptism in Canada took place at Quebec.

1732 — Religious houses were forbidden to shelter fugitives from justice.

1860 — Ship "Hungarian" was lost off Cape Sable, N.S., with 205 lives.

1873 — First CPR company received charter.

1889— Louis Riel's assistant, Gabriel Dumont, was pardoned for his part in Northwest Rebellion.

1897— Women's Institute of Canada was organized by Adelaide Hunter Hoodless at Stoney Creek, Ontario.

1911 — Japan denounced trade treaty with Canada.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

There are situations that develop at the bridge table when a play is made by declarer that can never win a trick for him directly, but can serve a useful purpose in that it creates a hope for the future. Such was the case in the deal presented today, in which our South declarer failed to find the winning hope.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♡	Pass	3♡	Pass
6♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ◊.

Dummy's king of diamonds captured the opening lead, after which a trump was led to South's ace. Dummy was then entered via the diamond ace, and a spade was led, declarer's queen being finessed. Upon winning with the king, West returned a diamond. Eventually declarer had to lose another spade trick, thus incurring a one-trick set.

As South played the hand, he staked everything on the spade finesse. Actually, he had something additional going for him that would have eliminated the finesse.

After winning the opening diamond lead with the board's king, the ace of trumps is cashed. Next the ace of clubs is played, and this is followed by the diamond queen. South's remaining diamond is then led to dummy's ace, thus eliminating diamonds from both the North and South hands.

Next comes the queen of clubs, and when East plays low (perforce), South does not trump. Instead, he discards his duce of spades, as West wins the trick with his king.

West is now end-played. If he returns a club, dummy ruffs as South discards the spade queen from his own hand: And if, instead, West plays back a spade, South's queen becomes a winner.

Of course, the suggested line of play would have failed if East—in theory—had put up the club king on dummy's queen of clubs. In case, South would have been forced to stake everything on a spade finesse. But the point of the deal is that South had everything to gain, nothing to lose, by leading the queen of clubs, and hoping that West possessed the king.

Bird Count Uncovers Strange Happenings

By ARNIE HAKALA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Two Ottawa screech owls appear to be getting fussy about their menus.

There was a time when they were content with insects in the summer and mostly mice in the winter.

But fried chicken?

When Ottawa bird watchers spotted one of the small 10-inch owls perched in a tree near a chicken take-out restaurant, it wasn't as if they had flushed out a rare species.

But when another owl appeared in a tree near a similar restaurant on the other side of town ... well, they started to wonder.

There were other odd occurrence during the traditional bird counts held by naturalist societies near cities across Canada at the end of 1969.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press also showed:

- A robin at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when the temperature was five below zero.
- A ruddy duck, which usually winters between Long Island and the Gulf of Mexico, near St. John's, Nfld.
- Eight greater yellow-legs, shore birds, seen for the first time in winter in Nova Scotia.
- A great blue heron near Sackville, N.B.
- A Red-Bellied Woodpecker seen near Quebec City and reported to be only the second one ever spotted in the province.
- A brown thrasher and a Bohemian waxwing near Winnipeg, both rare sightings.

rated by the National Audubon Society in 1900 and has become an annual event held on a day between Dec. 20 and Jan. 1. All clubs that participate — about 75 in Canada — forward their results to the society which publishes them in an annual report.

1970 TAX TIPS

Q. I arrived in Canada in March last year. I am told that I must enter on my tax return the date of my entry into Canada. Why is this?

A. You must state your date of entry into Canada because your total personal exemptions, and standard deductions if applicable, are prorated according to the portion of the year that you were a resident of this country. The space for entering this information is at the top right hand side of page 1 of your income tax return.

Q. Last year I won a scholarship. Is this taxable?

A. If the scholarship is a prize for academic achieve ment and has nothing to do with your job, it is not taxable. In other circum stances, you should take up the question with your district tax office.

Q. Last year I changed my job and now I work in a town 35 miles away from my home. We had purchased our house and I do not wish to sell it, but it is costing me a great deal of money travelling to and from work in my car. Can I claim these travelling expenses when filing my income tax return?

A. No. The expense of travelling to and from work are not deductible.

Q. I was transferred to another city in 1969 and we decided to rent our house rather than sell it. I understand I can deduct capital cost allowance from my rental income but what do I use for a capital cost figure? We lived in the house for years and, with the improvements we made it's worth a lot more than we paid for it originally.

A. You are entitled to claim capital cost allowance on the amount you could have sold your home for when you started to rent it, minus the value of the land.

Q. My WIFE DIED A YEAR AGO AND I have had to retain a housekeeper to care for the children and do domestic chores. Can I claim an income tax deduction or exemption for her?

A. You may not claim any deduction or exemption for your housekeeper, as such, but because you employ a housekeeper, you are entitled to claim the $1,000 equivalent exemption for one of your children and also claim the usual $300 or $550 exemption for that same child. Details of how you make this claim are shown on the income tax return.

Q. When Ifill out my tax return do I have to declare as income money that I win such as bingo prizes?

A. Bingo prizes are not considered to be income.

Q. Part of my earnings are tips and gratuities received directly from customers. Can I make Canada Pension contributions on income from this source?

A. Tips and gratuities must be reported for tax purposes. You may file on a T1 general tax return and calculate Canada Pension contributions at the rate of 3.6 per cent on your earnings from tips and gratuities. The total Canada Pension Plan contributions made by yourself and your employer may not exceed the 1969 maximum of $165.60.

Q. I have two bank accounts and the interest on one of them was less than 210 so I haven't received a T5 slip. Does this mean I don't have to declaire this amount of income when I file my tax return?

A. Interest credited to your bank account is your income regardless of whether or not you received a T5.

15 Speeches Planned by Stanfield

TORONTO (CP)—Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Wednesday night he will make 15 speeches in a cross-country tour aimed at mobilizing opposition to the federal government's white paper on tax reform.

Launching the five-week campaign at a meeting at suburban Richmond Hill that attracted an overflow crowd of 1,000, Stanfield said the tax proposals pose a real threat to Canada's economy.

He said that if implemented the paper would have unfortunate effects for the country as a whole and Canadians as taxpayers.

"It's really beyond patching," he said.

The unreliability of estimates in the paper of the over-all effect on tax revenues was sufficient reason alone for the government not to proceed further with it, he said.

LOFFMARK

Fair Area Sharing Pledged

An "equitable" cost-sharing formula for health services in the Greater Victoria Regional District was pledged today by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

But takeover of the Metropolitan Board of Health by a full-scale regional board will require some time, he said.

Negotiations for such a takeover have been underway for about three years.

Loffmark told the legislature that the unspecified financial formula will be closely watched by the government prior to announcing a province-wide formula for public health services.

In a letter sent today to Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Metro Health Board which would be absorbed by a regional board, Loffmark stressed that the proposals to be made soon would be an "interim measure so far as costs are concerned."

The rate would be "set at a level sufficient to maintain existing services," the letter said.

The City of Victoria had threatened to pull out of the Metro Board partly because of what Loffmark today acknowledged was an "anomalous" situation in which outlying areas paid much less per capita for public health services than the core area.

Abortion Authority Extended

The number of hospitals permitted to carry out therapeutic abortions will be "substantially" increased in B.C., Health Minister Ralph Loffmark told the legislature today.

Instructions are being sent to hospitals explaining how they should go about being designated by Loffmark to handle abortions under amendments to the Criminal Code last year.

SHAKEN after a lone bandit took approximately $2,000 from her till is bank teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl. When Mrs. Wahl didn't react quickly enough to a note demanding the money, the robber ordered her to "hurry up." The note claimed there was a gun in a briefcase.

Intensive Investigation Into Bank Robbery Here

Police are continuing "an intensive investigation" into the holdup Wednesday-afternoon in which a bandit escaped with about $2,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Fort and Cook.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 1:30 p.m. and handed teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl, 1607 Ross, a note which read:

"This is a holdup. Give me all in your drawer. I have a gun in my briefcase and I will use it. Don't push the burglar alarm until after I'm gone."

Mrs. Wahl did not react fast enough for the man who told her to "hurry up."

He put the money and the note into his briefcase, left the bank, ran across Cook and disappeared into the Cook Medical Building, 1175 Cook.

RED CAR

An older-model red car was seen quickly leaving the area of the medical building about the time the robber disappeared.

Bank manager Larry Haddon said there were six or seven employees on duty at the time of the holdup but none, other than Mrs. Wahl, got a good look at the man. There were no customers in the bank.

The holdup was the fourth bank robbery in the Victoria area in four years.

An armed bandit held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Seaview Plaza on Cordova Bay Road Nov. 30 1968, and fled with $6,900. He was later convicted.

Another man was convicted of taking $2,655 from the Bank of Montreal, Richmond and Fort, Oct. 13, 1967, and three men are serving sentences for robbing the same branch of $18,000 in February, 1966.

U.S. Note Protests Manila Firebombers

MANILA (Reuters) — The United States lodged a strong protest today with the Philippines over a firebomb attack Wednesday night by 1,000 demonstrators on the U.S. embassy here.

A note delivered to the foreign office said the embassy had been left unguarded despite official requests for protection.

The mob broke down the embassy's inner and outer iron gates, entered the building and smashed furniture and glass doors, as well as repeatedly trying to set the building afire.

In a note delivered to Foreign Secretary Carlos Romulo, U.S. Ambassador Henry Byroade said it was common knowledge that demonstrators holding a mass meeting elsewhere were planning to come to the embassy.

TEAR GAS

After they were repulsed from the embassy by police firing tear gas, hundreds of students roamed city streets until after midnight, burning cars and smashing windows at random.

West Holds Line Against Inflation

Eastern Prices Higher

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Western Canada held its own against rising prices in January.

But most eastern centres registered general price increases, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

That was the national picture today as the DBS released its monthly consumer price index.

The price index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, registered a mixture of minor increases and decreases in the cost of food and other items across the nation, but the overall trend was upwards.

EXCEPTION

No figure was provided for Victoria.

Ottawa was an outstanding exception to the general trend in Eastern Canada. Its index in January fell by one-tenth of a point from its 125.8 level in December.

No other city registered a drop, but in western Canada the major cities held the line, unchanged from December.

Vancouver's index remained at 121.0, Edmonton and Calgary at 123.5 and Winnipeg at 126.2.

Saskatoon and Regina went from 121.6 to 121.7, primarily as a result of train fare increases.

FOOD PRICES UP

Halifax led the east in increases when transit fare hikes and increases in food prices boosted its overall index four-tenths of a point, from 123.1 to 123.5.

The index in other Maritime centres rose from 120.5 to 120.9 in St. John's, Nfld., and from 122.0 to 122.4 in St. John, N.B.

A one per cent increase in food prices was blamed for the rise in Montreal's index, from 123.0 to 123.5. The Toronto index rose from 126.6 to 126.8, also primarily as a result of food prices.

$30,000 DAMAGES SET IN SEATTLE RIOTING

SEATTLE (AP) — Initial damage estimates have been set at $30,000 from a violent two-hour demonstration here Tuesday that resulted in one of the highest arrest totals in recent Seattle civil disturbances.

About 1,000 demonstrators protested the Chicago conspiracy trial by kicking in doors on the federal courthouse, hurling bottles through windows and splattering red and black paint on inside and outer walls.

Various businesses near the courthouse also reported extensive window damage

Police arrested 61 persons on charges of violating municipal laws and another 14 were charged with violation of federal laws.

Anti-Riot Law Upset Sought

CHICAGO (AP)—Defence lawyers today moved to contest the validity of the U.S. federal anti-riot law under which five persons have been convicted.

Defence lawyer William Kunstler said he will go to higher courts to upset the 1968 law which prohibits the crossing of state lines with the intent to incite rioting.

A U.S. district court jury convicted five men Wednesday of crossing state lines with the intent to incite rioting during the Democratic convention in August, 1968.

But the jury of 10 women and two men acquitted all seven defendants of conspiracy to promote the bloody confrontations between police and anti-war demonstrators.

Two defendants, Lee Weiner and John Froines, were cleared of conspiracy and of a charge of teaching the use of incendiary devices. Froines and Weiner both resided in Chicago during the summer of 1968 and were not charged in the indictment with crossing state lines to incite rioting.

Convicted were David Dellinger, 54; Jerry Rubin, 31; Thomas Hayden, 30; Abbie Hoffman, 31, and Rennard Davis, 29.

Each man could be sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and fined, $10,000.

NO DATE SET

Judge Julius J. Hoffman did not set a date for sentencing but sentences are expected to be pronounced Friday.

All seven defendants are being held on contempt sentences imposed last weekend.

Kunstler called for mass street demonstrations against the American legal system.

OIL SPILL BILL COULD HIT $1M

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government could collect up to $1,100,000 from the owners of the wrecked Liberian tanker Arrow to pay for damage caused by bunker oil which leaked from the ship, Transport Minister Don Jamieson said Wednesday.

Jamieson said in an interview Sunstone Marine Ltd. of Panama, which formally abandoned the vessel Wednesday, is under legal obligation to pay for the clean-up operation along Nova Scotia's east coast.

Cost-Hold Reaction Mixed

OTTAWA (CP) — An announcement Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau that the government will postpone a series of planned price increases was greeted as a mixed blessing by opposition parties.

Trudeau told the Commons the government will forego increases in postal rates, Air Canada and Canadian National Railways fares, prices for government publications and other services to combat inflation.

While opposition spokesmen welcomed the anti-inflation initiative, most said the restraints will lead to unemployment.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said the program will hurt those at the bottom of the economic ladder.

He said the announcement made during Trudeau's report on this week's two-day federal-provincial conference, contained measures that would "obviously just add to our unemployment problem."

T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, said restraint is necessery but the government should not decrease expenditures where it will cause unemployment.

The government's restraint program was hitting all sectors of the economy instead of being applied selectively, he said.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said a federal provincial conference on monetary reform should be held to solve problems that will be compounded by this week's conference.

Guild Considering Own Vancouver Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild will not return to work at the Sun and the Province without a settlement, Guild executive-secretary Bill McLeman said Wednesday night.

"Settlement is within our grasp and has been for two months," McLeman said in an interview, adding that the guild is considering putting out a paper of its own if the closure of Pacific Press Ltd. continues.

However, he said such newspapers have rarely been successful and a careful study of the situation would be needed first.

McLeman said starting next week, guild members will receive a maximum of $65 a week in "lockout" pay. The B.C. Federation of Labor has asked provincial trade union members for a $250 monthly donation to thwart "an obvious attempt" by Pacific Press to smash newspaper unions.

Local radio and television stations have stepped up news coverage and out-of-town newspapers are snapped up as soon as they appear on newsstands here.

VICTORIA'S SEARCH FOR AN IDENTITY

Abandoned Yard: Tombstone of an Industrial Future

By JACK SCOTT
(Part 4)

It was six men of Indostan
To learning most inclined,
Who went to see the Elephant
(Though all of them were blind),
That each by observation
Might satisfy his mind.

★ ★ ★

Nothing looks quite as desolate as a closed-down shipyards and the closed-down yards of the Victoria Machinery Depot are theatrically so. The winter grass bunches pale and yellow around the derelict, rusted machinery. A sign that nobody reads warns: "Patrolled by dogs."

SCOTT

Walking by there on Dallas Road one day last week Larry Ryan, secretary of the 13,000-member Victoria Labor Council, saw in that silent desolation the tombstone of an industrial future.

"We lost 150 jobs in there in 1967 when it went belly-up," he remarked acidly to his companion, "but, more important, it's the story in a glance of what is happening here.

"Victoria is so over-protective of its environment, so short-sighted in its needs, that there simply is no commitment to industrialization. Instead of saving these yards by keeping abreast of technological advances, as Sweden would or Japan would, they rationalized as they still do today, that we could get by through substitutes or specialization.

"Little or nothing came in to replace them. There are skilled men who made ships in there who are janitors now. Some are running elevators. We lost the dynamism that any city, however pleasant it may be, must have to keep moving ahead."

'. . . so Over-Protective and so Short-Sighted . . .'

Irish-born, 50 years of age, an asembly-line worker with General Motors in Oshawa before he saw the Pacific light, Ryan relates the bleak view on Dallas Road with labor's future in the capital.

"They're black days for the organizer in Victoria," he admits. "Labor councils reflect the growth of industrial activity. We see the continuing shift up Island, to Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River, all with their own councils now. That's the trend. There's a draining away of the primary and secondary industries from this little corner."

Ryan stands and stares glumly through the high wire fence at the idle yards. The brogue still lingers in his voice.

"We came out of the post-war years in Victoria with a false premise. We thought of expanding production, of industrial growth in which the only threat of unemployment would come from automation. Instead, the development such as it's been, came only in the service industries, in the civil service bureacracy, the university, the tourist business, all traditionally hard to penetrate for organized labor.

"Now we need to smarten up," he continues. "We need to organize the people who work at poverty-level wages in hotels and motels, the laundry workers, and taxi drivers, the store clerks, the people who are employed in the retirement industry, the whole range of service workers who have become the only significant labor force here.

"By that I mean we must organize the working poor. That's what the loss of industrialization has brought us to."

An hour later, no more than a couple of miles from the scars of the shipyard, Clare Copeland, president of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, sits in the busy, sound-cushioned studios of C-FAX. Does his sense of feel for the future of Victoria resemble Larry Ryan's?

No way.

"Its a selling job, a change of directions, that's the most important thing here," says Copeland, a high-octane seller who has increased business 10 times since he bought the station six years ago.

"Industry of the right kind can be brought here," he says, "for the same reason that people come here — the climate, the attractiveness of the place.

"First we have to get over the idea that this is a hokey little imitation English town. Why, even in Vancouver there are still people who think of us as a cemetery with lights. There are businessmen there who still don't know that we've a fine university producing young poeple who could fit into any specialized industry.

'Timing Is Just Right for Industrial Officer'

"The timing is just exactly right now for Victoria to appoint an industrial development commissioner, the kind of thing that's been done successfully in places like Dawson Creek, even Cranbrook, for God's sake, to bring in new blood. We need to switch images just as the chamber switched letterheads."

Copeland now produces the Chamber's before-and-after letter-head paper. The drawing of a large, hanging basket of flowers that decorated the original is gone. Now the message ignores the charming horticulture for a harder sell: "Canada's 14th-Largest City — Almost 200,000 people."

Brian J. Small, the chamber's manager, fortifies his president's views with a drawerful of evidence.

He flips a file to show a number of enquiries, directed to the chamber, from across North America.

A motion picture company asking about possible outdoor locations. A Quebec boat manufacturer wanting to resite his plant because of separatist activities. A California electronic research group wondering about establishing a 40-man plant to make a new kind of self-answering telephone. A major Chicago trucking firm owner who has sold out, might re establish with a Victoria base.

Enquiries, too, from certain scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration looking for opportunities in more varied fields.

"We're not equipped to deal with this sort of thing and its not our function," the chamber manager says. "City Hall should have a specific department to answer these questions and aggressively follow through. The fact that they haven't is just one more indication of the negative approach to business development."

The feel of the future registers in yet another way for Colin Crisp, one of the impressive team in City Hall's planning department.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Higher Prices Continue

Wednesday's rally continued into today as gains were marked up on both the Toronto and New York markets.

The Toronto market opened fractionally lower but turned around in the first hour of trading.

The New York market posted a sharp gain in early trading but cut its advance in later dealings.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Dome Pete was up 2¼ to 85, Kenting 1½ to 15¼. Falconbridg Kenting 1' to 15¼, Falconbridge 1¼ to 173¼ and Shaw Pipe 1 to 14.

TransCanada Pipe Lines was down 1⅜ to 25½, Electrohome 1⅛ to 32½, Imperial Oil ¼ to 20¾ and Atlantic Sugar ¼ to 8¼.

Conwest was up 1 to 14 and Dynasty ½ to 13. Mattagami slipped ½ to 29⅜.

Great Plains was up 1¼ to 29¼, Scurry Rainbow 1¼ to 26¾ and Asamera ⅝ to 17⅝.

AT NEW YORK, brokers said investors apparently were responding to statements which they interpreted as indicating a forthcoming relaxation of monetary controls.

Oils, which advanced on Wednesday after having been depressed for some time, maintained a portion of their early gains. Advances near the close included Jersey Standard ⅞ to 53¾, Phillips Petroleum 1⅜ to 21⅞, Texaco ¾ to 26⅛, and Gulf ½ to 25¼.

AT MONTREAL trading was moderately active today as the stock market moved higher in all sectors.

Falconbridge was up 2 to 174, Inco ⅞ to 46½, Placer Development 1 to 45 on an 800-share trade, and Pacific Petroleum ¾ to 30½.

Velcro Industries slipped 1 to 32.

Among Canadian Stock Exchange industrials, Superpack was down ¾ to 19¼ while Sogena gained ¼ to 14.

AT LONDON prices generally advanced in early trading today following Wednesday's climb on Wall Street but many of the gains were lost in late dealings on the stock exchange.

British funds were marked down following initial firmness. Buyers came in at the lower levels, however, and most issues regained their losses.

Dollar stocks were firm, reflecting the Wall Street rise.

Dome, 7 points up, led Canadians higher. Others to firm included Pacific Pete, Imperial Oil, Hiram Walker, Noranda, Massey-Ferguson and Consolidated Bathurst. Banks were also firm.

AT VANCOUVER, trading was light and prices were mixed as the stock exchange reported a volume of 1,045,017 shares to 11 a.m.

In the industrials, Captain International was unchanged at $3.35 after trading 3,000 shares. Driver Development was up .03 to .90, and Wardair was down .25 to $1.45.

In the oils, Ponderay was unchanged at $1.50 after trading 5,000 shares and Share was up .04 to .27. United Bata Resources was unchanged at $3.30.

In the mines, Kopan Development was up .03 at .27 after trading 171,500 shares. New Territorial was unchanged at .20 and Norcan was down .02 to .43.

Two Vote Verdict Due February 26

KAMLOOPS (CP) — A verdict will be handed down Feb. 26 in the trial of Edward George Anderson, charged with voting twice in the Dec. 6 municipal election here.

Crown and defence argument concluded Wednesday before Provincial Judge Stuart Van Male.

The case is believed to be the first of its kind in British Columbia.

In earlier testimony Anderson admitted accepting two sets of ballots but said a combination of medical drugs and a lack of sleep caused him to be "in a confused state of mind" on voting day.

Early Start Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority says a record light snowfall will make it possible to resume construction early this spring at the Mica Damsite north of Revelstoke.

More than 100 men have been hired to prepare equipment, plow snow from haul roads and open camp for the work force — which is expected to reach 1,600 men this summer.

At the end of the 1969 construction season the dam had been raised to more than 135 feet above the original Columbia riverbed and the target this year is to raise the dam by another 195 feet.

Walkout Continues

Miners Accept

PEACHLAND (CP) — Employees at the Brenda Mines Ltd. Wednesday accepted a new contract by a vote of 63 per cent.

About 230 operating engineers and tunnel and rock workers return to the job today after approving an 80-cent hourly wage increase over two years.

In addition, the settlement includes a wage re-opener clause for the third year subject to arbitration, provision for free medical care and other benefits.

Merritt Man Dies

MERRIT (CP) — Osvaldo Dimarco, 44, of Merritt was killed Wednesday when crushed beneath a mine locomotive in the Craigmont Copper Mine near here.

Dimarco had been operating the locomotive which left its track.

effect of his move will be to increase the opportunity for abortions in outlying areas of the province.

FEW QUALIFY

He said only a few of the more than 100 hospitals in B.C. are qualified to do abortion operations.

Included among the instructions sent out are the need for a hospital committee to review each application, the presence of qualified medical staff and the availability of proper equipment.

Loffmark pointed out that under current law hospital abortion committees are not allowed to consider the "financial or economic" circumstances of the woman in an abortion application.

"I might say that I think that if there is any proposal to change the law, it might be done with a high degree of consideration, compassion, sympathy and understanding for the difficulties sometimes facing a mother," Loffmark said.

Loffmark said his action will make it easier for women to get an abortion because "if facilities aren't available you frustrate the law" which was changed last year to include not only danger to life but to health of the mother as a basis for allowing an abortion.

SPOKE OUTSIDE

The minister said outside the house a motion on the legislative order paper prevented him from discussing the use of drugs during his speech in the budget debate.

A determined campaigner against the use of marijuana and stronger drugs, he said could have spoken for at least an hour if it weren't for a motion made earlier this session by Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy.

She wants the house to pass a resolution making clear its unanimous opposition to marijuana.

Loffmark told reporters that young people today face a clear choice on the question of marijuana.

"The choice they have is this — to take the high road to a mountain where there is health and a degree of happiness free from this curse or they can use it and go down, not into a valley, but into a pit, a slimy pit of ill health and unhappiness.

"That is the liberty they have. That is the choice they must make."

Loffmark was prevented from discussing the matter in the house under the rule of anticipation which says you can't discuss questions scheduled for debate under bill or motions already on the order paper.

'Won't Submit to Union Violence'

OTTAWA (CP) — With opposition demands for his resignation, Postmaster-General Eric Kierans told the Commons in a special debate Wednesday that neither the federal government nor the people of Montreal will submit to union violence in the city's postal slowdown.

In the past, Mr. Kierans said, the union of truck drivers who pick up and deliver bundles of mail have had Montreal postal service by the throat. "But this year, neither the government nor the people of Montreal are going to crack."

The minister accused a small gang within the union of using violence as a form of blackmail. He listed 568 of 1,800 Montreal mail boxes damaged or clogged with cement and glue, trucks blocked and deliveries to postal stations cut drastically.

The effect of union tactics in the last five years has been to drive up costs 70 per cent in Montreal compared with 33 per cent for similar services in Toronto, Mr. Kierans said.

It has also meant employment of more than 100 unnecessary drivers, he added, but now the union has driven the contractor out of the business and it can no longer find an employer.

Mr. Kierans's resignation was called for earlier in the evening by Georges Valade (PC—Montreal Ste. Marie) who claimed he had permitted a dispute with the Confederation of National Trade Unions to develop into a major crisis.

The dispute involves 455 employees of G. Lapalme Inc. whose contract with the post office expires Mar. 31. No renewal is sought.

The government now has signed five-year contracts with five companies to obtain the same service. Mr. Kierans told the House that Lapalme drivers will be able to get jobs with the new contractors but first they must register with the local Manpower office.

Meanwhile, he said, if violence and the slowdown continue, the government will have no choice but to revoke the present contract and hire 350 chauffers to deliver the mail—"and we'll give them the security the occasion will require," he warned.

Wagner Quits 'For Time Being'

QUEBEC (CP) — Claude Wagner, crime buster who rose to the rank of justice minister in the Quebec Liberal party but failed in a bid to become its leader, quit politics Wednesday "for the time being."

The self-styled people's champion who rode a tough 10-year road as a crusading Crown prosecutor, a tough-talking judge and a no-nonsense justice minister, left the party in characteristic style, scolding the Liberals for not electing him leader.

The 44-year-old lawyer read a statement to a news conference in French and English then refused to answer questions.

The withdrawal from politics came several weeks after his leadership loss to the party's new chief, Robert Bourassa.

Mr. Wagner said:

"My decision was based on realism, common sense and respect for my own conscience."

His announcement followed a meeting with Mr. Bourassa, who succeeded former premier Jean Lesage.

Mr. Wagner said he also intends to resign his legislature seat of Montreal Verdun.

Brown Again Scalds Jews

LONDON (Reuters) — George Brown, ebullient former foreign secretary, hit the headlines again today with accounts that he told a pro-Israeli meeting that "every Western Jew will fight to the last Israeli."

Brown attended a Friends of Israel meeting in a House of Commons committee room Wednesday night.

The Daily Express quoted him as saying:

"I might as well start off by saying how much I like President Nasser."

Uproar broke out when Brown said: "The farther you get away from the scene of the crime the easier it is to make bloodthirsty speeches."

"Every Englishman will fight to the last Frenchman, every Kuwaiti will fight to the last Egyptian and every Western Jew will fight to the last Israeli," he was quoted in press reports splashed on front pages.

CAUSES UPROAR

"That's an insult!" shouted members of Brown's audience.

"Shut up!" Brown retorted.

He also said he thought the Palestinian Liberation Movement was led by "relatively moderate people."

Brown told the Friends of Israel:

"If you want peace you have to like both of the peoples. The Jews are wrong to attack Nasser. I think he is an honest man.

"I think the Israelis know they need Nasser, and I think Nasser knows that he needs Hussein," referring to King Hussein of Jordan.

S. Korean Onslaught On Salmon Feared

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Keith Miller Wednesday called on President Nixon to "do everything in your power" to prevent South Korea from undertaking a major salmon fishing effort in the North Pacific this summer.

Earlier Wednesday, the Association of Pacific Fisheries reported it had been advised "on excellent authority that the Republic of Korea Fishing Co. plans to greatly increase salmon fishing in the North Pacific in 1970."

The message said the Koreans are planning to dispatch an 8,000-ton canning factory ship and a 1,000-ton freezer ship to take red salmon "mainly from the Bristol Bay run" off the Alaska coast.

A near-record run has been predicted for Bristol Bay in the coming season.

In a telegram to Nixon, Miller said:

"If South Korea enters this fishery, our treaties with Japan and Canada will be endangered."

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Southeast gales and occasional rain were reported along the north coast this morning in advance of a slow moving Pacific disturbance. Skies were cloudy over the south coast but were clear in most inland areas.

A strong ridge of high pressure over southern and central B.C. will retard the eastward motion of the weather system affecting north coastal districts. However, occasional rain will accompany it across the southern mainland on Friday. Inland areas will have sunny intervals Friday but occasional rain will mark its passage across the cariboo Friday afternoon. Mild temperatures and above normal rainfall are indicated in the five day outlook.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE 9 A.M. FORECASTS

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

The retired Wyoming cowboy has a special place outside his stables down the road where he has a deep chair that faces the mountains. He loves to sit there under the eaves and watch the changing scenes that come and go with the weather.

We had rain one afternoon when I had walked down the road to visit him. He sat in the big old chair and grinned. "It washed the air," he said. "The air is always cleaner after a good rain and it even smells cleaner."

The old cowboy said that once in Wyoming he had observed that great big drops of rain cleanse the air better than smaller drops. I found that pretty hard to believe, especially because he exaggerates once in a while. But the weather experts at the university here say it's true, smaller drops don't wash the air so clean.

The heads of these three households called their local B.C. Hydro office before deciding the best way to heat their homes. With no charge and under no obligation, they got an honest, accurate idea of what the cost would be and a recommendation of the type and size of electric heating they would need. Like 24,000 other B.C. homeowners, they decided on clean, quiet electric heat.

E&N Improvement Urged by Mayors

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Promotion and expansion of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo passenger train service as a Vancouver Island centennial project was jointly proposed Wednesday by Mayor Courtney Haddock and Nanaimo Mayor Frank Ney.

The E & N, owned by Canadian Pacific, operates the Dayliner — the only possenger rail service on the Island.

The company has an application before the federal transport commission requesting permission to discontinue the service, but the move is strongly opposed by Island municipalities.

STUDY SOUGHT

The mayors said if the passenger service was upgraded it would become a major tourist attraction and an efficient mode of transportation for Island residents.

They made the proposal at the annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau in Nanaimo.

Mayor Haddock, who traveled to Nanaimo aboard the dayliner with Victoria members of the VIP Bureau, was so impressed with the scenic trip he suggested a feasibility study into improving the service.

Pending completion of a study, he said, Island municipalities during centennial year should undertake to promote the dayliner and seek improvements to the service.

The mayor said the service could be made to pay if there were more frequent runs, lower fares and more comfortable accommodation.

The dayliner makes a round trip once a day between Victoria and Courtenay — a distance of 280 miles.

Mayor Ney said there should be a northbound and southbound passenger train running daily.

"There should be no talk of discontinuing this service," he said. "It should be extended to the north of the Island. It would become one of the big attractions of Vancouver Island."

SPLENDID VIEW

Interest mounted when the dayliner started to climb the Malahat, affording the group a splendid view of Saanich Inlet and Mount Finlayson.

Passengers held their breath when it crawled slowly over the trestles at Niagara and Arbutus Canyons. Below, ran fast flowing creeks, cascading over rocks.

The drop from Niagara trestle to hte creek below is 285 feet and from Arbutus 248.

Later the train passed through the railway's only tunnel.

At Cliffside Station, Shawnigan Lake, it stopped at a simple, white stone cairn, where Sir John A. Macdonald drove the spike that marked the completion of the first 69 miles of the E & N Railway, Aug. 18, 1886.

When the Diesel car stopped at Duncan to collect passengers, the Cowichan school band and Mayor Jim Quaife greeted the party.

Ald. Martin Lukaitis of Duncan felt the CPR had an obligation to keep the service in operation.

He pointed out the company obtained 4,700,000 acres of land for building the railway.

"The value of this land is going up every year," he said. "It surely should never be permitted to discontinue the service."

"BATHTUB CAPITAL" straw hats were presented to Mayor Courtney Haddock of Victoria and Mayor Frances Elford of Oak Bay by originator of famous race, Mayor Frank Ney, on their arrival in Nanaimo Wednesday.

There's Hockey Power in That 'Sissy' Skating Stuff

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Until recently, most young hockey players regarded figure skating as "sissy stuff."

Happily, times change. As a result, you can look for history's greatest influx of "sissies" into the National Hockey League within the next decade, and thereafter.

Canadian hockey, at long last, is getting smart. Thanks to a reassessment of value, there is a new emphasis being applied to the art of skating. Figure skating lessons, in the eyes of the hockey player, are fast becoming the "in thing."

That is part of the message Craig Redmond will put across when the Victoria Cougars introduce the four-year-old at tonight's B.C. Junior Hockey League game at Memorial Arena. (Kamloops Rockets on the "other side," starting at 8:30.)

Cougar manager Bob Reid was "strongly opposed" to exploiting Redmond as a "gimmick" to entice fans into the rink. Reid reconsidered only after being assured by Craig's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Redmond of Kamloops, that exploitation is not involved.

At four, Craig displays enough talent to compete with hockey-playing tads of seven and eight years.

Because of his tender years, it seems ridiculous to place Craig Redmond in the same boat as Mike Laughton or Mike Walton. Yet, that is how it has to be.

Craig was meant to be a figure skater. So were Laughton and Walton. Laughton, now performing with Oakland Seals, won numerous figure skating honors in the B.C. Interior before breaking into pro hockey with the defunct Victoria Maple Leafs.

Walton, the peppery Toronto Maple Leaf forward, ended his serious figure skating career only one test short of a gold medal. That gold medal, in case you haven't heard, means you're supposed to be just about as good as they come.

The minor hockey organizations will scream to high heaven, but the truth of the matter is that their coaches, generally speaking, aren't qualified or are unable to teach some of the finer points of skating.

"Power skating" is something Sandra Couch understands.

Sandra is the teaching professional (of figure skating) at the Racquet Club of Victoria. Some of her best pupils—Phil Blake, Rick and Thane Pipes, to name a few—are standouts in minor hockey circles.

Sandra has a great edge over most skating teachers because she knows and understands hockey.

Blake is an outstanding example of how figure skating can help in hockey.

Cougar coach Doug Anderson rates Blake as one of the top professional prospects in the district, apart from his own juniors. Last fall, before he turned 16, Blake turned down an offer to play for Max Bentley's Ponoka Stampeders—the runaway leaders of the Alberta Junior Hockey League.

"Power skating," says Sandra, "could improve a person's skating as much as 40 per cent. It's an advanced technique so, of course, it is best to start young and learn the straight basics."

Most juveniles, many juniors and some professionals are not beyond help in improving their skating.

Most hockey players, she says, are unaware that there are several ways to stop . . . or know the proper way to push off on a blade. She is especially appalled at most hockey players' inability to skate backwards "properly."

The point to be demonstrated tonight by young Mr. Redmond, and proven by Laughton and Walton, is that skating—and its improvement—can be taught.

Coaches like Mrs. Couch are readily available.

Hockey, I'm happy to say, is becoming aware.

Bill WALKER

Hockey anyone? And the persistent thought that Montreal Canadiens may be in danger of not making the NHL playoffs keeps rearing its ugly and statistical head. And after predicting that they would win it all, too!

Easy there, Montreal fans. Because there is due cause for concern, that could just as easily turn into dismay.

The Canadiens lost a vital pair of games on the weekend, a sound thumping by Detroit, and a shutout at the hands of the New York Rangers on Sunday. The Habs did not look that good in losing.

The double defeat took them out of the league championship race for the time being, because the Rangers have an edge of two games in hand, and five big points. The Bruins, who are second, have a four-point bulge. Not an insurmountable margin, but an unlikely happening unless there is a sudden improvement. (This was before Wednesday's games.)

There are deep roots to the Montreal problem, some of which are not visible on the ice surface.

The Habs were hard hit by injuries early this season and stumbled because of it, almost losing their cool. But they recovered from those initial setbacks and with such key players as Jean Beliveau and Henri Richard back in action, and apparently fit, the class was expected to show, and show up well.

But the loss of John Ferguson, for the second time and perhaps the balance of the season, has been more of a disaster than at first realized. The team does not look quite the same without the big bear on patrol. It is not the effort that is lacking. Rather, it appears there has been a slackening in the commodity known as total desire, which Ferguson had, and imbued in the club.

●

On Sunday, for example, the Rangers were outskating the Canadiens, and outhustling them, which usually isn't done.

In addition, the goalkeeping is suspect, or coach Claude Ruel is convinced it is. Take your choice.

Certainly, Rogatien Vachon has not been razor sharp lately, and with Gump Worsley on the retirement program, rookie Phil Myre is being touted as the last line of hope.

Vachon may have reason to fear the worst, but it may not rest on his performance alone. For Ruel's disenchantment with him is evident. He has declared the job open. That is clear. Now it is up to Vachon to prove himself all over again, as he did a few years ago, or for Myre, who has lost only once in eight games, to take the job away from him.

Having the coach's confidence would appear to be the key. But with Ruel already fingering the panic button, this may be difficult. But it is understandable.

After all, he is only a sophomore in the NHL coaching ranks, and may still have to learn how to lose. It is not easy.

Meanwhile, the people's choice, the New York Rangers, appear the solid bet to keep on winning often enough to take it all. They are shattering all sorts of club records, haven't been shut out in 118 games, which is a record, breaking their own, and have the best goaltending average in the league.

Yes, Eddie Giacomin (and Terry Sawchuk) have taken over from Tony Esposito, et al, of Chicago. Giacomin is the workhorse of the pair, and all NHL goalies. Sawchuk has appeared in only six games, Giacomin the remainder.

●

It is symbolic, perhaps, but it was in the 1941-42 season that New York set the original record of 117 games without being shut out. The Rangers finished first that season. They have not finished first since.

Boston? Inconsistent is still the word, with most of the scoring points coming from Bobby Orr and Phil Esposito. The Bruins' defence is not at all solid, and shows no signs of getting better fast. And until it does, their hopes are on the wane.

And now for the footsteps the Canadiens keep hearing behind them, and getting louder. They are for real and of dual concern.

Detroit trails by only five points and has two games in hand. Chicago is giving Detroit no breathing room at all. The Hawks have two games more to play than the Habs, are only six points away, and one behind Detroit.

Detroit, to this observer, has been the big surprise.

The Wings don't have the firepower of the other Eastern division leaders, and yet they are only a breath away from third place. Just when it appears they must falter, they come on again. And with a veteran club, if they can hold out until playoff time, they could be rough. Because they have been forced to play almost playoff-type hockey all year. Their talent, or lack of it, demands it.

●

Meanwhile the Chicago Hawks, have relented a little from their tight defensive style, and for better or worse have slipped back into their hell-for-leather scoring outbursts.

Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull, as usual, are the guns which are loaded. And don't wager that Hull doesn't end up as the league goal champ. If he can catch Mikita. Remember he missed 14 games at the start of the season. But check those summaries, he's coming on strong.

Well, anyway, it's just a thought, that bit about Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions and all, missing the playoffs.

But keep it in mind, especially you Maple Leaf fans.

It may be consolation in your miseries.

Unhappy Ruel Disillusioned By Habs' Play

Times News Services

A delighted George Armstrong is happy he decided to come out of retirement. A disillusioned Claude Ruel talked of retirement after Toronto Maple Leafs scored four times in the third period to pull out a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over Montreal Canadiens.

"I'm pretty ashamed," Ruel, coach of the 1969 Stanley Cup champions said. "Pretty ashamed. The team has been going like this for three weeks — always they have one bad period. The game goes 60 minutes, eh? I sure don't want to get sick for guys like this, guys who don't want to work for me.

"You yell and yell, and they do nothing for you. The only idea is to put somebody else behind the bench, somebody they'll play for."

"Claude, remember last year," a Montreal reporter said. "They won for you then."

"That's okay," Ruel replied, "but they aren't playing for me now."

The defeat was the third in succession for Montreal. Since Ruel took over the coaching duties from the retired Hector (Toe) Blake last season, the Canadiens have never lost more than twice in a row.

For a man who just four months ago had lost his enthusiasm for hockey, the veteran Armstrong still manages to display a timely knack for taking the starch out of an opponent.

Armstrong retired from Toronto Maple Leafs for the third time in as many years but came back in November and sparked his mates to their victory over Montreal.

The 39-year-old veteran's 10th season goal and third game-winner for the Leafs came when he stick-handled his way through the Montreal defence for a clear shot at goalie Phil Myre.

Black Hawks Clipped by St. Louis

In other games, St. Louis Blues downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-2, Detroit Red Wings tied 1-1 with Minnesota North Stars, New York Rangers held Philadelphia Flyers to a 3-3 score and a record-breaking goal by Bobby Orr helped Boston Bruins to a 5-5 saw-off with Los Angeles Kings.

Armstrong's goal at 10:09 of the third period took the steam out of the Canadiens and Dave Keon picked up his second goal of the night in the last minute of play to make the score 5-3.

Henri Richard's 300th career goal plus one by Yvan Cournoyer put the Canadiens ahead 2-1 at the end of the second period before a Toronto crowd of 16,485.

Bob Pulford of the Leafs and Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens exchanged early third-period goals before Ron Ellis again tied it for Toronto, setting the stage for Armstrong's winner.

Armstrong's play to get past Terry Harper brought praise from Leaf coach Johnny McLellan, who said the Montreal defenceman was aghast, "as with custard on his face."

"That was the old pro at work," McLellan said of his veteran right winger.

The former Leafs captain was also outstanding on the penalty-killing squad when centre Jim Harrison sat out a fighting major late in the first period after tangling with Harper, who got a two-minute holding minor. The Canadiens took three other minors and during one of them Keon scored his first goal of the night.

Orr's 22nd Goal a Record-Breaker

The Bruins, meanwhile stayed one point behind the leading Rangers while moving five in front of the slumping Canadiens.

Orr scored his 22nd goal at Los Angeles to break his own record for most goals by a defenceman in one season set last season.

Eddie Joyal's second goal of the night early in the third period tied it for the Kings who snapped an eight-game losing streak.

Detroit moved to within four points of the third-place Canadiens in the East with captain Alex Delvecchio's tying goal in the third period before a Minneapolis crowd of 14,137.

Minnesota goalie Cesare Maniago preserved the tie despite facing 46 shots while the North Stars tested Roger Crozier only 26 times.

The North Stars got a first-period goal from Claude Larose and a potential game-winner by Bill Goldsworthy, two minutes after Delvecchio's score, was disallowed by referee John Ashley.

The game marked the return of former Minnesota team captain Elmer (Moose) Vasko from the minor leagues, replacing defenceman John Miszuk who was sent down.

The Rangers and Flyers each scored three goals in the first period at New York and goalies Bernie Parent for Philadelphia and Terry Sawchuk kept their nets clean through the last 40 minutes.

Keith McCreary and the Plager brothers ganged up on the visiting Black Hawks at St. Louis, spoiling their bid to overtake Detroit in the battle for fourth place.

McCreary scored twice for the Blues. Bill Plager got a goal and an assist while brothers Barclay and Bob helped set up goals.

Stan Mikita set up Hawks goals by Dennis Hull and Lou Angotti.

ISLAND SPOT AT STAKE IN JUVENILE TOURNEY

All eight squads in the Vancouver Island Juvenile Hockey League will be in action at the Racquet Club of Victoria this weekend in a tournament that will decide which team will represent the Island in provincial playoffs.

Composed of 17 and 18-year-old players, the teams will play eight games on Friday, starting at 7:30 a.m., four on Saturday, starting at 8 a.m., and two games Sunday, at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

In first-round clashes Friday, Fuller's Lake will tangle with Saanich at 7:30 a.m., Nanaimo will battle Victoria at 9:30, Racquet Club will face Comox and 11:30 and Powell River will meet Esquimalt at 1 p.m.

McLain Talks To Probe Jury

DETROIT (AP)—Denny McLain, the 25-year-old Detroit Tiger pitching ace, voluntarily met behind closed doors Wednesday with a federal grand jury that is probing inter-state gambling.

McLain emerged from seclusion for the first time since Friday when baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn said in New York that unspecified "off-the-field" activities by McLain in 1967 were being studied.

Federal attorneys declined to discuss what McLain said during his 45-minute appearance before the grand jury.

United States Attorney James Brickley said that McLain was "very co-operative in furnishing information" to the grand jury and to James Ritchie, who heads a U.S. justice department task force investigating organized crime.

Brickley said that McLain had not been subpoenaed for the appearance, his first before the grand jury. Brickley said the investigation was an independent one that Ritchie "has been pursuing for some time."

EVERYBODY HELPS

Ritchie said federal attorneys are also "cooperating fully with the baseball commissioner, and I consult with his office on a daily basis to discuss matters of mutual interest."

McLain again disappeared, but he may be en route to Lakeland, Fla., where the Tigers open spring training Friday. His wife, Sharyn, told reporters earlier Wednesday that her husband "has done nothing to hurt baseball."

Mrs. McLain, daughter of former Cleveland Indian shortstop Lou Boudreau, added: "We are behind Denny 100 per cent."

She was interviewed as she boarded an airplane by herself in Detroit Wednesday afternoon for a flight to Tampa, Fla., en route to Lakeland.

Also Wednesday, an eviction suit against McLain in a Southfield, Mich., district court was postponed until Friday.

McLain's landlord alleged the ballplayer is $2,450 behind in rent for the suburban Detroit home. Orland Ellis, an attorney representing McLain, asked for the postponement, saying an out-of-court settlement was being attempted.

B.C. Schoolboy Rink Stays in Contention

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Manitoba, New Brunswick and Quebec were tied for first place today as play resumed in the Canadian schoolboy curling championship after Wednesday's results threw the title race wide open.

Each rink had a 5-1, won-lost record after winning two games Wednesday, but British Columbia at 4-2 and Alberta and Northern Ontario at 3-2 remained in contention.

No team east of Ontario has taken the championship since it began in 1950 but the dark-horse rinks of Quebec's Myron Nussey and New Brunswick's Ron Ferguson have surprised their favored western opponents since the tournament began Monday.

In sixth-round games Wednesday, Manitoba's Brian Penston edged Don Carmichael of Prince Edward Island 9-8, Quebec counted a final-end four to dump Dave Folk of Saskatchewan 9-5, Bob Thompson of British Columbia thumped Doug Hagerman of Northern Ontario 12-5, New Brunswick swamped Newfoundland's Ken Baggs 17-5 and Ontario's Red Osburn whipped Eric Tweedie of Nova Scotia 14-7.

Fifth round results:

New Brunswick 8, Northern Ontario 6; Quebec 14, Nova Scotia 10; Manitoba 10, Ontario 6; Saskatchewan 8, B.C. 5; Alberta 15, P.E.I. 6.

Weekend Ski Report

Skiers on Vancouver Island can look forward to good times following the report today of fresh snow on both areas.

Green Mountain reports 14 inches of new snow, bringing the base up to 62 inches. Heavy overcast this morning and a temperature of 32 degrees makes the fall of more snow by the weekend a strong possibility.

Forbidden Plateau reports 4 inches of new snow and an average base of 40 inches.

Chains are required for both locations.

Other Pacific Northwest reports:

WHISTLER MOUNTAIN — Overcast, average of 27 degrees, 108-inch total, 1 inch of new snow.

GROUSE MOUNTAIN—Clear, 32 degrees, 51-inch total, no new snow.

MT. SEYMOUR—Overcast, 34 degrees, trace of new snow.

HEMLOCK VALLEY—High overcast, 32 degrees, 93-inch total, 1 inch new snow.

MT. BAKER—Clear, 24 degrees, 150-inch total, 30 inches new snow in past week.

International Play Pursued

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League appears willing to turn loose some of its best players to join a Canadian national team in world tournament play and Canada hopes to have such a squad on the ice by 1975.

Hockey Canada, the organization of representatives from business, government and hockey, will send a delegation to Stockholm next month seeking International Ice Hockey Federation approval of a Canadian pro team.

At the IIHF Congress meeting in Crans, Switzerland, last July, Canada won approval to use nine professionals in the 1970 world tournament, which was to have been held in Montreal and Winnipeg.

But early last month in Geneva, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden, Finland and East Germany, who were to meet the Canadians in the tournament A pool, declined to take part for fear that the International Olympic Committee would revoke their amateur standing for playing against professionals.

Canada tried to steer clear of the IOC regulations regarding amateurism with a compromise proposal, but the five other countries rejected it and the Canadians withdrew.

The world tournament was awarded to Stockholm.

Canada's bid for re-entry into world tournament play will include the country's original proposal at Cras for open tournament play with unlimited use of professionals by 1975.

The Canadian delegation will propose that nine professionals be allowed in 1971, increasing to 12, then 15 and finally 18 within four years.

NHL president Clarence Campbell said the major league was "fully aligned" with the Hockey Canada stand.

He said the NHL's rules could be modified to exempt players wishing to go into international competition.

"I can't say the league is prepared to do this, but there is a strong feeling in favor."

Both Charles Hay, Hockey Canada's president, and Campbell said they think the concept of keeping a full-time national team together is wasteful.

West Holds Inflation Line

Fair Area Sharing Pledged

An "equitable" cost-sharing formula for health services in the Greater Victoria Regional District was pledged today by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

But takeover of the Metropolitan Board of Health by a full-scale regional board will require some time, he said.

Loffmark told the legislature that the unspecified financial formula will be closely watched by the government prior to announcing a province-wide formula for public health services.

In a letter sent today to Mrs. Rubymay Parrott, chairman of the Metro Health Board which would be absorbed by a regional board, Loffmark stressed that the proposals to be made soon would be an "interim measure so far as costs are concerned."

The rate would be "set at a level sufficient to maintain existing services," the letter said.

The City of Victoria had threatened to pull out of the Metro Board partly because of what Loffmark today acknowledged was an "anomalous" situation in which outlying areas paid much less per capita for public health services than the core area.

SHAKEN after a lone bandit took approximately $2,000 from her till is bank teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl. When Mrs. Wahl didn't react quickly enough to a note demanding the money, the robber ordered her to "hurry up." The note claimed there was a gun in a briefcase.

Intensive Investigation Into Bank Robbery Here

Police are continuing "an intensive investigation" into the holdup Wednesday afternoon in which a bandit escaped with about $2,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Fort and Cook.

The robber entered the bank shortly after 1:30 p.m. and handed teller Mrs. Beryl Wahl, 1607 Ross, a note which read:

"This is a holdup. Give me all in your drawer. I have a gun in my briefcase and I will use it. Don't push the burglar alarm until after I'm gone."

Mrs. Wahl did not react fast enough for the man who told her to "hurry up."

He put the money and the note into his briefcase, left the bank, ran across Cook and disappeared into the Cook Medical Building, 1175 Cook.

RED CAR

An older-model red car was seen quickly leaving the area of the medical building about the time the robber disappeared.

Bank manager Larry Haddon said there were six or seven employees on duty at the time of the holdup but none, other than Mrs. Wahl, got a good look at the man. There were no customers in the bank.

The holdup was the fourth bank robbery in the Victoria area in four years.

An armed bandit held up the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce, Seaview Plaza on Cordova Bay Road Nov. 30 1968, and fled with $6,900. He was later convicted.

Another man was convicted of taking $2,655 from the Bank of Montreal, Richmond and Fort, Oct. 13, 1967, and three men are serving sentences for robbing the same branch of $18,000 in February, 1966.

Eastern Prices Higher

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Western Canada held its own against rising prices in January.

But most eastern centres registered general price increases, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

That was the national picture today as the DBS released its monthly consumer price index.

The price index, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, registered a mixture of minor increases and decreases in the cost of food and other items across the nation, but the overall trend was upwards.

EXCEPTION

No figure was provided for Victoria.

Ottawa was an outstanding exception to the general trend in Eastern Canada. Its index in January fell by one-tenth of a point from its 125.8 level in December.

No other city registered a drop, but in western Canada the major cities held the line, unchanged from December.

Vancouver's index remained at 121.0, Edmonton and Calgary at 123.5 and Winnipeg at 126.2.

Saskatoon and Regina went from 121.6 to 121.7, primarily as a result of train fare increases.

FOOD PRICES UP

Halifax led the east in increases when transit fare hikes and increases in food prices boosted its overall index four-tenths of a point, from 123.1 to 123.5.

The index in other Maritime centres rose from 120.5 to 120.9 in St. John's, Nfld., and from 122.0 to 122.4 in St. John, N.B.

A one per cent increase in food prices was blamed for the rise in Montreal's index, from 123.0 to 123.5. The Toronto index rose from 126.6 to 126.8, also primarily as a result of food prices.

McLAIN SUSPENDED

NEW YORK (AP) — Denny McLain, ace pitcher of Detroit Tigers, was suspended indefinitely by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn today.

"On the basis of McLain's involvement in 1967 bookmaking activities it leaves me no alternative but to suspend him," said Kuhn.

$30,000 DAMAGES SET IN SEATTLE RIOTING

SEATTLE (AP) — Initial damage estimates have been set at $30,000 from a violent two-hour demonstration here Tuesday that resulted in one of the highest arrest totals in recent Seattle civil disturbances.

About 1,000 demonstrators protested the Chicago conspiracy trial by kicking in doors on the federal courthouse, hurling bottles through windows and splattering red and black paint on inside and outer walls.

Various businesses near the courthouse also reported extensive window damage.

Police arrested 61 persons on charges of violating municipal laws and another 14 were charged with violation of federal laws.

Anti-Riot Law Upset Sought

CHICAGO (AP)—Defence lawyers today moved to contest the validity of the U.S. federal anti-riot law under which five persons have been convicted.

Defence lawyer William Kunstler said he will go to higher courts to upset the 1968 law which prohibits the crossing of state lines with the intent to incite rioting.

A U.S. district court jury convicted five men Wednesday of crossing state lines with the intent to incite rioting during the Democratic convention in August, 1968.

But the jury of 10 women and two men acquitted all seven defendants of conspiracy to promote the bloody confrontations between police and anti-war demonstrators.

Two defendants, Lee Weiner and John Froines, were cleared of conspiracy and of a charge of teaching the use of incendiary devices. Froines and Weiner both resided in Chicago during the summer of 1968 and were not charged in the indictment with crossing state lines to incite rioting.

Convicted were David Dellinger, 54; Jerry Rubin, 31; Thomas Hayden, 30; Abbie Hoffman, 31, and Rennard Davis, 29.

Each man could be sentenced to a maximum of five years in prison and fined, $10,000.

NO DATE SET

Judge Julius J. Hoffman did not set a date for sentencing but sentences are expected to be pronounced Friday.

All seven defendants are being held on contempt sentences imposed last weekend.

Kunstler called for mass street demonstrations against the American legal system.

Abortion Authority Extended

The number of hospitals permitted to carry out therapeutic abortions will be "substantially" increased in B.C., Health Minister Ralph Loffmark told MLAs today.

Instructions are being sent to hospitals explaining how they should go about being designated by Loffmark to handle abortions under amendments to the Criminal Code last year.

Loffmark said the greatest

Cost-Hold Reaction Mixed

OTTAWA (CP) — An announcement Wednesday by Prime Minister Trudeau that the government will postpone a series of planned price increases was greeted as a mixed blessing by opposition parties.

Trudeau told the Commons the government will forego increases in postal rates, Air Canada and Canadian National Railways fares, prices for government publications and other services to combat inflation.

While opposition spokesmen welcomed the anti-inflation initiative, most said the restraints will lead to unemployment.

Gerald W. Baldwin, Conservative House leader, said the program will hurt those at the bottom of the economic ladder.

He said the announcement, made during Trudeau's report on this week's two-day federal-provincial conference, contained measures that would "obviously just add to our unemployment problem."

T. C. Douglas, New Democrat leader, said restraint is necessery but the government should not decrease expenditures where it will cause unemployment.

The government's restraint program was hitting all sectors of the economy instead of being applied selectively, he said.

Andre Fortin (Creditiste—Lotbiniere) said a federal provincial conference on monetary reform should be held to solve problems that will be compounded by this week's conference.

Guild Considering Own Vancouver Paper

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Vancouver-New Westminster Newspaper Guild will not return to work at the Sun and the Province without a settlement, Guild executive-secretary Bill McLeman said Wednesday night.

"Settlement is within our grasp and has been for two months," McLeman said in an interview, adding that the guild is considering putting out a paper of its own if the closure of Pacific Press Ltd. continues.

However, he said such newspapers have rarely been successful and a careful study of the situation would be needed first.

McLeman said starting next week, guild members will receive a maximum of $65 a week in "lockout" pay. The B.C. Federation of Labor has asked provincial trade union members for a $2.50 monthly donation to thwart "an obvious attempt" by Pacific Press to smash newspaper unions.

Local radio and television stations have stepped up news coverage and out-of-town newspapers are snapped up as soon as they appear on newsstands here.

VICTORIA'S SEARCH FOR AN IDENTITY

Abandoned Yard: Tombstone of an Industrial Future

By JACK SCOTT
(Part 4)

It was six men of Indostan
To learning most inclined,
Who went to see the Elephant
(Though all of them were blind),
That each by observation
Might satisfy his mind.

* * *

Nothing looks quite as desolate as closed-down shipyards and the closed-down yards of the Victoria Machinery Depot are theatrically so. The winter grass bunches pale and yellow around the derelict, rusted machinery. A sign that nobody reads warns: "Patrolled by dogs."

Walking by there on Dallas Road one day last week Larry Ryan, secretary of the 13,000-member Victoria Labor Council, saw in that silent desolation the tombstone of an industrial future.

"We lost 150 jobs in there in 1967 when it went belly-up," he remarked acidly to his companion, "but, more important, it's the story in a glance of what is happening here.

'. . . So Over-Protective and so Short-Sighted . . .'

"Victoria is so over-protective of its environment, so short-sighted in its needs, that there simply is no commitment to industrialization. Instead of saving these yards by keeping abreast of technological advances, as Sweden would or Japan would, they rationalized as they still do today, that we could get by through substitutes or specialization.

"Little or nothing came in to replace them. There are skilled men who made ships in there who are janitors now. Some are running elevators. We lost the dynamism that any city, however pleasant it may be, must have to keep moving ahead."

Irish-born, 50 years of age, an asembly-line worker with General Motors in Oshawa before he saw the Pacific light, Ryan relates the bleak view on Dallas Road with labor's future in the capital.

"They're black days for the organizer in Victoria," he admits. "Labor councils reflect the growth of industrial activity. We see the continuing shift up Island, to Duncan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni, Campbell River, all with their own councils now. That's the trend. There's a draining away of the primary and secondary industries from this little corner."

Ryan stands and stares glumly through the high wire fence at the idle yards. The brogue still lingers in his voice.

"We came out of the post-war years in Victoria with a false premise. We thought of expanding production, of industrial growth in which the only threat of unemployment would come from automation. Instead, the development such as it's been, came only in the service industries, in the civil service bureacracy, the university, the tourist business, all traditionally hard to penetrate for organized labor.

"Now we need to smarten up," he continues. "We need to organize the people who work at poverty-level wages in hotels and motels, the laundry workers, and taxi drivers, the store clerks, the people who are employed in the retirement industry, the whole range of service workers who have become the only significant labor force here.

"By that I mean we must organize the working poor. That's what the loss of industrialization has brought us to."

An hour later, no more than a couple of miles from the scars of the shipyard, Clare Copeland, president of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, sits in the busy, sound-cushioned studios of C-FAX. Does his sense of feel for the future of Victoria resemble Larry Ryan's?

No way.

"Its a selling job, a change of directions, that's the most important thing here," says Copeland, a high-octane seller who has increased business 10 times since he bought the station six years ago.

"Industry of the right kind can be brought here," he says, "for the same reason that people come here — the climate, the attractiveness of the place.

"First we have to get over the idea that this is a hokey little imitation English town. Why, even in Vancouver there are still people who think of us as a cemetery with lights. There are businessmen there who still don't know that we've a fine university producing young poeple who could fit into any specialized industry.

'Timing Is Just Right for Industrial Officer'

"The timing is just exactly right now for Victoria to appoint an industrial development commissioner, the kind of thing that's been done successfully in places like Dawson Creek, even Cranbrook, for God's sake, to bring in new blood. We need to switch images just as the chamber switched letterheads."

Copeland now produces the Chamber's before-and-after letter-head paper. The drawing of a large, hanging basket of flowers that decorated the original is gone. Now the message ignores the charming horticulture for a harder sell: "Canada's 14th Largest City — Almost 200,000 people."

Brian J. Small, the chamber's manager, fortifies his president's views with a drawerful of evidence.

He flips a file to show a number of enquiries, directed to the chamber, from across North America.

A motion picture company asking about possible outdoor locations. A Quebec boat manufacturer wanting to re-site his plant because of separatist activities. A California electronic research group wondering about establishing a 40-man plant to make a new kind of self-answering telephone. A major Chicago trucking firm owner who has sold out, might re establish with a Victoria base.

Enquiries, too, from certain scientists of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration looking for opportunities in more varied fields.

"We're not equipped to deal with this sort of thing and its not our function," the chamber manager says. "City Hall should have a specific department to answer these questions and aggressively follow through. The fact that they haven't is just one more indication of the negative approach to business development."

The feel of the future registers in yet another way for Colin Crisp, one of the impressive team in City Hall's planning department.
